INTRODUCTION

“LET HIM

[THE STU.

asked for an account merely of the words of his lesson, but of its sense and substance and let judge the profit he has made not by the testimony of his memory, but of his life. Let him be made to show what he has just learned in one hundred aspects, and apply it to his many different subjects to see if he has yet thoroughly grasped it and made it his own. . . .”

— MICHEL EYQUFM DE MONTAIGNE

"Now dawn rose from her bed, where she lay by haughty Tithonos,
To carry her light to men and to immortals."

— HOMER

Four years in the life of the Student
Are but one in the life of the University,
And but a day in the life of man.
As that day begins, there is only stillness.
Man has not yet been created;
The Student has not come.

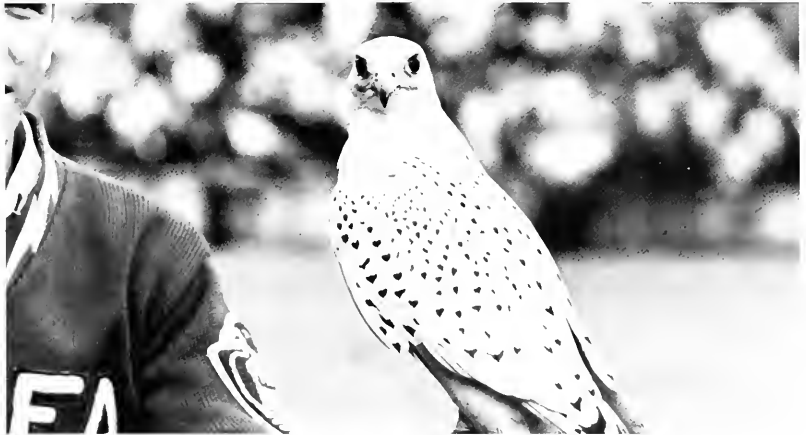

"Sadness flies on the wings of the morning,
And out of the heart of darkness comes the light."

—JEAN GIROUDOUX

There can not long be a world without light, without life.
As the darkness before the sun melts in its warmth,
The stillness of the world is disturbed by a movement.
The lesser creatures abound; quiet becomes sound.
But Man has not yet been created;
The Student has not come.

"One all-extending, all-preserving Soul Connects each being, greatest with the least;
Made beast in aid of Man, and Man of Beast;
All served, all serving; nothing stands alone;
The chain holds on, and where it ends, unknown."

— ALEXANDER POPE

At last the chain reaches toward completion,
As man first sets his foot upon the earth.
He spreads his culture and civilization
Over the previously uninhabited world.
Ultimately he will found the University to perpetuate this cult:re;
But the Student has not come.

"A Clerk ther was of Oxenford also
That unto logik hadde longe ygo.
As lene was his hors as is a rake,
And he was nought right fat, I undertake,
But looked holwe, and therto sobrelly.
Ful thredbare was his overeste courtrepy.
. . . For him was lever have at his beddes head
Twenty books, clad in blak or reed,
Of Aristotle and his philosophye,
Than robes riche, or fithele, or gay pantrye."

— CHAUCER

Yes, the Student has finally come,
He is introduced into the world Man has made,
To study it, to criticize it, to change it.
Perhaps the Student is not what Man has envisaged;
Perhaps the protégé excels the master;
But it is his University, and will be his world.

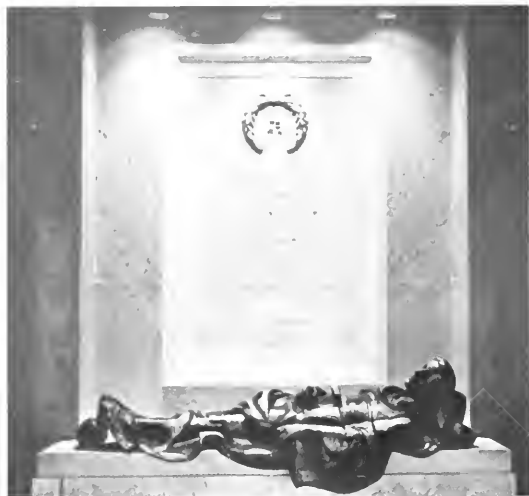

"Orphée hunts Eurydice's lost life."
—JEAN COCTEAU

In his effort to learn of Man and his world,
The world that will be one day his own,
The Student pursues Knowledge and Wisdom.
These were once found by Man,
But they have been forsaken.
The Student labors to discover them anew.

"That corpse you planted last year in your garden,
Has it begun to sprout? Will it bloom this year?
Or has the sudden frost disturbed its bed?"

— T. S. ELIOT

The sins of the fathers are passed on to the sons.
And the Student's labor for Knowledge
Becomes a near exercise in futility.
For the Wisdom implanted by Man
Has become a corpse. Man's own frost
Prevents its blooming for the Student.

"It is the dull traditional habit of mankind that guides most men's actions and is the steady frame in which each new artist must set the picture that he paints."

— WALTER BAGEHOT

The Student begins to see the dull fog of Man and his frost.
He perceives life as patterned and unoriginal.
He wonders if there is Knowledge at all.
If he must live
In the traditional, habitual world that he did not make.
Why live at all?

“They make him turn right, turn left, raise the ramrod, return the ramrod, take aim, fire, march on the double, and they give him thirty strokes with a stick; the next day he drills a little less badly and he gets only twenty strokes; the day after they give him only ten, and he is regarded as a prodigy by his comrades.”

— VOLTAIRE

Not only does the Student find that he must ultimately be patterned,
But he soon sees that the world of habit and regimentation
Presses in on his hallowed sanctum of University.
He is forced to participate
In what he considers the supreme folly of Man —
Destruction of his own kind.
It seems all so silly, this game of good people and bad aggressors:
A fool by any other name would smell as mimsy.

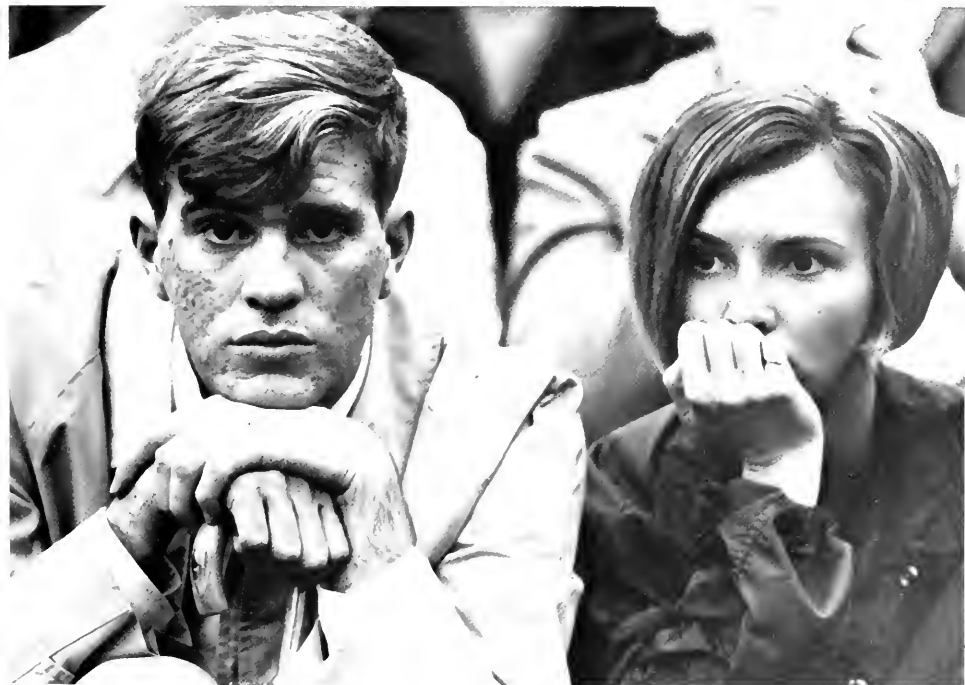

— We have to come back tomorrow.
— What for?
— To wait for Godot.”

— SAMUEL BECKETT

Aside from its doltish conformity and its folly,
Life is also a vigil.
An endless waiting for what may never come.
The Student, starting with great expectations,
Has lost some of these.
Though he retains some hope,
He knows it may be futile.

"Cut is the branch that might have grown full straight,
And burned is Apollo's laurel bough,
That sometimes grew within this learned man."

— CHRISTOPHER MARLOWE

The Student now looks on Man closely,
On his elders — those wise ones —
Those who set the example, and tell him to follow.
But how can he follow?
Does he do what he is told, even when it is nonsense.
And his disillusionment becomes deeper.

"Their mirth was without images, their laughter without motive; their pleasures were gross and sensual, in which the mind had no part; their conduct was at once wild and mean; they laughed at order and at law, but the frown of power dejected, and the eye of wisdom abashed them."

—SAMUEL JOHNSON

Diversions no longer mean anything,
Life itself is disgusting,
The struggle of existence meaningless.
Even his fellows disappoint the Student.

"My female Friends, whose tender Hearts
Have better learned to act their Parts,
Receive the News in doleful
Dumps,
The Dean is dead, (and what is Trumps?).
— JONATHAN SWIFT

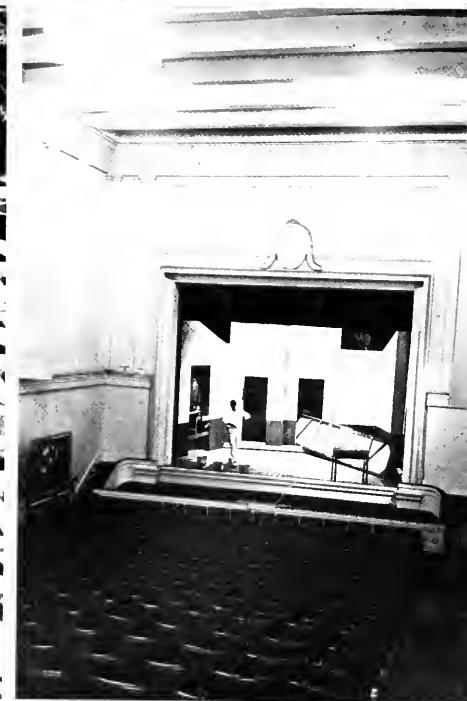

Sex is no escape for the beleaguered Student.
What may once have been a delight,
Is only a routine pattern of Man's habit.
Women are petty, moreover:
Suzy Grit is Dean Swift's whist player redone.

"Infinite emptiness will be all around you, all the resurrected dead of all the ages wouldn't fill it, and there you'll be like a little bit of grit in the middle of the steppe."

— SAMUEL BECKETT

The Student drops through the bottomless pit of emptiness;
All has forsaken him, there is no meaning to anything.
Indeed, there isn't anything,
Anything but despair.

"Mystery has its mysteries."
— JEAN COCTEAU

Yet, there is something more to life,
Something not definable but undeniable,
Something which makes living worthwhile.
The University itself is a refuge
From all that seems sordid or pointless
In Man's world. Though despairing,
The Student again sees a glimmer of reason
In study, In life.

"People who try to hold on to their originality always come to a bad end! Oh well, too bad! I'll take on the whole of them! I'll put up a fight against the lot of them, the whole lot of them! I'm the last man left, and I'm staying that way until the end. I'm not capitulating!"

— EUGENE IONESCO

Now there is resolve.
If Man has forsaken knowledge,
If he has disturbed the world with a sudden frost,
The Student will redeem it.
Even if he must fight all of Man,
He will struggle — he will not be a rhinoceros.

"We must cultivate our garden."
— VOLTAIRE

The Student has not become a Pangloss;
Life is far from the best
In this, the best of all possible worlds.
There is, however, determination, duty —
A practical optimism,
A realistic morality.

"They are in a bad way who cannot let love have its fun, or wash their troubles away with sweet wine."

— HORACE

Now, having found the limitations to his capability,
And having adjusted to them,
The Student can enjoy his existence, his life.
The closed-in world of 'No Exit'
Has become an expansive one.
If not entirely an existence of joy,
At least of enjoyment.

"Honeyed are your eyes, Juventius
And if someone would let me kiss them on
And on and on until I'd kissed
Three hundred thousand times
I think I'd never feel I'd had enough
Not if more dense than sun-baked fields of grain
Should stand the crop of kissings we had made."

— CATULLUS

Perhaps it is a love that Has Resurrected the Student.
Yes, sex is no longer so routine
When there is sincere emotion as well.
Once more with feeling,
Is more than an idle exhortation.

"In Wit, as Nature, what affects our hearts
Is not the exactness of peculiar parts;
'Tis not a lip, or eye, we beauty
call,
But the joint force and full result of all."

— POPE

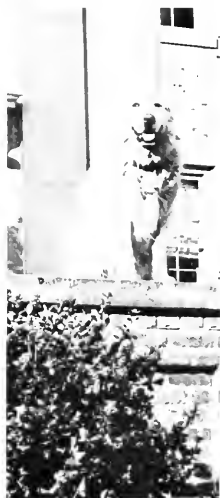

But if it is love,
A love for beauty,
It is not necessarily a love for the female form —
Though that certainly qualifies.
Yet, there is suddenly much more,
A beauty to life itself.

"Happy the man and happy he alone
He who can call today his own,
He who secure within can say:
Tomorrow do thy worst. For I have lived today."
— JOHN OSBORNE
(SCREENPLAY FOR TOM JONES)

So like Tom Jones,
We end our day, our year,
Our tenure at the University,
Having sunk to the depths of despair,
But having also been Resurrected.
We have made our peace with ourselves,
With our fellows;
Ultimately we will make our peace with Man,
For we will become Man.
And this is the purpose of the University:
To learn to cultivate our garden,
To learn to live each day as it comes,
To learn to savor each vintage year of life.

sity, the student must find a home. For the freshman, this is easy, but as he progresses, he is faced with a choice. The student's choice is most significant, for on it depends his style of living, the nature of his comrades, and his philosophy of life for the remainder of his career at Carolina. And the path of life he selects here will pattern his future years.

MAVERICK HOUSE Craigie Residence College

1966-1967: This as usual, was a time for the Winning People and the Winning Events of Maverick House. The number one residence college on Campus has as its Miss Maverick, Mary King, dual winner of the Consolidated University and Homecoming crowns in 1965, plus a bevy of the most lovely Maids at UNC. The Hike for Hearts brought tired feet and a feeling of inner satisfaction to a number of stalwart Mavericks and statewide publicity to the Heart Fund. The House Gong made weekly visits to Kenan Stadium in an attempt to bolster lagging spirits at football games. Mavericks continued their extended work on special projects with the retarded children at the Murdock Center. The Monzas, the Sardams, and the Dixie Cups make seasonal Maverick festivities in the Red Garter and Voo Doo Rooms more that memorable. Able leaders and willing workers such as Jane Russell, Susan Gretz, and Gloria Shepherd made our brother-sister relationship and our numerous combined projects with Whitehead very pleasurable. These are but a few of the many rewarding aspects of life in Maverick House — others will remain forever as memories: a flood of frosh and grad students; "Boog"; the big time collies and the motor cycle crew share O.D.; "No. No! Ugly Christine!"; the last time around for Drew, Boy, the Button, Wade, Dichtung, and Mother Goose; "After a baptism by fire . . ."; Genie and Janie make it a great season for Dookies; the eternal words of Spic and Hank; "I — Hate — You!!!" . . . and on and on. Will this year be the end of an era for the House as we make the big move to James? We hope not as we look back at an illustrious past and forward to the ever-brighter future and, to paraphrase a recent campaign slogan, we know that we will

"Be a winner with . . . MAVERICK HOUSE!!!"

"Some like it hot."

Old East

The Great Society finally reached UNC. Old East now has a color TV. It is rumored that one day this historic mansion might even have a social room. However, Old East men cannot complain since they do have such modern conveniences as running water (on second floor), three-men rooms, laundry exchange (at Joyner), a candy machine, and a housemaster.

Old East is now also departmentalized. The South Section houses the brain trust. Quiet hours are enforced here by Wood and Moore when enforceable. The Center Section, home of the social room where the tectotals hang out, is ruled by Senator Transou and Master Lancaster. These two sections are the older brothers of the North Section (only 121 years old), which houses Wicker's bar and the second tube room. Men of the North Section are on their way to being accepted by the old guard aristocracy.

On its 173rd birthday, Old East received a plaque from the Department of Interior designating it as a national landmark, and a banner of good will from Old West which has a 144-year losing streak in all athletic contest with Old East.

The tradition and immediacy of living in Old East can only be expressed by the terse words characteristic of President Wood, who is on his way to graduation. Because of his leadership, Old East had numerous successful social mixers, outstanding displays during football season, and even got a milk machine (all which were part of his campaign promises.)

Old East also provided the leadership for the Davie Residence College with Governor McFadden and Lt. Gov. Lain. Silent was on the "Bullsheet," the college newspaper which became a periodical and contained no news. Rufus became the assistant housemaster and led the men to the birthday celebration on University Day at Memorial Hall.

The mixer with McIver was a success. Sugg finally found a fish that would date him on June 4. E. P. loses weight only to find it behind him. Ware plans his graduation for the eighth consecutive year. Funny Man leads the Cardboard Club float. Farmer keeps appearing on the football incognito. Spook finally admits he hails from Oakboro. Watson dyes his hair, but forgets about his freckles. Lombardo gives up cards for Lent. Morris realizes his spasticity. Lamm is sheared. Free gives up the guitar. Long gives Gidley his teeth. "Gotam" Goforth clobbers Young with shoe. Miller donates his sweetheart to Old East. Samscolottes live in North Section.

Oh what a life!

OLD WEST

The 1966-67 campaign has been an unforgettable experience for those new residents of Old West. This fall a major over-haul of nearly 2/3 new residents moved to within the historic walls of UNC's most spirited dorm. Indoctrination in the ways of Old West did not take long, for this year's pack soon proved to be among the most cynical and grossest of Old West editions in recent years.

It was an active campaign filled with spirit as only Old West could provide. The coup of the year came on University Day when we stole the whole show from our counterparts in Old East, the national landmark. The hanging of effigies was frowned upon by the hierarchy in the basement of South Building, but the men of Old West never failed in their endeavors.

Now for a look at the team: Returning from last year's squad is Charlie with his radio in the center section. For hours into the night, cars burned, but none fried quite like those of the dorm president and the resident advisor. "The club" in this section continues to be the focal point for campus visitors. No wonder with the likes of Craig (Go Tar Heels!) Roseman and Darryl (Great Pumpkin) Schrum.

The South section had last year's rednecks replaced by more rednecks. John, Tom, and Terry join last year's squad of Steve, Robin, and Morris and again led by fearless Ed (The Cat) Oleen.

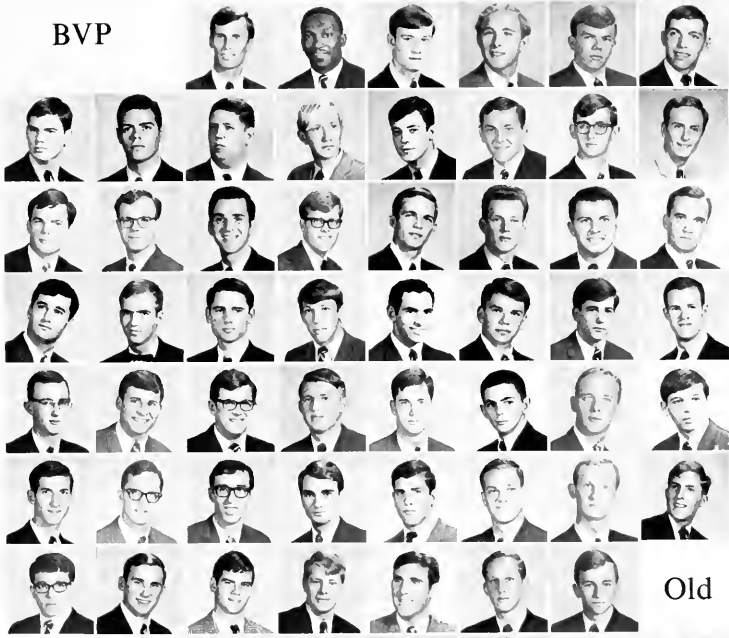

Two returnees, Dave and Porter, were thrown in a cage (Room 33) and the North section is still shaking. The bathroom on the first floor of that section always seems to be congested, but Bill and Eddie were relieved to know that Dick and Henry have set up office hours.

In retrospect, it's been a grubby team, but a team that only our old building could truly appreciate.

Ehringhaus College

In the beginning — there was a dormitory. The Dean said: "Let there be a residence college," and there was. He saw that it was good and everyone rested (booze in hand and gut). Post-hangover everyone worked. Some worked with the birds and the bees. Some worked to get the newly prosperous houses get moving (planning sessions were frequent at the Grill). Some helped get the college social functions started. Combos played, kegs rolled, trips to UNC-G bedrooms occurred, more kegs, homecoming display, South Campus Weekend (Ehringhaus in charge of decorations), Beat Dook float (first place naturally), college festooned for Christmas (with balls and KAT's), more kegs appeared, exams (!*#!#!), new semester begins, spring binge, JUBILEE, beach trips and still more kegs. Some aided the onset of the academic program. First residence college library started, speaker program extended (yea Otelia!), 3rd Annual Art Show, Stud continues circulation, film series instituted, and academics reign supreme (huh!). Some sought residence college improvement. Ehringhaus Nature Park created, Ehringhaus nymph used as dust rags by efficient janitors (yet the phoenix bust rose again), elevators in constant state of disorder by you know what team (2-8). Many came, many saw, but none conquered the pinnacle of greatness gained by the lusty studs of Ehringhaus.

The Senate of Ehringhaus Residence College, meeting on alternate Tuesdays throughout the year, handled the legislative duties of the college. With Tom Craver as Speaker, the Senate appropriated over three thousand dollars during the course of the year. Under the joint cooperation of the Governor and the Senate, a weekly film series was inaugurated which met with immediate success throughout the college. The famous Ehringhaus Nature Park, supervised by the Senate, was improved and cleaned up. Ehringhaus ID Cards were printed and distributed by the senators. In the middle of the year, the Senate found a permanent home in the basement lobby. It was a year of both action and improvement in the Ehringhaus Senate.

ABSENT: Jim Ramsey; Hugh Stephens; David Riggs; Hurley Thompson; Don Bean.

LEFT TO RIGHT: Don Brown, Secretary and Treasurer; Bill Ferguson, President; Bill Brackett, Vice-President.

Aycock House is truly the house of the "Carolina Gentleman." We're out to have fun, and fun we've had with our full social program of combo parties, beer blasts, and Grill nights. Fun costs money, but who needs it as long as our credit is good. All our time is not spent partying, for we've taken an active place in intramurals, and we do have time for more serious matters—how to avoid the draft. We never worry though, for we are the fun loving men of the first and ground floor of Ehringhaus. Long live the studs of Aycock House.

Bourbon House

Can "dorm rats" have as much fun as fraternity men? Judging from past performances of the men of Bourbon House, the answer would seem an emphatic YES. At least they are dead set on proving that the frats don't have a monopoly on social life, what with all the combo parties, beer blasts, etc., for which the residence college system has made ample provision . . . Speaking of provisions, Bourbon House could have been named after gin or vodka with equal justification, but neither of them start with B.

To say that the men of Bourbon House pursue girls and knowledge with equal ardor would be stretching things a bit. Yet the fact remains that B. House, along with all of Ehringhaus Residence College, has in the past compiled a commendable academic record relative to the over-all University Q.P. average. For hours on end (between intermittent periods of hell-raising) the Bourbon House man may be found pouring over many a volume of scholarly lore. Otherwise he may be engaged in hot philosophical debate on such diverse topics as . . . why a state university (should, should not) be autonomous . . . why Ayn Rand (is, is not) a nut . . . why LBJ's economic policy is (wise, foolhardy) . . . why contraceptives are (damaging, not damaging) to American morals.

But then the cool, mature, sophisticated Bourbon House man rises above the chaos and confusion to pause and consider a question which has plagued college men for ages . . . "Wonder what Mom would think of these pinups?"

EHRINGHAUS

Canine House

Canine House formerly known as C House was named in honor of our mascot Floyd. The Barbarian also ran for mascot but failed to get enough tickets to win. The highlight of the year was the Grill Christmas party. Steaks were enjoyed by all and after a bursting forth of Christmas cheer by Terry Rowe, Chuck and Sheehan led us in honoring the birth of Christ through Christmas carols.

Dog Haus

Seems they need some women before it's too late.

Drinking beer? Sure. We're slick.

In honor of the dogs who daily put on great sexual displays in front of the library, and in honor of Snoopy's never-ending pursuit of the Red Baron, and in memory of our blind dates (TCC et al), we have decreed our house Doghaus. We donated to the Fine Arts Festival; we donated time, money, patronage, and sobriety to the Grill; we contributed to Christmas House, a project to help the needy at Christmas; we had more stolen from our house at Thanksgiving than anyone else; we gave Otelia Conner a flower; we had last year's loser of the year; we treated our women bad. And on top of our social life and blind dates, we wrap up with a fitting climax — ahh!!!

Linda Sieber, Sweetheart

Essex House

Thinking back on our year here in the lofty heights of Ehringhaus, we conclude that it has been a truly interesting one. Essex teams have retained their losing tradition, as every squad fielded this year has been utterly obliterated by the opposition. Meanwhile Harper and Company borrow everything from typewriters to old Playboys, and all in the name of The Stud. The eternal telephone vigil in the lobby continues, occasionally hampered by our pseudo-jocks and their variations of handball and squash. John Sheppard sets a new record for most hours in the shower while Lehtonen eagerly awaits another session of hypnotism. Al Shepherd, Cherry, Hodges and enthusiastic followers man the barricades in an effort to preserve the sovereignty of the "Governor's suite" against hostile intruders. The Snack Bar reports that Essex studs have bought more shaving cream than the rest of the entire dorm. Culbreth counts the days until graduation, as suite-mates maintain their usual quiet, studious atmosphere. Letters continue to circulate as everyone wonders just who is getting rich off of them. The combo party was a roaring success (for the four couples that came). And so, as exams end and UFO's buzz our residence college, Essex House closes another memorable chapter in life at Carolina.

LEFT TO RIGHT: Tony Lehtonen, Vice President; Jack Sheppard, President; ABSENT: Mitch Waldrop, Secretary and Treasurer.

The usual crowd at the telephone.

Granville College

GRANVILLE RESIDENCE COLLEGE

Granville Residence College is the newest and most comfortable addition to the University. The student Government of both Granville West and East have worked together to build a community spirit to compare with the fine physical plant. Granville has been successful in presenting the residents with the opportunity to participate in most any extra-curricular field. These first few months saw the birth of an organized and responsible student government, a service project to help a needy family, many parties, the largest serenade ever held at the university, a hayride, as well as a new emphasis placed on the outside academic life of the student.

Granville looks forward to future years of service to the Student, University, and Community.

This is a dormitory? . . . What's a house? Grayhouse? . . . King takes the election and drags Badenhop, Fergusson, New and Cloud along . . . "We're going to run a tight ship around here" . . . "Hey, Charlie, shut up will ya!" . . . Homecoming — "You really mean it? All the beer we can drink?" . . . Hayride and cold weather . . . Thanksgiving, finally . . . "Hey, New, how much is your phone bill?" . . . UNC's first faculty adviser . . . "Well, you see, Dr. Devereux, I've got this problem" . . . Christmas around the corner . . . Santa brings diamonds and wedding bands for McCann and King . . . "Badenhop, don't you ever wear pants?" . . . tube team sets records . . . Santosh misses his pet tigers . . . "What's a winning card?" . . . G.T. Governor a Gray Ghost, too . . . noble and chivalrous Wilson . . . Collins our surfer-in-residence . . .

Gaog's all here.

Adam House, fourth floor of Granville Towers West, is occupied by over sixty Ivy League alcoholic youths. Their exalted leader, looked up to, admired, feared, and revered (Ha!), is President Larry Seigler, who always sets a good example for "his boys." Other officers include Northern Vice-President Bob Bunshaff and rebel secretary-treasurer David Moff, commonly known as DAM. The sweetheart of Adam House is Sandra Honeycutt, a senior at Needham Broughton High School in Raleigh. Wayne Wilson and Vincent Townsend carry the responsibility of keeping law and order as MRC representatives. Bill Brooks, intramural manager, has kept the floor rolling in intramural activities. The Adam House basketball team advanced far in intramurals, and this success prompted them to plan play-offs for the International "Euchptzer" championship. The house has helped extensively in carrying out functions for the resident college. They have also had a few fund-raising projects.

With all these great attributes, the men of Adam House are destined to reach unexcelled heights.

"In the beginning there was darkness on the face of University Square" . . . then light as Granville's Fifth led the move . . . October saw the leaves fall, but not Duke in the "fiery" Kenan — yet there was celebration, even a warning card or two . . . Tim Cameron's hair, light green, gave the go ahead on allnight poker games . . . one could hear Mike Sprling's "southern accent", so impressive . . . and see Hall studs dancing the buggaloo in front of their mirrors . . . Ed McDonald's palsied hands greeted visitors — sclerosis from a simple birthday present . . . and of course floor meetings, "turkey"?, raffles and officers proclaimed "jack of all trades" . . . the big "V" now the fifth in the thick and a "New Breed" born . . .

Valhalla, the sixth floor of Granville Towers Residence College, is named after the idyllic heaven of the Vikings. In Norse mythology, when a Viking warrior died, he went to Valhalla. There he reveled with fine companions in women, wine, and song. The residents of Valhalla House don't believe one must die to enjoy the reward of the Vikings. Valhallians, indeed, have the reputation of being the revelingest bunch of fellows in Granville.

GRANVILLE EAST

Granville Towers East is the newest and largest women's residence hall on the UNC campus. A modern nine-story structure set back from Franklin St., the dorm houses 450 women students.

Built in the fall of 1965, the dorm was opened to undergraduate women for the first time this fall. Previously, graduate women were housed there.

Although the dorm does most of its activities with its brother dorm — Granville West — the girls have originated some of their own projects.

Teas were held on each hall for the girls to meet the housemother, Mrs. Emily O'Neill, and Christmas parties climaxed a week of Secret Santa and Peanut giving before Christmas.

King College

King College's first full year as a Residence College may well prove to be its best. The Upper Quad and Spencer Women's Hall comprise this co-educational college at the heart of the Carolina Campus. In a concerted attack upon the vastness and impersonality of a rapidly growing university, the new administration immediately launched the college newspaper, completed the new social room in the basement of Mangum, and unraveled a full schedule of projects and social events for the 1966-1967 year. The King Cannon was eagerly awaited as it journeyed from a Massachusetts caster to arrive just in time for the Dook game. Ruffin, Grimes, and Mangum quickly renewed their dominance of the campus intramural scene and a spirit of college identity was sprouting in the grassless yards of King Place.

Morehead College

Begun in 1964 as a pilot project, Morehead has continued to maintain itself in the fore of the residence college program as was indicated last spring when it received the M. R. C. award for the most improved college on campus. This year under a capable administration, all programs have been deepened — resulting in the establishment of a highly successful incorporation with Cobb, the publication of a freshman orientation booklet, the foundation of a permanent college office, the beginnings of a tutorial system, a most ample social program and participation in service projects to the community.

It is in just such a manner that the six dorms of Aycock, Graham, Stacy, Everett, Lewis, and Cobb are entering into a rewarding system of co-ed residence college life.

Make more money 'n any smarty-pants college kid.

Aycock

I am the crumbling relic of other years:
A dirty building
Reeking with a type of decay.
No one mistakes me,
With my faulty plumbing and Burned stained floors for home.
Except those men who remain here.
The living, beating pulse within.

I am the third floor
With the Sigma Epsilon Chi House
And the Casino,
Dealing out education to the chosen few.
All lives here with his Quik Food Mart,
And others; animal, sus, fumbles.
They too have endured.

I am the second floor:
The intramural heart.
They call me home: Buddah, Jock, Dudson, Lyn
And more.
They are my soul, the upperclassmen:
Belvin, Charlie, Bryan, Claude, and Buddy
All working tirelessly for me.

And I am the first floor
With perverted writer like Rolli and Ron.
I am problem children like John and Don.
I am Mal-calm and the Keed with his racing team.
I am the Morehead College governor, Dwight.

What am I?
I am the best group of men on campus —
The classes of '70, '69, '68, and '67.
I am the living, breathing floors:
I am Aycock.

East Cobb

It all began with "Name Tag" parties . . . and there were those older and wiser who cautioned underclassmen in their majors over "do-it-yourself-sundaes" . . . about that Halloween combo dance we gave Morehead Residence College . . . muslin Homecoming displays always did read better at eye level . . . Woolen Gym? — those 100 National Merit Finalists were in our basement and our showers and our . . . Proud of Jenny F. and Susan S.: our Outstanding 69'ers! . . . Christmas parties for every mood: Faculty Tea, prim and proper; Tree-Trim, carefree and co-ed; seven-day Santas, secret and seen . . . exams go better with C.A.N. . . . Forest Theatre creatures hosted dorm box picnic . . . Senior Spring survivors finally signed OUT.

Everett

How does it feel to live in the best dorm on campus? How would we know? We live in Everett!

People in other dorms have showers on every floor. We live in Everett. People in other dorms have candy machines and cracker machines and popcorn machines and milk machines. But we live in Everett. Other dorms have doors on all their bathroom stalls. We live in Everett. Other dorms have telephones and fire extinguishers and students that work. But we live in Everett.

All we're number one in is damages. One of our football teams did not score until they made a safety in their fifth game. Our biggest man on campus is a guy who wrote a theme in Michael Paul's English class. Our biggest sport is archery in the Co-Rec Carnival. Our idea of fun is sitting around reading the inscriptions on old trophies. In our dorm crowds gather to watch Art Linkletter.

But we still have our moments. The police Department and we agree that Everett beer blasts are indeed something special. Can anyone ever forget the load of beauties in Shep's bus? Or was it the loaded beauties in Shep's bus?

Or back in the dorm, who can forget Underwood — the man with a size twenty shoe — so large that only his mouth can accommodate it. Or Robinson — the frustrated Faulkner who take it out on the second floor bulletin board. Or Hall — the man's man — first to fight — last to shower. Or great names from the tube room — Honeycutt, Soule, Funderburk, Hunter, Hough — men all who will fight at the drop of a hat or a switch from COMBAT.

Lewis

Here's an odious ode to that humble abode
That is known to us all as "Big Louie".
Now we've all seen it there; it's nothing too rare
'Cause we all know it's normal . . . or do we?

Just a Lewisite knows of Trachtenberg's clothes
Of Mothers, of Bobs, and Ukole
Of Sylvester's rattle, Mac's telephone prattle
And that Cobb girls are great as a whole;

Of Yates and his trains and Krichbaum's refrains
Or a blue man at old W.C.
A 201 blast that leaves the room gassed
Or the volume of room 103.

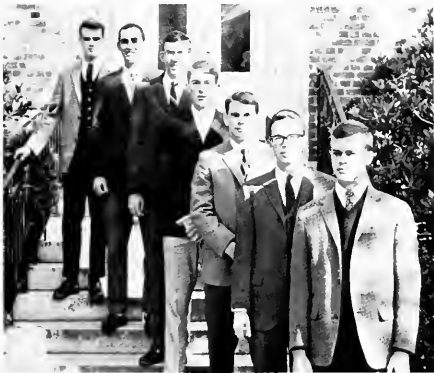

Larry Knott and his guns and Page's bad puns
And the second floor eight-man quartet,
The gallons of brew and the water fights too
Are the things that we'll never forget.

At eleven a throw so the warning cards go,
Little love notes from our favorite Bat Dean;
But he'll go out of his mind when the MRC's find
The vice ring that's in room 113.

One last Thought for the Day, "If you play you must pay"
Was once heard at the big Durham Fair.
As three of our best will surely attest
Forty bucks buys a big teddy bear.

CHEAT? US? NEVER!

OFFICERS — TOP TO BOTTOM: Rick Page (Pres.); Garland Carr (V.P.); Aaron Brothers (Sec.-Treas.); Don Eastwood (Intra. Mgr.); Keith Rusmisell (Sen.); Dave Shearon (Sen.); Stan Starnes (Sen.).

Stacy

Stacy House Meeting

Residence Hall Football Champions and Horseshoe Champions

Whoow-ee! Living in Stacy surely was an unforgettable experience this year. Starting everything off with a redecoration of the social room, Stacy had a center to operate from and with this accomplished Stacy had an active social program with receptions after football games, supper parties, cook outs, speakers and sports films. Topping all of this was the close knit group named the "Zulu". "Zulu's" athletic feats ranged from impossible to unbelievable. This group amazed the intramural scene by coming from nowhere to capture the Residence Hall Championship in football and then kicked mud in their eye by adding the Horseshoe Championship. All of this paid off as Stacy jumped to an early lead in the point standings. Most of all no one will be able to forget the loyal bunch that followed "Zulu" to every game and cheered with every play. This winning attitude caught on and was soon taken for granted. Much credit for this spirit and participation that soon engulfed Stacy can be given to our fine athletic director's hard and inspiring work.

Armstrong House

"Monday, we've got to get organized..."

"Don't jump!"

Armstrong House, the largest in Morrison Residence College, is named for a most distinguishing alumnus of the university, Mr. Roy Armstrong. Mr. Armstrong is the director of the Morehead Foundation and was director of admissions here for many years. His outstanding contributions to the university as well as his unselfish leadership in Chapel Hill church and civic organizations make us proud to be associated with such a fine person.

Our activities this year have ranged from campus clothing drives to steak dinners at the Pines which really turned out to be more than steak dinners (Trinken sie eine Bier?) to a most publicized invitation to a certain "prominent" commentator at a Raleigh TV station. House meetings have been fun and games with Bill, George, and Tom trying to cope with the other two or three members who attended.

Many other worthwhile activities were undertaken this year (although we cannot remember what they might be) and all in all Armstrong House has been something for all its residents to remember (like a bad dream).

By the way, Jesse, we can think of a thousand people whom we would rather have speak to us.

"You oughta see the second hole..."

Bahnson House

Drama Students act out Alice in Wonderland.

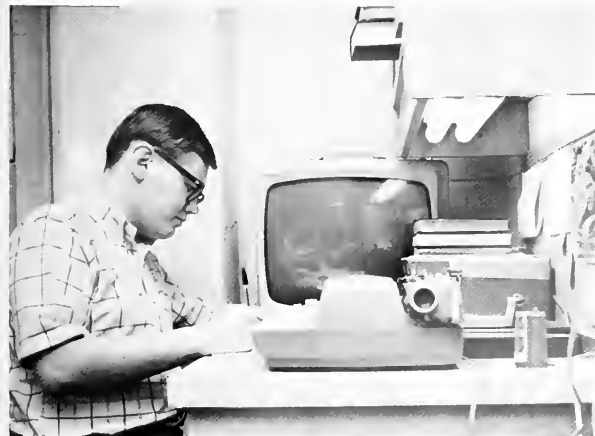

TOP TO BOTTOM: Hershel Wix, President; Larry Daniel, Senator; Lon Dogget, Vice-President.

Upon submitting our material for publication in the Yack, we, the men of BAHNSON HOUSE, realize that it is our duty to maintain the high standards which the Yack maintains. It is with this thought in mind that we refrain from discussing our orgies, our pitifully drunken freshmen, our handsomely drunken upperclassmen, the beautiful girls we used to date, and our good gross janitors. As we look back upon the year's trials and tribulations, we men of BAHNSON HOUSE smile with pride.

- Sept. 18 - President Wix elected. Long live the President.
- Sept. 19 - President Wix moves into BAHNSON HOUSE.
- Sept. 23 - Floor's First Beer Blast. Bill Boeric sets record for beer guzzling.
- Sept. 24 - Governor John Ellis declares B House a disaster area. Floor unanimously votes to send Bill Boeric out with card.
- Sept. 30-Oct. 9 - An attempt to establish a colony of students on the floor proves unsuccessful.
- Oct. 2 - Kelly Alexander, Jr. (room 332) organizes floor NAACP.
- Oct. 3 - BoE Sims room 332 organizes floor KKK.
- Oct. 4 - Jim Chapman is taken to the infirmary where the splinter from his skate axle is removed from his finger. Jim Barefoot and Steve Barefoot declare family name.
- Oct. 5 - Star athlete Jim Tall receives concussion when hit on the head by a bulge during intramural badminton game.
- Oct. 9 - Floor has mixer with Jamison Dorm in Greensboro. Picnic is rained when no one can find a bottle opener.
- Oct. 12 - Columbus Day.
- Oct. 13 - Allen Mason goes berserk. Burns his roommate's take-home quiz.
- Oct. 14 - Sut Sutton discovers that his roommate is a dog. Thank you Hanes Hall.
- Oct. 21 - Someone forgets and flushes away Sam Bridges' goldfish.
- Oct. 26 - Wayne Fogle cuts bottoms out of shoes so that he may go barefoot and no one will be able to tell.
- Oct. 27 - Floor advisor chained to toilet.
- Oct. 29 - Isaac Wernston mimes his first free flick in four years.
- Oct. 30 - Tennis champion Milton Haslam bounces his tennis ball against the wall for 98 consecutive hours.
- Oct. 31 - Figures show homosexual exultancy went up 2% during October.
- Nov. 6 - Sam Higbsmith gets head caught in railing.
- Nov. 12 - Third floor receives bill for new railing.
- Nov. 13 - New railing is installed and Sam is removed from old one.
- Nov. 16 - Resident Advisor Jim Hubbard asks to be reassigned to a new floor.
- Nov. 22 - Third floor holds human sacrifice to commemorate holiday season.
- Nov. 27 - Pilgrimage back to Morrison.
- Nov. 30 - Fd Circle voted floor sweetheart.
- Dec. 6-9 - Floor marathon Fiddlywinks game.
- Dec. 17 - Annual toast party in 1A room celebrating Beethoven's birthday.
- Dec. 25 - Third floor declares national holiday. Chase Cafeteria is closed.
- Jan. 2 - Free aspirin to all hanger students.

Edwards House

The men of Edwards house are now the proud parents of a young South Vietnamese child. The adoption was financed with funds raised from the sale of MIGHTY MO #1 buttons, and provides the child with brand new clothing, blankets, household equipment, medical care, social services, postal services, monthly cash grants, and educational assistance such as tuition grants and school supplies.

Edwards House receives periodical progress reports on the child, and a monthly correspondence has been established through a translator provided by the Foster Parents' Plan, Inc. This organization also distributes any packages which the members of Esquire House send to the child. Because of this and other services rendered to the members of the family of the foster child and because of the monthly cash stipends, the standard of living and the morale of the family is bolstered, along with the economy of the community. Thus, in a small but significant way, Edwards House of Morrison Residence College has helped to further international friendship and understanding.

Edwards House men take time for "soul".

This year the members of Fetzer House have had the privilege of having "F" House called "home" for all the male students in the Freshman Honors Program. This was the first year an attempt has been made to put all the Honors students together in order that they might benefit from each other's knowledge. From the results, it was a great success.

Under the "totalitarian" leadership of Bogenschultz, Jenkins, and Baggett, the members of Fetzer House managed to work together not only in scholastic achievement, but also in intermural activities. At the time of this printing, "F" House was currently in the top ten of the residence hall division in intermural activity. However, the highlight of the year came when Fetzer House was selected as the testing ground for classes in the residence halls. In November, Dr. John Semonche, Modern Civilization instructor, held his regular Honors seminar in the study room of "F" House. This was the first class ever to be held in a residence hall. The success of this experiment gave new incentive to this idea and, hopefully from this, the residence hall may prove to be more than a place to sleep for a majority of its residents in the near future.

Griffith House

Amen!

Take it in the ear!

LEFT TO RIGHT: Bob Newlin, Resident Advisor; Don Lassiter, President; Bill Darrah, Vice-President; Travis Abbott, Resident Advisor; Larry Annas, Secretary and Treasurer.

The Gang! Due to Federal law concerning reproduction of U.S. Currency, something is missing in this picture.

Come on! I dare you to do that again!

OFFICERS, L. TO R.: Sec-Treas. — Jay Cutcliffe, Pres. — John Connor, V. P. — Don Westbrook.

The boys of "I" house have done it again! After starting off the year with a splattering success at La Pizza, the Iredell boys began to dig in for another tough academic grind, but intramural manager Bill Jones had other ideas. The "I" house football team, led by the quick hands of Jones, carried the team to the campus finals. While the jocks were busy with their athletics, a new sport was being formed within the hallowed walls; with captain Sonny Peperat the helm of the tube team, the less energetic Iredellites spent many hours in front of the temperamental tube. One of the year's high points was the selection of the Iredell house sweetheart, Sally Buie, as Miss Morrison.

The boys from "I" house pulled off what was probably the greatest engineering feat in the short history of Morrison, when they expressed the Season's Greetings in the form of a three story high "Ho, Ho!"

Harris House

H-House, named for Louis Harris, a UNC graduate and now famous public pollster, is known more appropriately outside South Building circles as Hell House. Our residency is formed from the usual combination of intellectual hopefuls, sports fans, and would you believe? G.A.S.-sers!

Freshmen, all of whom failed to pass the House screening but managed to get in anyway, make up almost half of our residents. Winston refugees, reconstructed Yankees and draft dodgers compose the remainder. A few Moreheads and pseudo-intellectuals were thrown in this year in a last ditch effort to raise our academic standing, but they have grudgingly given in to our endless hours of TV watching, music loving, water bombing and co-ed sessions. Not since Ellis threatened to skip out after the Tams fiasco has Hell House shown more promise.

HI-LITES OF OUR YEAR: We sponsor TAMS and break even . . . Named Number One House in Number One Dorm . . . Mixer with Nurse's Dorm with Englishmen supplying music . . . Dook weekend saved from being a total loss by Gammon's stereo and floor party complete with dates . . . Our search for a mascot ends in dismal failure when Collins fails to come up with a frog—still carries around a hopeful gig, though . . . Milo disrupts life at Dook, borrowing 40 rolls of toilet paper . . . volleyball team goes 4-0 without playing a game . . . Forten's telephone company disbanded by Jernigan . . . Civils' political ambitions heightened with election as Chief Frog . . . "Duke" goes to Texas . . . Jock's eternal triangle is GTE . . . I-A Straw sweats the draft . . . L.S. cleans house . . . Noel is plagued by the Phantom Frog . . .

We cease to amaze even ourselves.

Scott College

College days are made of both the tangible and intangible. Scott College, in its first full year of existence, provided both rooms for its residents — and an air of friendship and fellowship. Scott College tossed away the myth that a dormitory is only walls and hard beds. Instead, our residence college was a site of intellectual pursuit, social functions, and friendly gatherings.

Maybe it was the free juke-box, or the TV set, or the bull-sessions, or Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs. Perhaps what held us together was our newspaper or radio station. Maybe our legislative leaders.

We are freshmen, sophomores, juniors, seniors, grads. Some of us have been living in what is now Scott College for five years. All of us remember the football passed around in the back, or the dances we had, the quiet hours — and the not-so-quiet hours. Little things, big things. It went beyond four walls and a bed — because we enjoy living in Scott College.

Our Governor

"Say Whiskey"

Avery

(SENATORS): David Preston, Van Denning, Steve Taoger, Dan Funderburk

Avery rocketed to new heights of activity and radiated cooperation and energy this year. The Hay Ride was a real blast. Everyone got a bang out of the Sex-Bowl with Alderman-McIver and relished the subsequent seminar with the UNC marriage counselor. Dean Smith previewed the basketball season and other sports personalities appeared periodically. For the humanitarians Avery featured a Peace Corps speaker. (No one joined) Reverend Cansler shed light on the "God is Dead" philosophy and was a frequent and much welcomed visitor. Tournaments and contests whirled about intermittently and were very well received. The big payload was launched in the form of an inter-Avery newspaper, The Onlooker. The Dean of Men's office hailed the publication as being "a fine newspaper in the tradition of Avery House." The launching of Avery's spring film forum was no bomb either. The "astro-jocks" dominated the intramural scene with a track championship, a fourth in several other areas. Expectations are high for a place in the top three dorms. The social orbit, when the fellows weren't off getting waylaid, was well made. Mixers and a Valentine's bash that would have put cupid out of business were standouts. Project supervisors were Rusty Taylor, Mel Wright, Jim Hugenschmidt, and Wane Cannedy.

D. H. Taylor was our pilot; Ric Daughtry co-pilot; David Preston navigator;

Bill Pittman in charge of fuel and a cast of thousands.

(Would you believe 264)

Avery's best year was a full-phased success

and, except for the radioacademic fallout, a totally enjoyable explosion.

D. H. Taylor — Pres.

(SENATORS): Bill Cathey, Dan Johnston, Pat Nanney, John Block

Distinguished campus authorities will always remember the 1966-67 academic year as the Year of Parker. For the factual-minded, Parker was voted not only the Best Dorm and Most Improved Dorm on Campus, but at mid-year had placed in the top ten dorms in intramurals (tenth place). Parker's numerous and orgiastic juke box and combo parties enabled our dorm with Scott College to surpass all fraternity recreational activity. However, sorority efforts outclassed Parker in every field.

One particular "coke" party featuring the spectacular "Aqualads" witnessed a huge turnout. It was termed an "overwhelming success." One high Administration official even allegedly admonished several students for "corruptive practices."

Providing thrusts and great efforts in Parker's development and prominence, in addition to our officers, were able and capable freshmen such as James Smith, Scotty McCullough and Tommy Farris. The lush Miss Mary Ray, Parker's sweetheart, will undoubtedly be remembered well by all of our men. Of course, Miss Ray reigns from the beautiful, fair city of Fayetteville.

Teague

The amazing Spiderman kicks off another year for the Teague Dugs . . . Relative leadership at the ZOO under Lee, Bauguess, Stockton, and Smith . . . The Word to be heard —

ADX is a tradition among traditions. We managed to have our usual annual awards — many flames, but no clusters. A Soul Brother Keg Party soon followed. How sweet it is. The first "Grit" was a big success in South Building. Mr. Clean put the bad-mouth on Barney. We blew it out this fall as our drunken Snoopy attested that Happiness is Homecoming. For our Beat Dook Parade float we planned to "Dump on Dook."

On nice days we had the Sex Bowl; on rainy ones, the Mud Bowl. As warmer weather rolled around, Alexander Beach was covered with our gross, semi-nude bods, and the surf was up at the Alexander Curl. Our Poobahs make the big-time once again, and the Brown Growler out-roared the Toothless Wonder in four straight Frubar Contests. Ed Pierce, Original Soul Brother #1, checks in every now and then to see if there have been any good frisbee trips lately.

Everyday occurrences were our 3:00 AM poker games, a trash can or two down the hall, T. V. Seminar, reminding Winston that we're still over here thinking about them, the 10:55 train pulling out for the Circus Room, soapy moons and red eyes.

All the special garbage and even the regular trash we did were actually great. ADX will be no more, though. We'll miss the brotherhood of Poobahs, but we can still say for it — ALLA-KA-ZIZ! ALLA-KA-ZAM!

Joyner

BEULAH, PEEL ME A GRAPE

Within the walls that once held the Joyner spirits, within the halls that once held the Joyner fashions, within the stalls that once held the Joyner movements, let not a maiden pass.

The year '66-'67 could not have been better. Homecoming brought Best Dorm Display to Joyner for its 30 ft. high RAMESES saying, "There's no Deac like a beat Deac." Joyner was the talk of the Beat Dook Parade with its float, "Go to Helms, Dook." Christmas spirits flowed in and from every Joyner resident. Our lovely Carroll Fagan was more than a peach to us.

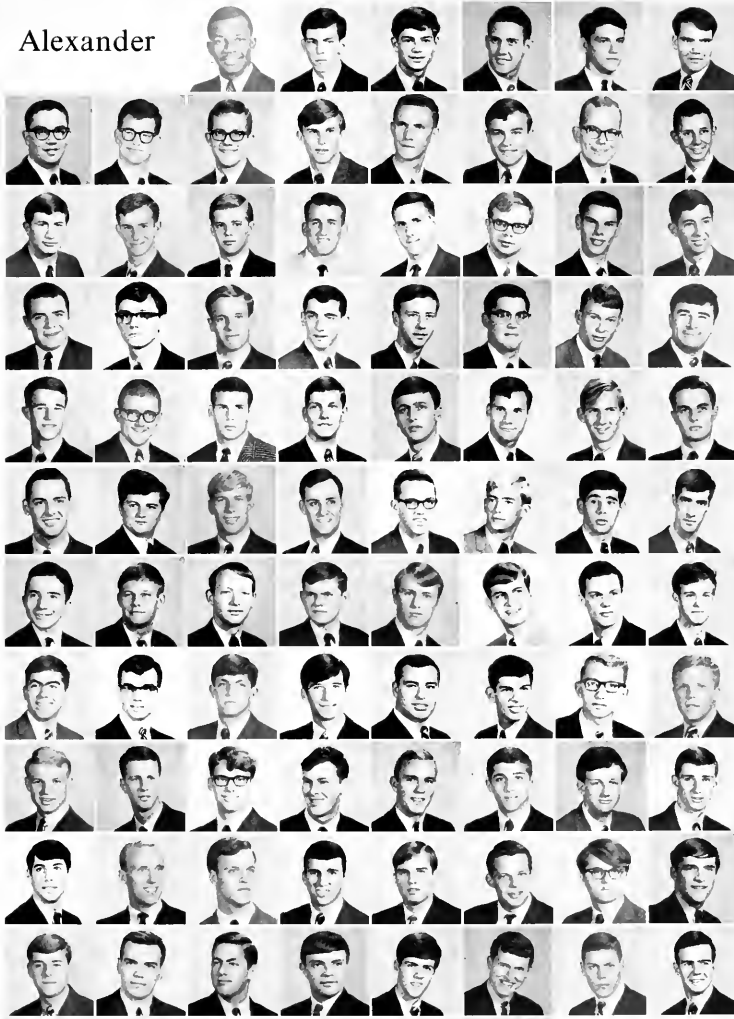

We end our year with a last request: Girls, rever the Joyner Jocks as Mae West did her men — "It's not the men in your lives that count, it's the life in your men." Now we take our walks to South Campus.

The long walk from South Campus

KENAN DORMITORY

Kenan Dormitory, the woman's graduate dormitory, was the most heterogeneous dorm on campus. There were quite a number of foreign students in the dorm and students in every field of graduate study. We were led by Mrs. Brittain, the dorm hostess, Adelaide Austell, president, and Abby Little, vice president-treasurer. Jean Harney and Karen Hahn organized the social activities. Kenan had the annual open house in September with grad students from all over the campus. Chancellor House was the guest speaker at the annual Thanksgiving Banquet at the Carolina Inn. He played the harmonica and told us of earlier days at Carolina. An Open-open House was held at Christmas, with tree-trimming in the parlor later. A social was held in February with Carr Dorm, while the annual dorm picnic in May concluded the dorm's social activities for the year. Allison Bush and Jean De Bardelaben led the dorm in its quest for the W. A. A. trophy for the third year in a row.

ΑΔΠ sparks through another year — but time was on our side, so do we like it? Love it!

So who left the water running again and again and again? Judy, everybody's Love, mopped up too. But the year has passed on with C'well closing one eye as Barbara trips on by. Lynn Brownell had something to do everyday — "Now what was it?" ΑΔΠ had its own claim to fame. After all, not everybody has the qualifications to be Benson's Mule Queen! Right Bobbie?

Grubber and Penny really stuck with the vital statistics and it was the year that Kathy Matthews learned what it really meant to be a "maid." Say Fletch, you have beautiful control and what patience! Holly managed to conquer all she set out to — econ and golf. Nobody saw Ann or Cubby all year long except those up at midnight or 7 a.m. "I just don't really believe in being pinned," exclaimed Debbie as she rode out of sight. But she just got back yesterday! . . . and the South Carolina Rose rode off again! And if you were looking for M.M. or Ibby, they were standing sideways over there. Diane Prince insisted all year that Fuquay-Varina was not a dog chow. Well, what is it? Who did Margaret think she was fooling with her kitty lit books in the med library? We can happily report that Emily got completely organized and did it all on her honor. And if anything looked a little too liberal — ask Karen if they wear that up North.

With Craig there, Winter wasn't far behind. Of course we were all behind — it's been a long time comin' but a change is gonna come. Nancy Henderson started her own St. Catherine cult, in her spare time of course, and McGregor kept a close eye on Chester Rabbitt. We would have mentioned Betty Thompson but that got censored.

And so that was that year that was in the gray house over on Rosemary St. — one of those years. Bonds of friendship, friendship — Here's to αδπ, drink it down!

Alpha Delta Pi

Goal—another trophy!

ΑΔΠs at home.

Who said it doesn't look like a Sultan's head?

Ya'll - Rush Starts Tomorrow! You've Got To Get A Little SPIRIT!

Oink

Chi Omega

This is for you, Herbie, and I really mean it!!! The year begins in typical Chi O fashion when Irma is disqualified from Franklin Street Bicycle Slalom for crashing into Carolina Theater pillars. All Y Court can say is "Old Well!!" Chris opens dancing school to teach all the Yankees the grit-shuffle and in reciprocal agreement, Fowler loans out her zoner clothes for the SAE mixer. Helen gets a brand new Kandy Kolored Tangerine Flake Streamlined Body, while Leyman manages to be tacky in an instant. Crews does half gainer off fifty foot cliff into pile of rocks and Guuuuhsty gets the Foto. Ricklet always uses two cans of spray net, dahlin', even though Franklin ruins "weird Chi O" image at Phi Delt house.

Be sure to remind everyone that if Robert calls, she's studying at the Tavern, and Louise will tell her 2 a.m. frog to hop on. Everything is saved when Fire promises all good things to those who pay their bills on time and Connelly psyches out the pledges. Mary's Volvo just keeps rolling along.

Peggy's "Chapel Hill girls" have a rough time of it, but Body finds a Squatty Body. P. D. has gold stars in her eyes for student government and Dr. Zhivago, while Reitzel opens her own A.S.P.C.A. And never let it be said that 3,000 miles kept Stoney from being an EB in spirit, at least.

Roma Leak receives 3 a.m. visit from some rowdy organization and all Eager can say is "Buzz off, Bosco!" Slick Phyllis dates out of DKE house . . . once! Margie organizes a dating bureau for the Beta's. Doda extends her phenomenal memory power to about six minutes. Tilghman dates at Zete house and you know, I think she really likes it! Jody somehow makes her dubay during rush and Elder Witt is LATE????

What a year — what a great coup!

President Merry Swanson Dusts Our Trophies.

Around the Delta Shelter, everything is 10-4. Dixie in her blue dress says, "Smile, Gail, you're on Candid Camera." Nott takes a walking tour of Carrboro. Maria loves Europe — guide, Vamire Moo takes blood from Swanson's Phi Deltas. Warren sneaks food for Carlton. With the Daisies as judges, Hannah wins BB contest. "This is the FLEA calling the Big C." Katie does traditional dance at Fiji mixer. Eva flies off the front porch. Courtney and Cynthia scale the water tower. "When better women are made W&L men will — Oh my goodness." Toni has a puppy love. Kelly erupts. Parham helps herself at Harr's. Purdie gazes out the window (for the Prowler??).

M. J. C. says, "My garden peas, a Whooping Nun!" Will the real Phantom please stand up? Our GRRREAT-Pledges halloween us at 6:00 a.m. Watch that last step, Buie! Knight pulls an all-weeker. Who is the Pansy-of-the-Week? Raggedy Ann Landis says, "My girls are just tur-rif-fic!!!"

Our Lil Sisters Bring Halloween Goodies... Yum! Yum!

It All Began With Delta Carousel

The Pledges Combine Effort With The Betas To Produce A Winning Float

Mary Ball, President

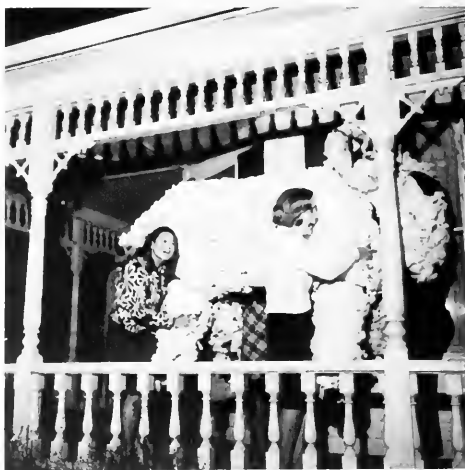

Youth springs eternal, especially "all in the fall": feet scratching brick walks, voices shrieking frantic recognition, people (some in particular) who do not recognize. They wonder; they ask, among the multitude of questions to be asked; "What is $\kappa\alpha\theta$?" Those who think they know, those with the ultimate experience of one chapter meeting, have yet to appreciate the opportunity for martyrdom during Fall Formal Rush. Only in Theta-land is a house not a home — it's a lodge. But that's not Chi Psi-land. Do Chi Psi's feature Dogpatch with all its special attractions? Yea! Hit your rushee with a flying cork! Have some kickapoo joy-juice, but not too much: you won't be able to make it to the next party. We also serve hash in the true Southern style.

And the motto of the first ten days of life on campus is definitely "Love Thy Neighbor." We love them so much, all 25 new neighbors. (Some old neighbors were inevitably lost, by due process of law.) Theta's kite has flown high. It hit a low ceiling only when it turned a shoe-shine into a boot-lick. Are our brothers monks? But we worry more about our sisters. Will Peach survive the endless telephone calls? That was a problem even before she became Homecoming Queen. Will Theta rack up scholastically or be racked up? We even adopted new Greek letters — SP — Sigma Rho of Safe Politics. There was also the Great Float Campaign; it did not pertain to flotation of the rush kind. The Tar Heels attempted to float past the Dook Devils.

It was a year that said to us: "Hope does spring eternal." We have played, and we have won. A toss of the dice to tell us if $\kappa\alpha\theta$ was to be, was to mean. We will yet see the kites flying high in Polk Place, and when we once have seen them, we will see them again — in our memories and in the kites of years to come.

Kappa Delta

Solving the problem of how to succeed in K. D. without really trying takes a lot of effort. First, a fire in the attic brought warmth to our little green house; careful with that extinguisher. You "might" put it out. After warmth, organization may be considered a key to success. We have social organization which entails Halloween masks for underprivileged children and we have Co-Rec organization which means Wanda taking names with vigor. We have certain more personal organizations including three engaged girls. We even have special projects organization consisting of everyone dressed for hard labor and over at select fraternity houses for displays and floats; 5:00 A.M. Royalty definitely means success with Mrs. Lynch as queen for the year. Following Royalty are certain Royal Orders of things. The B.O.W. seem to have had a good year although Jamieson has developed an aversion to light bulbs — especially those which need replacing. The Great Black Rose struck with only a little warning spreading good cheer and pledge paddles — ? (in the five o'clock hour). Speaking of orders, what's the "Lizard" business? Who succeeds when swapnight is near disaster, when toothbrushes are used to clean the walk, of when the hall is knee deep in "noisy" litter? As a last resort, parties make everyone feel successful; only please don't eat the Fresca so we can have mixers for the mixer. Cupid personified with pink legs, Marlon Brando and alligators really succeed at any pledge dance.

Mr. Clean? Ha! I know you're a dirty old man!

Kappa Gamma

Eeny. Meeny. Miney. Mo.
 Catch a Kappa by the toe.
 If she hollers, let her go,
 For there are things you first must know.
 Archer loves to hula dance
 With willing waiters and half a chance.
 When Tasker's brain cells begin to jell
 On her hands she walks quite well.
 What is that light-footed tripping I hear?
 It's Hurricane Jennings shaking the house in third gear.
 If to gargle you have a thirst,
 We'll let Schaum out of her closet to play nurse.
 Through yonder window shines a light —
 Midget's staying up all night.
 On her pony with our chapter to back
 Charges White Knight Lipford, the leader of the pack.
 Newsy Susie always has something to share,
 Just walk right in and pull up a chair.
 "Study habits are better than frivolous capers, It's organiza . . ." oops, Mary's forgotten her papers!
 Margo is always proper and clean,
 "Teasdale, ain't that mud in your hair I just seen?"
 All Kappas feel silly as sheep
 When they view Becky's "Word For The Week."
 "Terry, come down! It's really not fair!
 Turn off that propeller, come out of the air!"
 Billie loves art and to dabble in goo,
 But must she stick her fingers in chop suey, too?
 A picture of Barach I wish I could shoot
 In her white textured and high-topped boots.
 Vernon and Speas think the "Pony's" the rage;
 We ought to put them in a "Go-Go" cage.
 To the wedding march Toni should write a song to sing
 Entitled "Please, girls, to me all your problems bring."
 Beavers will be a teacher soon:
 She'll teach her children all about the moon.
 Who's that clutching the fire-escape there?
 It's Pledge Ruler Schuler with curlers in her hair.
 "Sutton, the philosopher, why the blues?
 Did you a note to yourself lose?"
 Roach-Woman Deemer her fear she shows
 While Oreco Hinkle strikes a fireside pose.
 Under the hair-dryer Janet dreams,
 Safe and secure while her night-light gleams.
 A-plus Sue has no cares,
 Will someone please help her up the stairs?
 With a 2-to-1 season, we have to be blunt,
 Marf, drop back ten and punt!
 Into the room Weldon and Ed happily jog
 To get Horney in "The Third Floor Synagogue."

Mrs. Marylou Huffman, Kappa Housemother

As Head Bottlewasher, Lee is neat and tidy as can be.
 Hysterically Lucy is giggling at Hollister searching for her key.
 So Eeny. Meeny. Miney. Mo.

"In the land . . ." there's HOPE for $\Phi\mu$'s even after House Tour Party. Pledges, do you remember?

Lynch chases Golden Shield Knight off porch while Natalie tries to remove cadaver juice by 6:00 party. Lulie B. poses as a Christmas tree with Jenkins high on top. Mix match shoes and Dotty's flowers attached with Grape Bubblegum to dead goldfish adorn the tree. (quite different from the $\sigma\nu$ tree, Huh?) Gloom and Doom Hussey announces fire drill — oops I mean air raid — here comes Wheeple Whauple. 'Gator to the floor with loose Wadleigh and Blayne grossly in the lead. Rumbblings from the pink room lure the tour upstairs. Pres. Harrell presides over trial in which Debby is hung in effigy while F. Duck watches on. Caroline and Gail pour over Bride while Lauder flashes fake diamond and Kessy prepares weekend itinerary. Suzy Rushee discovers that the commotion in the Squashed pumpkin room is only a re-enactment in the $\delta\nu$ - $\phi\kappa$ football game. Oh, Tootles is limping. Jumper vasculatates for help while Neato snuggles with the referee and Howdy Doody and June in her orange sweater cheer for Dial? Jenkie reminds Lynn and Cynthia to sign out for Harry's. Cushen has to stay and doctor her knees. "So long Rushees . . ." Did Martie meet a scary? — "They looked sooooo goooooood."

Phi Mu's were the winners of the Good Ship Hope trophy this year.

Pi Beta Phi

Three Pi Phi "swingers" in a second childhood spree.

The $\pi\phi$ Safari gets underway as Joan arrives dragging her chain followed by Leapin' Liz in a soccer suit balancing a tennis racket on her nose. They're out for big game! What's this? Red caught a giraffe and Sally, "love all the friends," a superfish! That sound, is it a moose or Flossie? Then along comes Shaky Stella (yea, yea, yea!) expertly escorting Sharon along those difficult (?) steps. Menefee and Buzzy bob along to the native music while searching for the birds. They spot Audrey and Brenda chirping charmingly in ye old MROA tree. There's Karen looking for ducks. Suddenly Sara and her Diddy-Bops come upon a strange sight. Seated around a camp fire they see Patty studying, Mosob knitting, Sarah playing bridge, and Peggy swatting a Y-Bug.

After a long trip, the group stops for a rest and Brooks promptly makes a sandwich for Jack with one hand while writing two papers with the other. Pun demands further appropriations saying that the cost of big game has gone up. Judy yells "How are we going to know what time it is out here?" Deftly Boose produces her alarm clock which never seems to go off.

The safari is again underway as Martha announces that we'd better hurry to meet the deadline. Carolyn adds, "Let's not be pikers!" Everyone starts off excitedly for it seems as though a catch is in sight. Susie, bringing up the end of the line, turns to ward off a lizard, but is quite overcome. Still, the $\pi\phi$'s march into the sunset with high expectations.

The transfer student whose sorority is not represented on this campus soon discovers (or is discovered by) the Stray Greek Organization. Early in the fall she is presented with a green ribbon, a symbol of her status in a new kind of sisterhood. During Rush the Stray Greeks serve as an impartial liaison between the sorority and the rushee. Stray Greeks further participate in Rush by advising rushees, operating the Panhellenic post office, and assisting with the Panhellenic reception.

After Rush, Stray Greeks meet weekly for Wednesday night suppers. Contact with sorority life is maintained by participation in Pan-hel cultural programs, swap night, and service projects. The new Stray Greek soon discovers that although the organization does not replace her sorority, it does offer the opportunity of fostering new friendships and creating new bonds of sisterhood.

The $\alpha\tau\omega$ Fraternity was founded in Richmond, Virginia, on September 11, 1865. Its three founders were students at Virginia Military Institute. Today the Fraternity is represented on campuses in forty-two states and Canada. Its symbolic colors are white, green, sky-blue, and gold. The white rose is the Fraternity's flower. The $\alpha\delta$ Chapter at the University of North Carolina was established in 1879, and is therefore one of the oldest fraternities at Carolina.

AT Ω 1966-1967: The M.R.O.A. flails across the Chapel Hill Weekly. Abdul corners the camel market. Admiral Seed gets twenty-one guns. Eadie and Crazy tour D.C. with special guides. Hood wins the bugging contest. Speedy spends a night's vigil in Howell Hall. Recorder's Court and City Solicitor love us. Marcellie goes mod. "Nouveau Riche" Currin rushed by football team. Jane Lu-Lon replaces Wally. Angel's face gets bigger. Wannamaker goes deer hunting on way to class. Turner gets "pinned". Patti gives Sticky a ruse schedule. Brad's peaches turn to pickles and ice cream. Lady Luck smiles on Keezel? Sunshine travels across the big water. Callan forced to buy plastic $\pi\phi$. Can't Hit A Lick Ric's mind in a London particular. Curtain opens on $\alpha\delta$ Don and Bigga Louisa. Jew and Hindu originate new cult. Bix refuses Westmoreland's invitation. Root holds "Sunrise Service" in drunk tank. Teague looks into her eyes. Yates "studies" at apartment? Bag gets "the old water trick."

β House "floats" through another year, as General Mitchell conquers twice. β 's the center of all campus Tams she-bangs while 11 bull pledges make good. Sparks gets slaughtered and the β House goes to the dogs. Three amateur kahoona's shown up by pledge hodad but Rags rolls out the barrel over to Pikas. Skimo gets combination Phi Delt-Granville ball. Poo frats it up at rec center. Hey Earl, who slapped the back of your neck? Jimmy Mitchell's brother balls Jimmy Mitchell. Sambo celebrates 39th birthday for the 43rd time. Gator Club survives injuries, and Gross Out chairs 13½ minute chapter meeting — "Too long, guys." Who stole Rod's French 75 book? Patterson and Betts' ball machine loses franchise as Broadhurst makes Stout comments. Troy's inserts element of lust into House vesper. "Plunk your magic cello-twanger, Froggie-Bag" for Golden-Boy Uhrich inherited a date from rest of chapter. Raditz celebrates Baptist rites with mystic robes and head dance when Townsend "loses" pin three times. The University — "Go head, animule" backs Pfc Hairston who establishes β Chapter at Ft. Bragg as Lunger affiliates. Byrd dons teeth and cape but gets spooked unaided by Godde who fights a case of the Rons. Fads Kulp IS official house clothes coordinator snickers as Flick-team Capt. Patterson gets "fired." Winton outfoxes outlaw element but undaunted Betts backflips to 2 & 8. Bag on rebound, tries to duplicate the "Great Rogers Tailspin." Hey Grit, there's some woman on the phone about the room rent for your hundred dollar Chick. Ace D. J. Steps almost had a little Hope but settled for a brown helmet.

An Evening With Trader Vic

Pledge Weekend, '66.

Drink, Pussy, Drink

Upon returning to the Lodge this fall, the Chipsis looked back on a great spring semester. Under the Family Man the Lodge had finished second in the R. B. House competition. The leadership turnover brought considerable fallout of Hair, but no loss in ability. After a fab first annual Black Ball in the Batcave, Pledge Weekend featured a formal evening at the Villa Tempesta and a Bowery Party at the Lodge. And to conclude an imaginative spring semester, the Chipsis organized the first black-tie frog-jumping contest.

But this fall has been even better than last spring. Kathy Matthews was elected Maid of $\chi\psi$ from an outstanding group of candidates. Under the auspices of the Planter's Wart, numerous theme parties and the music of the Zoo-keepers, Monzas, etc. have highlighted the social program. Trader Vic came to town one Saturday and came to three days later.

In the meantime $\alpha\sigma\delta$ contributed a Chicken dinner to Vietnam, while Murrdog and the Batpussy moved into the Batcave. The tube team was thrilled when Garbagemouth and Elephant Tracks installed a new rotor antenna. In celebration of something, Thanksgiving brought one marriage, three engagements, and three pinnings — but when will Laura make his move? Speaking of which, Yelvie is being PW'ed from the Philippines — beat that, Lash Larue.

And so, as the east end of the third floor floats merrily toward Pop's, $\chi\psi$ hopes that everybody had as good a year as we did. And, as always, PES.

Delta Upsilon

We have a lot to remember about this past school year.

We began fall semester by bringing home two trophies: one for best DU chapter in the nation and one for best fraternity on the UNC campus.

Then we had our first chapter meeting after initiation of a bumbling herd of thirty. T. C. Craver couldn't be found among the mass of brothers. Herr Furror Heacock called for messages, memorials, and petitions. Rogers (3.6) Toms rose slowly and asked what that meant. Then announcements. Robin Hood announced a new flick at the Criterion. Finger wanted more pledges around the house. R. J. got engaged. Freeman got married. Cords said something, but nobody understood. The Baron won't get pinned again. Bama wants quiet during dinner. Blaze won the roll throwing contest.

Then followed the Homecoming parties. There was the combo party: Watson on the floor doing the "turtle," Franklin (brothers and sisters) Freeman preaching the ways of sin, and Pencil watching all. And the kitchen party: Slebs propped up against the milk machine with a gallon of P. J. slung over his shoulder, Mase standing in a corner glassy-eyed, but contented, and Burge popping out windows in the cabinet. And the smaller Dey house parties, but we don't have to telegraph what they were. Then starting at two in the morning, the "let's run free" party.

These are only a small part of the memories, but they are this past year.

Just Like A Teddy Bear!

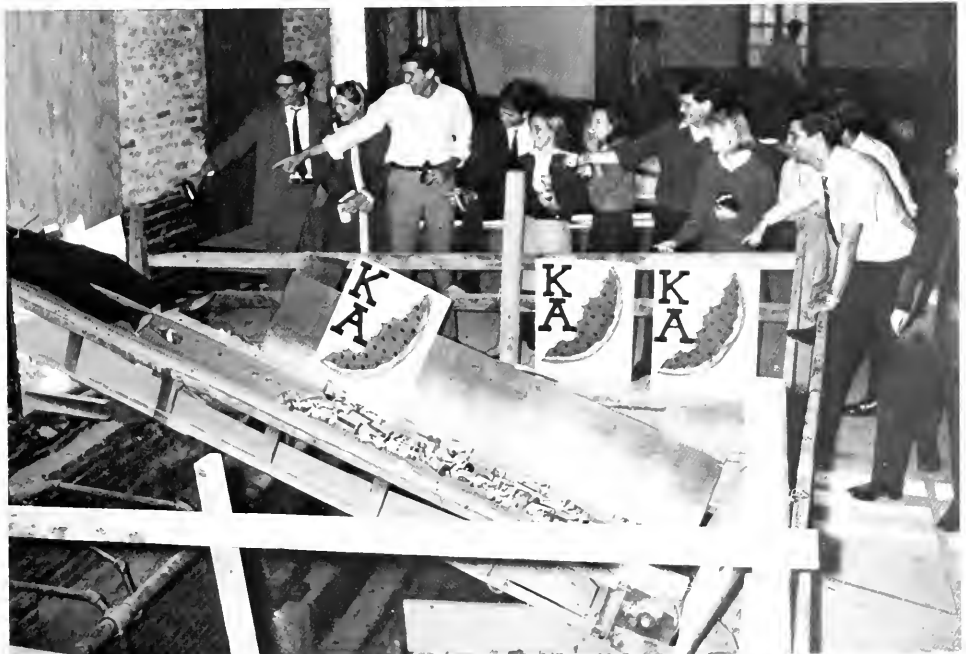

Another interesting year at 110 West Cameron! "Southern Gentleman" Genung led the boys back to a burned-out house. Things proceeded as usual, however, amid renovation and "reconstruction" mixers were "in." The Travis boys dominated the political scene, while Perry conducted track practice at Clarence's. Toole pledged $\pi\phi$; Brew went Tri-Delt. Wills was gored by a dead deer. The football season was concluded with a well-received float in the Beat Dook parade.

When winter rolled around, Newman took an academic "time out," and Ringhaver was pinned. Christy and Shreve had stroked W. and L., and Coppedge and Traskie had moved to the weight room. Kuasimoto moved in with Shepherd, who resembled an X-1S.

As spring approached, Tygart went out for lacrosse again. Barnett directed the "O. P. Quest," while Williams ran the social program. Priest "kept house," while Smith and White headed the Apartment Set. Orr picked new cheerleaders, and Rhyne headed for the beach. Bump concluded a successful intramural effort. Fawsett was still "bitter." As the year ended, all was well and the K.A.'s had passed the grits and given 'em hell.

Two Of A Kind.

Every House Has Its Show-off

Due to Federal law concerning reproduction of U.S. currency, something is missing in this picture.

I Hate Beer.

Λχϱ was founded at Boston University in 1909. This makes it one of the youngest fraternities in the nation, yet during its relatively short span of existence it has grown into the second largest fraternity in the nation with 160 chapters and over 95,000 initiated members. This phenomenal growth can be attributed to Lambda Chi's leadership in the development of the modern fraternity and its emphasis on the concept of developing the whole man.

In this same spirit of progressivism, γϱΥ began the year by returning early and redecorating over fifty per cent of the house. During this period, Greg Anderson, Thurston Cobb, Clark Kattenburg, and Pete Rainey served double duty as carpenters and orientation counselors.

To kick off the football season, the Lambda Chi cavalcade led the parade to the "Beat State" pep rally, revealing to all one of Moo U's (and Charlie Noggle's) best kept secrets. The following night the patio rocked to the sounds of the Markels as we opened what has proved to be our fullest, swingin'est social program yet.

Still gathering momentum, the Lambdas rolled into fall rush and picked up one of the largest and finest pledge classes on campus. The pledges lost no time in proving they were far above average as they supplemented their regular program with unique and even inspired undertakings of their own planning.

With much of the year still ahead of us, the prospects are wonderful. Gaudeamus igitur!

The tires are great!

President, Rick Crowder

ΦΔΘ's off and running, takes football and track gold, while Bud leads hoards of horny followers with band of gold — Good deal, Birdman survives “dern quezzes” — Koretizing hires Mac as personnel director — Stevie Wonder calls on NATO as French guns open up, but Haymouze tells of saddle club. Houston's 007 gets good job in D. C. while Crow stays in his own nest. Tasmanian Devil leads Soph. demolition crew. Wally ways they'll come and go, but Doc will live on forever. Ning, H. S. and Bubbles hibernate, but emerge to devour the golden Lamb while Casey, keeps studying — University sets up cultural, intellectual, and foreign aid center in University Gardens with Smiles, Alpine, and Johnny Eyes in command. Jimmy keeps babysitting in Danville, but future looks bright — The Shire breaks hearts and settles down; oh well, bip, bam, thank you Pam! Rumor: Lacrosse capt. likes rat cheese. Horse attends one chapter meeting to vote for removal of phone booth doors. Billy Baseball takes out intramural liability insurance and TAP leads roundballers. The Oozzer takes Art under wing as brotherhood takes Rocky Mt. discount and cleans sugar and B. S. from party room. Beav gets chance and looks to June 3 and next fall. Wrennie thanks Kate and Ri for new Phikeia trainees. Shifty makes φβκ but fights off frequent dumb attacks . . . So it goes — on and on — Remember the Yankees, the Celtics, and the Colts. Q. P. Team

From the deepest corners of oblivion, Fiji's return to the warm academic womb for another year of serious deliberation and quiet contemplation of the finer things in life. The Grunt-man rolls in, and quickly gains campus-wide recognition as the world's largest living feces. Bear Cub returns and establishes the Chapel Hill branch of Cosa Nostra. Shields gets back early, retains Pole position at the Shack. Holland returns with degree in Albertology, as Pop continues to amaze the world's geriatricians. Bowman makes frequent nocturnal disappearances with a tall, mysterious stranger. Tillery has procession of shady room guests — all to no avail, as Roach mystifies the masses with ouija board and drives Phi to hives. Spud and Sparrow continue regular "Thought for the Day" programs, while Hughes pledges ears to the Smithsonian Institute. Mick Moye gets Gunned, while Carol C. only gets Groused. Spell gets new tube to go with his Zero-modulated rear speaker. Rock and Parrott burn midnight oil in the house navel, as Vince continues daily ten minute naps. T. K. performs on new brass workbench, and successfully avoids dead rabbits. Turkey-worm gives speech lessons to Woith, as Fubar views the whole scene with horror. And as the sun sinks slowly over Carboro, Wonder Warthog snorts, leaps in his meany-mobile, and soars away, followed by the strange roar of "Last beer on Earth!"

Dear Dad,

When I leave the Hill, Carolina, and $\phi\kappa\epsilon$ Fraternity with little but a thin sheepskin to protect me in the vast arenas of business and professional life, I will find it hard to forget — the football and drunken orgies of autumn . . . the combos and pledge raids of winter . . . the pledge week-ends and beach parties in the spring . . . the cellar underneath the ground . . . the chou from Annie's unctuous kitchen or the loyal dedication of Chet . . . the rigors of rush or the flammers we cursed . . . the pleasures of female entertainment or the elation over completing exams . . . and all of these manifold experiences that have made my years at Carolina the most memorable of my young life.

OLE!

Pi Kappa Phi

ΠΚΦ was founded at The College of Charleston, Charleston, S. C., on December 10, 1904. Kappa Chapter at UNC came into being ten years later. The chapter folded in 1933, but was reactivated in 1948. The 1960's have seen the Pi Kapps grow and prosper — the average membership for the past three years has been 42 men, and we hope to be in our new house on Finley Golf Course Road this September. Two well-known alumni are Thomas Wolfe, author of Look Homeward, Angel, and Dan K. Moore, Governor of North Carolina.

Our national headquarters are in Charlotte, as the majority of chapters are in the Southwest. The national magazine is The Star and Lamp, and our flower is the red rose.

SIDELIGHTS ON PI KAPP LIFE:

The Brothers returned to the Hill on September 11 to patch up 206 W. Cameron for one last round (we hope). Try as we might, only one side of the house got painted, mainly because of those lovely, lust-i-ous creatures from the Granville Hilton who persisted in distracting us from our work. It was kinda hard to understand why half the house were dating Granville girls all year long! To top it all off, Captain Marble discovered Love City the very first day, and Injun finally got a squaw within walking distance of his tepee (the Kappa Kave)!

Per usual, the Pi Kapp social calendar was packed with all sorts of goodies which will provide fond memories for many years. It seemed as if half the campus attended our combo party after the Air Force game at the Legion Hut. Besides being known as the friendliest house on campus, we are also known far and wide for some great parties. The mixer with κδ on Nov. 29 was a tremendous success, and we really enjoyed working with καθ on the Beat Dook float. Our neighbors-to-be, ζβτ, demonstrated the Good Neighbor Policy as they invited us to party with them at their beautiful house on December 10 — Merry Christmas and Happy Hanukkah was the word!

On the lighter side, the game of hearts almost succeeded in flunking everybody out — Hebiades included! Spook the Sandbagger passed, cut class, and counted spiders. Mr. Chaese played the spoons, and Ron called Sue. While Fife the Fierce pinned Thelma Lou and settled down to the small-town weekend life, Hero was still looking for a Carolina co-ed tough enough for him to date. Faunt had lots of fun with Miss M ("Nice j----s") and Miss R. At this writing, Smitty has an affair going with the French Chef, spiced with endives. Here's hoping it continues—baaaa-ooooom!

"I been hurt!"

THEN I Told My Professor That He Could Take His Old Term Papers And Midterms And...

So John Juan is at it again, huh?

You call this the Cashbah?

You really don't like my editorial?

Πϕ fraternity was founded in 1895 at Yale University. It was conceived in a philosophy of fellowship that had its roots in the American Bill of Rights, and its 44 local chapters across the nation are made up of students with widely varied backgrounds and creeds. North Carolina ωβ is proud to be a part of this heritage, as its brothers keep up the fine tradition: Golden boy can now leap tall buildings in a single breath . . . The bald eagle wets his feathers five times, becomes stud . . . Ginny shoots the moon, neglects five hearts . . . Bean's ear lobes in constant use . . . Frazer gives pledge order . . . Belly Hook buys padded coke crate . . . Horios breaks pledge room lock with hatchet face . . . Pee Wee poses for a Mac Clean's smile, Fleishman tries to put the squeeze on the coke machine . . . Kabat gets big competition, grows two inches . . . Greensboro learns to speak softly but carry a big Schtick . . . Fox exists, I think . . . Randy traps Warren without a single blow . . . NaNook pays 5 for solo performance . . . Dr. Manly gives couch therapy in private second floor office . . . Bass beats fuzz, buzzes into bed . . . Dee shakes head and invests in Spanish dublooms . . . Fred gets bad date, flakes after course . . . The vulture surveys remains . . . Rick pushes hard as brothers rag red shirt . . . Weinstein drops airs aims elsewhere . . . Wade challenges old Abe for top spot . . . Pat dons black belt, brotherhood tickled to death . . . Eddy promises world, too heavy to bring back from Greensboro . . . Doss gets scholarship from Post Office . . . Machine reserves room on South side of town . . . Scoop signs contract with Dunn Dispatch. Another year of Pi Lam personalities shining through.

St. Anthony

A sneer of perverse surrealism tries to overthrow Chapel Hillian apathy at St. Anthony Hall. But being neither sane nor insane in one direction or another, Andre Breton falls wasted and consummated in the fires of the pot-bellied cauldron which exists here. Pataphysically speaking it makes no difference, even though ninety per cent of the members do not know the truth about themselves, about the university, or about money. And that brings to mind the image of golden-locked Apollo, the king of the northern wasteland, shining his shoes (L. L. Bean's) with his padded bank account.

At this, the righteous masses cry, "Falsehood, falsehood!" And for once, thank God, we are right. For there is no typical St. A. Insidious individuality reigns supreme; tolerance and acceptance govern our mode of life, the sheep's life, only rarely stirred by the grumblings for the good old days of rebellion.

We flow from the divinely spiritual to the shocking reality, from the 1959 Cadillacs to the 1966 chopped, channelled, and blown cycles, from the lofty idealism to the permanent tube watchers. Resident Mod Joe Belden wakes up the hey-hey-what-do-you-say Tri Delts with soporific purples, as Gat's Beard runs concurrent with Monsieur West's disapproval. Frank walks the straight and narrow as nasty old men move in to fill the gap, as pool hustlers develop, as weekends depopulate the hall, as soccer talk grows boring, as the kitchen serves gourmet food, as Chambers white-knight's Rico's tongue, as Red-Pie frieks out, and as mild zephyrs waft sensuously through the annex bathroom. But this vision of our educational experience divorces itself from reality.

Basically, our youth is a dream, a form of chemical madness, where the only thing we can count on is love and the shabby gift of disillusion, or delusion, or illusion, in one direction or another. That's what's happening, Tony.

The Fantastically Groovy Chugger

Hall

Monday morning before breakfast.

This year the SAE's returned to find themselves ruled by the not-so-stable hand of one Johnny Hanan. However, with the aid of his jumbo signed roommate Jay led the house to new heights as the E's easily swept the first annual Phi Delt chugging contest.

After a few years absence the house once again returned to campus politics and, unlike Zamm, our candidate this year did most of his campaigning sober. Nevertheless, this new innovation didn't seem to help much, but there is still hope as Zamm has agreed to stay a post grad year and run again.

Led by Chico Yarborough and Crash Poer, the SAE's enjoyed a very successful fall rush, and if Crash can keep from destroying the house, spring rush should be even better. Much hard work by the fall pledges produced an outstanding Duke float which was evidenced by the fact that it wasn't condemned by the D.T.H. Many other activities are on tap and now that it appears that social Chairman Highway West will be spending most of his time at the Tri Delt house we can expect a very active social calendar. All things considered, it looks like another successful year of warming the iron. Buckingham's road trips to Sweetbriar, and lots of late night horror shows.

Sigma Chi

Sigma Chi's ease into another (you right) year. Lawson starts off by cracking his whip and singing about his "yellow rose of TEXAS". Cate and Williard are reported missing in action and presumed lost. Desmond E. burns the candle at both ends, and coverse just burns. Buddy Lawrence remains aloof as Roanoke and 109 Hillsboro vie for the title. Schlitz leaves, but Garbage is on hand to fill the power vacuum. All the Chi's cheer for the Salmony's as they enter politics — because it's our gain, Carolina's loss. Lippy Lutz will remember the Scoreboard, for it was there that he finally cornered the market on hangovers. Brinson cries as the Varsity burns but takes out fire insurance on his seat at the Carolina. TAZ is seen driving new wheel, which was delivered by Spider. Mr. Bond becomes out multi-purpose Chi. Overton opens up residence in Greensboro, but Barnes decides to crank up and leave the bones in that burg. Jake cuts off all Chi's and heads for the beach to flounder with Horney. The Carroboro flat of Wood and McCormick sees many deals. Winn and Nick bring in various and sundry imported honeys while "Bear" Goodrich eases Booshevicks. The Davis brothers merge and form a "Brain Trust". Lane and Millander finally elope, as expected. Robinson releases Palisoul by employing the well known bag. Chunky becomes Pauletta's little candy bar.

As another year closes, intramural stardom, Viet Nam mixers, and $\phi\beta\kappa$ beckon relentlessly to the Chi Bag.

ΣΝ fraternity was founded at Virginia Military Institute in 1869. The chapter here was established in 1888. Colors are black, white, and gold, and the flower is the white rose. σν published its official magazine, The Delta, quarterly, while Psi Chapter publishes a yearly newsletter, The White Star.

Borilla finds pumpkin tracks. "It's grossly overrated," says Rodent after a hard summer. The Great Pumpkin comes a day late as Edna engineers train; puts LuLon in caboose. Mexico good to Pooh Bear. Mule gets hitched. Moon and Wishy Washy celebrate Obie Day. Grit Man and Mr. I. D. choke at Blood Bank. Uncle George turns Farmer. Vikings go for "R.E." . . . Record Release still unclaimed — definitely not from the Land of the Little People . . . Corn applies for membership with Mystery Midget Dates. Mr. Politico makes motion on sofa, and Couch objects. Ted, Steve, and Foggy play the name game.

In our travelling circus, Grouse, Scrappy, Bull, and Señor come around to meet the guys. Forefinger and F.T.A. go west . . . Tree-Frog entertains Troll and troops with acrobatics . . . Panda and Pierre la Punch hit Paris . . . Motor-Mouth plugged in. Sweetheart puts ring in Porky's nose. Boab and Lightbulb teach the Monkee's, led by T.H.E. Lurch and Golden Boy, to do the Granville Shuffle . . . Elvis just can't dance!!! Mountain of peanut butter appears by Magic. Twins split — Chuch finds surf in Raleigh. Yes 'Enry, there is a sugar choir. As they say in the old country . . . "SOK IT TO YA MOMMA," and we retire into the sunset.

Sig Eps returned this year minus seventeen brothers and anticipating another big year. Elk makes Carolina's homecoming this year. Tink prefers tube to party. Outlaw initiated twice in one weekend. Peggy's mother finally comes through for Womble. Fred has decided to give up driving and only drink. Abdul gets North Carolina camel franchise. Lindsley donates $40 to social fund. Moon Man finally gets Moon Maid. Spike continues hair treatments. Scholarship program given big boost this year because of new multicolor grade chart, if we could only read it. Zoologist Goat, after intensive tests and research, assures us that embryo will attain full development before graduation. Rocky and Mathis give appearances of being another dynamic duo. McDougald sleeps through his army physical. In spite of full-time massaging of the scalp, Jr. will be bald at 21. Pooh quits chinese laundry to take on full time job as moonshiner. Long sets up tripod for another long range camera shot. Bluto gives up cards for pledge beating and Sig makes BDOC.

A lot of new experiences for both young and old brothers are now over, and so another year closes but another begins in September.

Tau Epsilon Phi

Now marks the year 1966-67 A.D. and the men of $\tau\epsilon\phi$ return to the Bacchian paradise that is Chapel Hill. The beautiful, doric pillared red brick structure that is their palace stands guard against all outreries of the Barbarian invaders, for the pleasure dome of $\tau\epsilon\phi$ is self-perpetuating, a monument to Athenian culture, Roman administration, and Thunderbird Wine. The palace stands as a last hope for the great Epicurean philosophers, a product of the Enlightenment. The outsiders who pass through these protals see the truth of the gods as only Tep men know it. For they are the god's servants, their liaison with the real world. Only Tep men live life as the gods meant it to be lived, a life that entails a total world view, a life they will duplicate some day on Mt. Olympus. Those who enter the domicile of 216 E. Rosemary are often blinded by the light, the overpowering light of real reality. For those among mortal men who can face real reality are few. Zeus, grant us brotherhood not only for this day but for all years, a brotherhood not of words but of acts and deeds. We are all of us children of earth — grant us that simple knowledge. If our brothers are oppressed, we are oppressed. If they hunger we hunger. If their freedom is taken away, our freedom is not secure. As a famous epicurean philosopher once said "I'll drink to that!" So gods, continue to smile down upon the messengers of your truth; continue to grant us the boon of happiness or the light if wisdom, so that the poets of the future ages may look back and say "no men better understood life, no men more thoroughly enjoyed it, no men as did the brothers of $\tau\epsilon\phi$!"

As the sun rose over the budding pines and the poignant odor of the boomalacha spread from hole number nine, life once again began on Finley Golf Course Road. The octagonal, green-felt table, the dice, the Bicycle playing cards, the pick-up sticks all were removed from their summer storage; ζβτ had entered its fortieth year.

A new forceful leadership immediately attempted to form a new impression of Z. B. T. Our long-standing image as a jock house was to fade into eternity; academics were to be stressed for the first time. We were to graciously accept the R. B. House award and dissolve immediately before the I. F. C. reconsidered. The practice of charging "green fees" to early morning golfers was to cease forever. The crap tables were to be removed from the showers from 7 to 11. Thus 66-67 was to be a year of metamorphosis and schpligicism.

Zebes return to classes. Zim included. Young so selfish refuses to give teacher his name. Nachs fights fire at Jeff's with all his heart. Fox initiated into Enormous Gigantic Court. Sternsy employed as model for G. Q. Natt rejects barnyard for beauty queen. "One ball no strikes" Israel calls "T" out at home. P. F.'s date gazes at full moon in disbelief. Sweet Henry courts Viola for intellectual stimulation. Smith's plans uncertain for proposed Asian tour. #2 looks in mirror sees #1. Weiss goes hunting for "small game." Lemans hurts back. Zebes have losing football season. B. G. kicks the Ore'o's habit. Blue discovers full utility of sheep. Gilbie goes independent then goes underground. Band gets Shocket's clothes for a steal. Gitelson hired by Webster's as new words consultant.

PROFESSIONAL

FRATERNITIES

Alpha Kappa Psi

AKΨ, America's oldest and largest professional fraternity, flowed through another academic year which was inundated with professional tours, professional dinner meetings, unprofessional parties, and virtuous indulgence. Alpha Tau chapter, having the distinction of having the oldest house in the system, bucked inflationary trends with a decision to build a new house. The position of liaison officer was delegated to "Champagne" Howe, who tackled the job with amazing numbness. "Hymie" Stroud, well-known under-the-counter operator launched a massive campaign to obtain the necessary funds. Services were offered by Ensign Howe to head a rotten candy sale to the merchants of Chapel Hill. "Cream" Scruggs, darling of the Nothing Set, began negotiation of the required legal claims only to learn that "Snake" Aldrich had completed the job during the wee hours of the morning on V-J Day. A recommendation by the Building site chairman, Bill Greasebelli, to locate the house on the immediate outskirts of the city dump was not approved by the brothers. The only man in favor of the recommendation was "Squeak"

Harle, maintenance manager. The interior decoration was placed in the hands of Butch Bilko, who planned to decorate with bamboo which was to be acquired on his forthcoming Far East trip. A proposal by "Cons" Hanna, Altman, and Bachmann to devote all efforts into the construction of a casino were postponed until a later date. Regretfully, the drive was halted when it was learned that Alfred Lloyd Griffin had invested the Building Fund in United Horseshoe Ltd.

Mike Herndon, President

A typical Monday afternoon.

"Go tickle yourself."

This was the year of the battle between the Rack Monster and the Green Monster. The Big Green One came through with many clutch victories, proving himself the supreme being in the panelled "House of the Rising Moon."

As the year progressed, the house looked more like that old tobacco field of yesteryear. There was old Robert, setting a new world's record as Sandy K. O'd him. Turkey won the D.A. of the Year award hands down, or should we say bottoms up! Those great house institutions, i.e., the tube team, rack team, and GRW poll made their annual appearances. And we remember our temporary residents. There was Cool Clarence, Ed Ball, E. G. Hunter, Mr. Hawk, and Henpecked.

The year of the road trip. Our first professional tour took us to Yanceyville, but I.D.'s were required. Dave spotted something, and Bird came out smelling like a rose. Hinshaw led to the fate of our '51 Super Sport, but the Goofymobile keeps chugging on. And don't forget the Oil Burner!

Parties and more parties. Led on by our "super-cool" pledge class, we managed to stay in the saddle. Cries of "Where's the shaving kit?", "BAZOOBA!", and "SCORE!" highlighted such events as Lindsey's post-game Rally. Then there was the party where we ate lettuce and burnt biscuits for hors d'oeuvres! Lewis even kept his shirttail in past 11:00 p.m.! And then the Bird flapped his arms and ended up in somebody's car! Batman's slick, he doesn't blow his cool. While all this went on in the zoo, President L. C. S. led C. W. (in paisley party pants??) and T. H. to victory on the Grub Team.

During the week, entertainment was provided by the Paschal Program (and we don't mean the Monkees!). The canine exhibitions of our pledges also provided a relief from our studies. Booray games for fun and profit — loser gets to be house manager for a week! Problems arise as the third floor art critic strikes. You can pick your friends, but ... there'll never be a _____! GO, NADS!!!

"How low can you go?"

"Delta Sigma Pi A-Go-Go!"

"Oh, there'll never be..."

Alpha Phi Omega

During the thirty years Rho Chapter of $\alpha\phi\omega$ National Service Fraternity has been active here at Carolina, brothers have been adding much to the physical and spiritual well-being of Chapel Hill. Through a spirit of fraternal togetherness, A Phi O has developed its cardinal principles of leadership, friendship, and service into tangible benefits to the brotherhood, the community, and the nation.

Under president Tom Hilderbrant and faculty advisor James Wadsworth, UNC Director of Housing, A Phi O this year has organized and operated the A Phi O Book Exchange, Ugliest Man on Campus Contest, and Parent's Day, as well as cooperated with civic leaders in the annual Community Chest drive, assisted in ushering at Carolina Playmaker's productions, and manned campus election polls.

$\Lambda\Phi\Omega$, though, by no means overlooks social affairs. Bi-weekly dinner meetings, frequent parties and outings, and informal daily gatherings in the chapter room do much to fulfill brother's needs for relaxation as well as help form the bond of brotherhood required to devote long and hard hours to service projects.

KE is a national professional fraternity for women students in pharmacy. It was founded on May 13, 1921, at Iowa State University. Lambda Chapter was begun at the University of North Carolina in 1940. The purposes are to stimulate a desire for high scholarship among its members, to foster a professional consciousness, and provide a bond of lasting loyalty, interest, and friendship. The fraternity takes pride in its members throughout the nation who are leaders in the pharmaceutical profession.

"That's it... ignore him."

"I don't usually accept tips, miss, but..."

Well, uh....

...no comment

This year a typical afternoon at the house would find Bat and Yank E. Gritte fighting over L. P. while A. R. watches enigmatically and everyone wondering where A. P. was, Big Mo missing a meal to study for exams, and P. W. disappearing to the apartment for another weekend.

Mead's calling Rawlf on hands and knees, Woody's keeping Peppy Thermostat from striking again, although he is still at wrongs with right guard, a whip's relieving Tripod of a live wire, Murch's sweating, Oakley's recitation on food, Joey's picking up where Newll left off, Harold's sleeping on red sheets, the 3/5's buying weedkiller, modest MOW's searching for more shower curtain, and Index's painting the front porch orange are all highlights of the year we'll never forget.

And there are others... Bat, Nad, Scro, Toes, Old Man, Woody, and Plague have big weekend at E.C.C.... the Mr. "Please, Please Me" man himself... Land of the Long-Nosed plans to initiate a driver's training school... What? Not another Babs!... H. Spastica finally gets his foot out of the trash can... Bob cools it, "Boys, read your books, come on Dameron, let's go home."... Just be naturally charming."

The year had some questions, some of which still haven't been answered. 2:30 A.M., Tippy Toes yells for brothers... 3:30, A.M., Hootie gets drenched... 4:30 A.M., can the pledges still be here? But which is Big John? Are Earl and T. T. twins? How many does it take, 'Max — 25? Super-Bod is alive in Nassau, but where is Super-Woman?

"The Big Four"

"Pledges, grab your ankles!"

The Alpha Gamma chapter of $\phi\delta\chi$ was established in Chapel Hill in 1923. A Professional Pharmacy fraternity, $\phi\delta\chi$ combines an active social life with professional aspects of Pharmacy School. Phi Dex men are active in Pharmacy School's Student Branches of NCPA and APHA, the Pharmacy Senate, and other student organizations such as providing their services at First Aid stands at football games. Other activities of $\phi\delta\chi$ include activities during National Pharmacy Week and providing for needy families at Christmas.

Everything looks great for another year at the Phi Dex house. Phi Dex men "bow their necks" to enlarge the basement as the pledges do battle against the eternal mess. Bodge cracks the whip to try to train the pledges as Pat tries to train Micky. Mike diversifies his interests while Ed and Robert L. open the Chapel Hill Playboy Club. Tom Black amazes all and opens Ralph's Restaurant. Stan gets drove, John has moments of glory, and Beatty mixes marriage with the black market. Scrooge McBoblick holds the purse strings as Anderson tries for three more "B's." Alice traps Hovis and "Yank" Glass moves up in the world. Rowe reactivates with a heavy hand while Swain tries to maintain order at the house. Ben rakes in the QP's as Glenn plays the role. Smoot gets eat up with wires and speakers while Burlson opens an employment agency. Barkley, Ted, and Joe lose their pins as Greg and Graham lose their minds and get engaged. Richard would sure like to . . . what?? Pledges receive brutal treatment while working toward the glories of brotherhood.

"Gee, how come it died?"

Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia

Alpha Rho Chapter of $\Phi\mu\alpha$ Sinfonia was formed on February 24, 1926, thus becoming the thirty-fourth chapter of the National Professional Music Fraternity. Based on the ideals of brotherhood and service in music, our chapter has several activity fields which incorporate both music and service. We provide ushers for all Tuesday evening concerts in Hill Hall and for all Chapel Hill Concert Series events. Included in our activities is the establishment of the James Michael Barham Scholarship Fund for undergraduate Music majors. On behalf of this fund, the chapter has brought to campus such attractions as the Navy Band, Josh White, and Chad and Jeremy. The fraternity strives to improve the cultural atmosphere of the campus by sponsoring such events as the Contemporary Music Festival, working with the Fine Arts Festival, and providing some programs of classical music for use on WCHL FM. We also participate in a full round of social events, including a fall and spring banquet and numerous parties. In 1963, the chapter received the Charles E. Lutton award from the National Office for being the best chapter in the nation, and we have several province awards to our credit, three in the last five years. We are a growing and active chapter, and are very glad to have the opportunity to serve this campus in any way possible.

Pledges tour Variety Vacationland.

ENTITLED OUTLINE

of study and having selected his habitat, the student seeks other areas to sharpen his abilities and to complement his life at Carolina. These other areas are quite diverse; they range from A.F.R.O.T.C. to the Yack, from Women's Residence Council to the Beanbirds.

Student Government

One of the most impressive features of Carolina life is her student government. Its autonomy and its predominance in student environment make it seem to some a work of political and organizational genius and to others a machine infernale; there are few who are not affected in some way and at some time during their academic career by the powers in Graham Memorial. In many ways it is a tribute to the framers of the Student Constitution that the University's student government has functioned so well; yet, this current success is a challenge to future leaders to constantly improve and advance themselves and their organization to serve a student population of twenty thousand or more.

As with the United States Government, UNC student government enjoys separation of powers into an executive, a legislative, and a judicial branch — each with its own powers and duties. The executive consists of the officers of the student body and six departments, under the legislative branch is student legislature and its various committees, while the judiciary is made up of the Men's and Women's Honor Councils. The past academic year saw all three branches work together and separately for the welfare of each student and for the student community; the product of this work was a significant contribution to the University: The Fine Arts Festival, the Student "Co-operative" book sale, Residence College Improvements, and Judicial Reform.

Executive Branch

Under the leadership of President Robert S. Powell, the Executive Branch of 1966-67 has sought not only to work for the student body but also to work through, and thereby to speak for, all areas of the campus. Student Government leaders included Vice-President William Purdy, Secretary Judith Fletcher, and Treasurer Donald McPhaul. They were aided by Presidential Assistants Eric Van Loon and Bob Travis, Press Secretary Phil Kirstein, and executive secretary Miss Stein, as well as the more than 300 students holding positions on the Student Government committees and commissions. Working continuously for an improved academic, cultural, and social life for students, they combined forces with the administration and faculty to meet the challenges of our massive university community. The result of this effort is that the claims and concerns of individual students are finally being translated into concrete programs of action. For the first time in years, the bottleneck of busywork has been broken. The results for student welfare are unprecedented:

The first illustration of increasing student activity on campus is Residence College development. Regular classes are now being held in Morrison for Morrison College students, and this experiment may well revolutionize the whole approach to learning and campus environmental planning. Even more importantly, however, the far-reaching impact of last fall's Reidsville Conference has combined with other student efforts in this area to renew momentum and to create unparalleled enthusiasm for Residence College experimentation among the faculty and administration.

Bob Powell, President

The second illustration of increased activity is in the Judicial System. As developed as it is, the Judicial System has far too long tolerated frightening abuses of the individual rights of students. This year, we have finally moved far beyond the talking stage by carefully establishing the Student Supreme Court. This Supreme Court will insure the rights of all students brought before the Student Judiciary. To further secure these rights, a vigorous system of defense counseling has been established under the expert direction of the Attorney General. This insures everyone the maximum protection of the Student Constitution while before an Honor Council.

A further exhibition of concrete action and stronger student voice is clearly visible in the field of education. The most important achievement of this administration in the field of educational reform has been to stimulate a campus-wide desire for new and experimental kinds of learning. In the School of Education students will soon be structurally participating in the curriculum-planning and policy-making of that School.

In another area, this administration has drawn up a proposal for a limited pass-fail grading system in the College of Arts and Sciences. On a third front, a program is under consideration now for a system of student advisors to assist their fellow students during pre-registration.

But lofty and innovative endeavours in education have not meant a neglect of other less intellectual needs of the Student Body. Basic student services have long been at the heart of Student Government, and they offer a fourth illustration of the success of its work this year. By far the most successful was the Student "Co-op," but many other services have been instituted as well (teller facilities on South campus, free local phone service, etc.).

Finally, the students demanded that this Administration do everything possible to help stop the increasing state-wide erosion of confidence in, and respect for, the University. They demanded that every possible effort be made to rebuild its image in North Carolina, without sacrificing national prestige. Unprecedented success has been realized this year in achieving that goal.

These activities mentioned reflect only a few of the various projects for this year; yet, through each of its functions and projects, the Executive has attempted to create in each student a greater sense of individual responsibility and a greater interest in, and loyalty to, the University of North Carolina.

Administrative Affairs

The Department of Administrative Affairs is the division of the Executive in charge of the Student Government Executive offices. It is this department that makes certain the offices run smoothly and efficiently.

The Student Government Secretariat is composed of girls who work from two to ten hours each week to execute the mechanical aspects of the Executive and Legislative branches. Their duties include typing bills for the legislature and mimeographing and typing stencils for the numerous Student Government committees. They gain invaluable experience as they carry out their duties of answering phone calls and taking messages, responding to requests for information from other schools, and distributing supplies to committee chairmen. They work closely with the Attorney General's Staff and are called upon to perform secretarial duties for them. Numerous leaflets distributed to the Student Body, including the Student Government brochure, are prepared and sent out by members of the Secretariat. This presents an excellent opportunity for meeting and working with campus leaders and for job experience.

The Audit Board is composed of the director of the Student Activities Fund and five students who are appointed by the President of the Student Board and approved by the Student Legislature. Their terms vary from one to two years. The task of the Audit Board is the supervision of the Student Activities Fund Office. They set the salaries of that office and check its records frequently. Furthermore, they are charged by the Legislature with making periodic reports to this body concerning the finances of Student Government. Thus, the Audit Board insures that the funds of the students are protected and used in the proper places, and is in a position to recommend improvements in the financial system.

Joining the Audit Board in overseeing student finances is the Budget Committee, which each year submits the Student Government budget of approximately $210,000 to the President of the Student Body for subsequent legislative consideration. This budget provides the operating funds for over forty Student Government organizations and operations. During the greater part of the academic year the Budget Committee aids the Treasurer of the Student Body and the Student Activities Fund Office in managing the funds of all committees and groups on campus which receive funds through Student Government. In the spring, it prepares the annual budget. The committee is also charged with the responsibility of authorizing transfers in the budget, which is especially important under the new requisition system.

The Executive Press Secretary, though a direct member of the President's staff, is also, in a sense, under Administrative Affairs. He keeps the newspapers, television, and radio informed of the activities of Student Government, by sending reports throughout the state. Public Relations on Campus is handled by the Communications Committee, which facilitates communication in two directions: from the student body to its Student Government and vice versa. In the former area, the Committee surveys student opinion through scientifically conducted polls, and data from these surveys is then transmitted to the appropriate student organization. To aid communication between Student Government and the campus, the Committee arranges meetings in residence colleges, fraternities, and sororities, where student officials discuss issues of current importance.

With its secretarial, financial, and publicity functions, this department is one of the most essential to Student Government; its work may seem mundane and unattractive, but it is indispensable.

Cultural Affairs

Through the Department of Cultural Affairs, the Executive seeks to exert its influence to promote cultural improvement among the students at UNC. The four committees under this department are concerned with activities ranging from international exchange to rhetoric and oratory. Though concentrated in the area on extra-curricular affairs, this new department can (and has in the past two years) contribute substantially to a complete education for Carolina students.

In the art of rhetoric, the Carolina Forum has performed admirably in bringing speakers of the highest calibre to the University. Using its power as an organ of Student Government, the Forum often joins with the independent Carolina Political Union to invite men that either group alone would probably not be able to sponsor. In the past, it has sponsored visits by Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, John F. Kennedy, and Dean Rusk. This year the Forum has seen Jacob Javits, senior senator from New York and a vice-presidential hopeful, along with Hubert Humphrey, George Wallace, and William Buckley.

The International Students Board is the committee of Student Government responsible for the administration of the exchange program to Germany, France, Colombia, and Puerto Rico. The foreign students that come to UNC for one year under these programs are encouraged to be active in the ISB, and the ISB undertakes to do all it can to make their stay here worthwhile. In addition to administering the existing programs, the ISB is continually looking for new areas to develop exchanges, and an exchange with Milan, Italy may be realized in the near future.

One of the main areas of activity of the ISB for the past four years has been trying to establish an International Students Center on the campus. Next year Carr dormitory will be such a center, housing twenty-nine American and twenty-nine foreign students. It is hoped that this center will become the focal point for many international activities on the campus.

The Cultural Affairs Department has another organization in the area of international cultural exchange, the Toronto Exchange.

Each year a group of thirty Canadian students from the University of Toronto visit Carolina for a four day weekend of varied activities — seminars, discussions, and social events. Matched up according to interests with thirty UNC students, the Canadians stay for the four days over Dook weekend, which constitutes the first half of the Toronto Exchange program.

Designed to foster improved understanding between the two schools and countries, the program accordingly focuses its attention on areas of greatest mutual ignorance as well as in areas of mutual interest. Thus, this year's program at Carolina included a seminar on Canadian-American relations with speeches from the Canadian Embassy in Washington and the office of Canadian affairs in the State Department. Other seminars were "the Obligations of the University", an examination of the role of the university within our respective societies, and "The Mind of the South: What It Means to be a Southerner."

Realizing that friendships facilitate a frank exchange of ideas and opinions, the program had its lighter side as well. The Torontonians and Tar Heels became better acquainted on a hayride, weiner roast, and square dance. They also attended the "Beat Dook" Parade and the Carolina-Duke football game. Afterwards, they had dinner at the Quails Roost Conference Center and concluded the evening with Graham Memorial entertainment and a fraternity party. A reception was held in Graham Memorial which gave students who were not participating in the program a chance to meet the Canadians. In addition to this, a talent show in honor of the Canadians was held in Morrison Residence College. The weekend ended with a bang when the Torontonians romped the Carolina Exchange members in a football game played with Canadian rules.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT CHAPEL HILL

CHANCELLOR J. CARLYLE SITTERSON
HONORARY CHAIRMAN

JOHN SCHNORRBERG
FACULTY ADVISER

TRAVIS ABBOTT

FESTIVAL EXECUTIVE: Don Ubell, Terry George, Travis Abbott, John Schnorrenberg.

In the last fifteen years there has been a great expansion of interest in the role of the arts in modern society. Although there has always been a place for the arts, particularly music, in American life, it is only recently that they have ceased to be the property of a small group and have become truly popular. A very large part of the credit for this new popularity has been the universities.

April ninth through thirteenth the University of North Carolina community feted the arts, acknowledging its dual role of stimulating productivity and encouraging patronage. The 1967 Fine Arts Festival, planned and carried out by a joint student-faculty committee, brought to campus the dancers of Merce Cunningham and Company, soprano Gretchen d'Armand, Pulitzer prize-winning poet W. D. Snodgrass, Saturday Review drama critic Henry Hewes, artist Mauricio Lasansky, and the National Student Printmaker Exhibition. The works of two University professors were presented: an evening concert of compositions by Roger Hannay and a new play by Russell Graves, The Battle of the Carnival and Lent. Also featured were a sidewalk art show, a modern film, an exhibition of student works, Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra, a concert-lecture by director-composer Lukas Foss, and a lecture-demonstration by Polacolor artist Marie Cosindas. The Festival is a biennial affair, initiated by student leaders and first held in the spring of 1965.

And so in art, drama, music, public speaking, and international co-operation, the Executive works through its Cultural Affairs Department to provide cultural opportunities for the students of today and the standard setters of tomorrow.

Educational Affairs

Don Wilson, Director of the Department of Educational Affairs

Another of the relatively new Departments of the Executive, the division of Educational Affairs is that arm of student government which attempts to interest students in the formal structure of education at UNC, and to awaken them to opportunities for improvement and advancement. This task is accomplished through three committees, which evaluate and recommend changes in the existing system, attempt to bring potential honors students to the University, and provide opportunities for those already here.

This was not an idle year for the National Merit Scholarship Committee. In the fall the Committee sponsored a weekend for all National Merit finalists; the program consisted of academic seminars, campus tours, attendance in classes, a Carolina football game — all of which was followed by a student government reception and a banquet. Two hundred finalists attended; and, if past statistics hold true, from 40-50% of participants come to the University the following fall. The success of the program had led to plans for a spring weekend for other scholarship contestants.

The Student Committee on Honors during its third year of operation sought to carry on projects of past years as well as to initiate new tasks in its attempt to enrich and inform the life of the Carolina Honors student. A new program of special orientation for entering members of the Freshman Honors Program introduced them to many of the services available to them in the University. The Committee set up meetings to discuss opportunities for independent study within the Honors framework. The booklet Reading for Honors was updated and republished. Once again the Committee was in charge of maintenance of the Honors Seminar Room. And throughout the year, evaluation of the whole Honors concept was discussed. The year of 1966-1967 was clearly a busy year for the Honors Committee.

This year has been one of evaluations, based upon knowledge gained from earlier evaluations. One of the most serious challenges to the Academic Affairs Committee is that of conducting the extensive class evaluation, a project of more than one semester's duration, while giving attention to other academic affairs. The fall semester was primarily devoted to such an evaluation, whereas the spring semester included a thorough reevaluation of the program with the prospect in mind of combining the mechanics of the class evaluation with those of the course evaluation booklet, under supervision of the Publications Board. Correspondence with other branches of the University system and a series of detailed interviews with administrators and faculty members determined attitudes toward variations of the academic calendar. The problem of having final exams at a more convenient time of year was uppermost in the mind of those assisting in the inquiries. Confering with academic departments, for the purpose of using students to assist in academic advising at UNC, kept members of the Academic Affairs Committee comfortably in the mainstream of student government activity.

Along with cultural enrichment, then, the student government through its Executive Departments encourages intellectual advancement of the student body and the University.

The Department of External Affairs works within and outside the Chapel Hill Campus to improve relations between the students and the town of Chapel Hill, and the University and the state of North Carolina.

This year the State Affairs Committee of the Student Government, under the direction first of Jim Little and afterwards Mike Brown, undertook a greatly expanded program to improve the University's image about the state. In order to accomplish this aim, a speaker bureau was established to present a comprehensive program on UNC. The bureau was prepared to deliver its presentation on short notice to any civic club in North Carolina. Over 250 clubs in fifty cities were contacted by the Committee, which eventually resulted in forty speeches being given. The programs were presented by two students, usually a man and a woman, on the topic: "The University — What It Is, and Where It Is Going." This program also included a slide presentation and a brief question and answer period.

Another phase of Committee activity was the visitation to members of the 1967 General Assembly in Raleigh. This effort was directed at the budget appropriation for the University, an attempt to explain the current needs of UNC to many of the lawmakers. The Committee also arranged to have about forty students visit with the legislators-elect during Christmas vacation. These informal talks helped to let the Assembly know that students were interested in the future of the University.

programs, provides information and services, and furnishes a forum for student opinion. During the year Chairman Teddy O'Toole reorganized the commission into eight sub-committees, each with a specific duty. These duties included handling requests from student leaders for information on various projects, advertising the NSA travel programs and selling travel discount cards, arranging for Carolina's attendance at various conferences, sponsoring campus debates, and surveying the student body on important issues.

The Consolidated University Student Council Committee is part of a coordinating body of the four branches of the Consolidated University of North Carolina. The purpose of CUSC is to discuss problems and functions which concern the students of the Consolidated University. CUSC began work early this year with the planning of CU Day and the election of Jim Rush as President of the Council. The second meeting was spent proposing a reciprocal ID exchange system between the branches of the CU and a film about the CU to be shown to high school seniors interested in attending one of the branches of the greater University was planned. The CUSC met with President Friday following the second meeting and discussed problems concerning today's college generation. The second semester included constitutional revision, completion of the film project, and CU Day activities at the other three branches.

Other groups include the Student Credit Commission, which works to further good relations between students and Chapel Hill merchants, and the Vigah committee, which is responsible for the efforts of Student Government in community improvement projects. It works to co-ordinate efforts of campus groups, the Inter Council of Churches, and the Welfare Agency on community repair works and aid to the underprivileged.

It is largely the work of this Department to insure that the University has the respect and co-operation of the state.

Internal Affairs

Bob Wilson — Chairman

Bill Long — Men's Co-Ordinator

Mary Susan Kirk — Women's Co-Ordinator

Faith Fogle — Foreign Students Co-Ordinator

The Department of Internal Affairs is devoted to improving the campus and Carolina life through physical improvements and through education of new students to the traditions of the campus. The three commissions under this department work on increasing student services on the campus in general, improving and furthering the residence college system, and orienting students to the ways of UNC.

For the fall of 1966, the Campus Orientation Commission elaborated and refined the new orientation program which was instituted the year before. The staff of thirty students was selected in January and began work early in the spring semester. As evidenced by the freshman evaluations of the fall program the concerted effort carried out responsibly by the entire staff resulted in one of the most effective orientation programs in many years.

The commission set about to shorten the schedule by one day, consolidating wherever possible, and concentrated on having a more stimulating program which would present the university in a concise manner. Significant revisions were planned and successfully carried out in the areas of counselor benefits, counselor manual, commission publicity, religious emphasis, student government emphasis, all social events and receptions, academic programming, and foreign student orientation. The entire staff performed their duties admirably.

At the year's end, however, some questions still remain unanswered. What would have happened if it had rained during the picnic? What if the "Five" hadn't shown? What if the schedules hadn't been ready on time? What if the Dean of Women and MSK had let us men have fraternity receptions for the coeds? What if we hadn't had Hugh Saxon to take care of "Birdie" and the requisition system? What if 10 more professors had cancelled their academic orientation? What if library guides hadn't shown? What if we hadn't had Bob Kepner, Dershie McDevitt, Pris Hager? Fortunately these questions did not need to be answered because everyone did their job, and the program went exceptionally well.

Hurley Thompson, Director of the Department of Internal Affairs

Staff members also successfully carried out orientation programs for the spring semester and for both sessions of summer school. In short, it was a great year for Orientation — 1966.

This year the Campus Affairs Committee has dealt with a variety of campus improvements and enrichment projects with members receiving an opportunity to work in areas of greatest interest to them. A successful Careers for Carolina program was co-sponsored with the Institute of Government. The program was marked by the addition of a discussion of internship programs at the United Nations, and in federal, state, and local government.

Committee efforts in cooperation with the University Business Manager brought the installation of free local call telephones in the library, Chase Hall, Lenoir Hall, and the Pine Room to add to the convenience of students using the phones in these areas. A consultation with the manager of the Book Exchange resulted in the re-opening of the check-cashing booth in the Morrison snack bar.

Several committee members served on an administration-student committee to survey the adequacy of the postal system on the campus in an effort to secure reasonable improvements in the service. Along with specific project areas, a major emphasis of the committee has been to search out ideas for campus improvements, including the use of suggestion boxes, door-to-door polling, and work with the Communications Committee. It is hoped that these efforts have enabled the committee to become increasingly responsive to student needs on campus.

The Residence College Commission, established this year, acts as the authorized agent of Student Government to work with the Men's Residence Council and other campus agencies not directly under the auspices of Student Government in planning, promoting and coordinating the residence college system on the Chapel Hill campus. The commission reviews what other organizations are doing for the residence college system and promotes their programs, when deemed advisable, through the influence of Student Government. Further, the commission actively investigates and analyzes new ideas and programs which, if promising, it passes on to the Men's Residence Council or other agencies with recommendations for implementation. It also serves as a liaison for all of the organizations actively as well as marginally engaged in planning and promoting the residence college system on this campus. It attempts to prevent needless duplication of effort by providing for thorough and effective communication between Student Government and other organizations interested in this area.

The Residence College Commission sponsored a fact-finding trip for the college governors this year to the campus of the University of Massachusetts. Out of this conference grew the plans for classes in the colleges on our campus. It sponsored local conferences on the coeducational residence college concept this spring.

It is the aim of the Internal Affairs Department to make each student an integral part of the University community, and to make that community as desirable as possible.

The Department of Judicial Affairs is the "Justice Department" of the UNC Student Government; it is the regulatory and legal division of the Executive. Under its supervision, orderly campaigns and elections are carried out, the honor system is improved and promoted, and cases before the student courts are investigated and defended. In general, the purpose of this department is to see in so far as possible that the Constitution is adhered to in the various activities of Student Government.

The Elections Board is charged with the successful staging of all aspects of fall and spring elections. This requires supervision of eligibility requirements, education of candidates, and regulation of campaigns as well as the more 'normal' functions of collecting and counting votes. In addition to the two regularly scheduled elections, the Board must conduct all special elections and referendums. If any irregularities occur under the General Elections Law, the members of the Elections Board must make rulings on all disputes.

The supervision of the honor system is the duty of the Honor System Commission, which is in charge of honor education and quizzes during orientation, and with the endorsement of qualifications of candidates for the student honor councils. The Commission is responsible for presenting our system to other student governments and to high schools throughout the state in addition to new students at the University. Finally, the Commission seeks to recommend refinements and improvements in order to keep the Honor Code dynamic and free for obsolescence.

The Attorney General's staff under the leadership of the Attorney General investigates and presents before the appropriate council any alleged violations of the Honor or Campus Codes. The expanding University and increasing importance of the role of the judiciary has necessitated specialization; but, in general, the staff still represents the contact between the accused students and a particular judging body. It was originally set up so that members of the council would not have to do investigation themselves and thus have prior knowledge of the case; yet it now does much more.

Legislative Branch

Bill Purdy, Speaker

The student body may justly be proud of the Student Legislature this past year. The Forty-First Assembly introduced one hundred and six bills and resolutions, more than any other legislative assembly in U.N.C. Student Government history. This record is especially gratifying because it is a result of bi-partisan effort. Both the University Party and the Student Party elected twenty-five legislators. Only on one occasion did Speaker Bill Purdy have to break a tie vote, and even then the tie was a result of bi-partisan voting. So, the success of the Student Legislature was directly attributable to an unselfish attitude among legislators who put Student Government above party and personal ambitions.

Both the Forty-First and Forty-Second Assemblies came to grips with issues affecting all students. Continued investigation in the student judiciary led to bills concerned with limitation of the Campus Code, prohibiting the use of drugs, reorganization of the court structure, and defining the rights of the accused. Creation of the Supreme Court provided the most constructive step in years to promote efficiency in the judicial system. The appropriations and recommendations of the Student Legislature brought educational reform from idealism to reality. By providing for the Riedsville Conference, where administration, faculty and student government met on common ground, the Legislature promoted effective student-faculty cooperation. The great number of bills concerning the University's image in the state showed the degree of emphasis on this problem.

Speaker Bill Purdy discusses matters with University Party Floor Leader Charlie Mercer and Special Legislative Assistant Ken Day.

The Student Legislature also faced a number of technical problems involving the smooth operation of Student Government: the requisition system in the Student Activities Fund, the fixation of income for Graham Memorial Activities Board, and the provision for a weekly legislative report to inform the students about the Legislature's actions. The job of appropriating a quarter of a million dollars was handled smoothly by the capable finance committee and a frugal assembly.

Don't get the idea that the Student Legislature doesn't have its light moments. Representative Randy "Hook-Body" Worth added much to the Legislature's sense of humor and made the hard work more enjoyable. Representatives Richter (UP) and Lury (SP) always had something to say using, more often than not, a light approach to make their points. At one time or another, almost every member interrupted the routine and the sometimes bitter debate with a humorous remark. This enabled the legislators to be all the more cooperative with each other in getting a remarkable amount of work done for the student body.

In its legislation, the assembly put quality above quantity. This is why few bills were defeated in debate. Quiet, effective research may not be spectacular, but the Student Legislature found it beneficial to the student body.

The third branch of Student Government, the Judicial Division, is in many ways the most important. Though it does not affect the daily life of the ordinary student as does the Executive, or allocate the nearly quarter-million dollars of student funds as does the Legislative, it is responsible for the maintenance of honor at the University — and honor is the essence of Carolina. Mainly through two courts — the Men's and Women's Honor Councils — the Division tries violations of the Honor and Campus Codes, but more than that seeks to instill in each student a concept of honorable conduct.

The Women's Honor Council is the judicial branch of Student Government which handles all alleged violations of the Honor Code and the Campus Code committed by women. After going through the procedure of reporting suspected violations to the Attorney General and the investigation of evidence, the trial is presented to the Council, which is composed of twelve students elected from geographical districts and a chairman. Elections for six of the seats are held in the fall. The elections for the other six are held in the spring so as to have experienced women on the council at all times. During the appearance of character and material witnesses, the Council has an opportunity to ask questions, and after all evidence has been presented, the Council deliberates. At this time the verdict is decided. If the party is found guilty, the Council considers not only the individual but the effect of the offense committed on the standards of honor and conduct of the University. In all sentences, there are both corrective and punitive aspects. In addition the council gives a convocation, talks in the dorms, and administers tests each fall spring and summer in order to orient new students to our system. In short, the W.H.C. works in accordance with the entire judicial system at Carolina in that it is trying to promote a more effective and fair honor system.

Bill Robinson, Chairman of the Men's Honor Council.

The Men's Council is the court of original jurisdiction in all instances of violations of the Honor and Campus Codes by male students. It spent a great deal of the 1966-67 year in enforcing these two codes. The council has now been increased to nineteen members, representing all of the areas of male residences.

The Student Constitution grants this body the authority to render decisions which may include council, official reprimands, probations and suspensions.

The Council spent much of its time in promoting the Honor System throughout the campus by leading discussions last spring in dormitories, fraternities and sororities on the various aspects of the Honor and Campus Codes, and the work of the judicial councils. It also worked closely with the Orientation program this past fall in helping to educate incoming students about the responsibilities of academic freedom, social conduct and personal integrity. For the first time, this orientation was conducted in close coordination with the individual residence colleges on campus.

Throughout the year, joint meetings were held with the faculty in order to discuss the problems which arose concerning the functioning of the honor system. Special emphasis was placed this year on the preservation of the individual rights of each student brought up before the council.

The Men's Council attempts to make the Honor System a positive and functioning code of integrity and conduct for each student and faculty member of the academic community.

Both bodies will continue, however, to do its job to maintain the University's reputation of honor, and the students' reputations in such a community.

College And Society Councils

Much of the life of any university (though perhaps less at UNC because of its large off-campus community) is centered around the living areas of residence colleges, fraternities, and sororities. Overseeing residence life are several councils composed of residents from the various geographical units of each type of living and social quarters. These councils are similar to Student Government in that they have an executive, a legislative, and a judicial function.

CAROLINA WOMEN'S COUNCIL is the coordinating body among women's dormitories. It is composed of a chairman elected in the spring campus elections; a social chairman and two activities chairmen from each dormitory; and Mrs. Dorothy Fulghum, advisor from the office of the Dean of Women.

CWC sponsors activities within each dormitory and among all the dormitories such as mixers, Sunday breakfasts, speaker series, and discussion groups. The council also works with other campus-wide organizations on campus to provide further activities for the coed. It strives to promote scholastic achievement by honoring the five freshmen women with the highest scholastic average each year and by honoring the dormitory with the highest scholastic average with a Scholarship Trophy. CWC promotes achievement in all areas of coed life by awarding a trophy to the dormitory chosen Most Outstanding each year. Each spring it honors five senior dormitory women who have been recognized as outstanding in promoting dormitory spirit and unity.

The main goals of CWC are greater unity and enthusiasm among dormitory women, by providing activities which will enrich every area of life for the dormitory coed.

In addition to its legislative function, the council serves as a link between the women students and the administration, as coordinator of dormitory and sorority proceedings, and as a sounding board for problems which arise in the residences. In line with the policy established last spring, WRC is continuing its work in bringing about increasing liberalization of women's rules.

The MEN'S RESIDENCE COUNCIL began the year under a new organizational pattern designed to fit the needs of the Residence College System. The members of the Council are the governors, academic and social lieutenant governors and the speakers of the senates of the nine Residence Colleges. Working in cooperation with student government and the administration, the Council has tried to expand and develop the programs in the Colleges. The year opened with the formation of Granville Towers as a Residence College. This makes every man's residence on campus a part of the system.

The highlight of the year was a trip to the University of Massachusetts by the College Governors and the MRC President for the purpose of studying their Residence College System. The results of the trip are just beginning to be felt. The main result will be an increased effort by the students to include more faculty members in the College program.

The Men's Residence Council Court was reorganized so that each Residence College chooses one member of the Court. The Academic Committee of the Council compiled a Residence College Handbook to explain the Residence College System and briefly highlight the Residence Colleges and the mechanics of the system. The success of the social programs within the Colleges has been witnessed by the large attendance at College social functions.

The members of the Council would like to thank Chuck Longino who as Chairman of Student Government's Residence College Commission and a resident advisor and college master has been instrumental in the furthering of the cause of the Residence College at UNC.

The PANHELLENIC COUNCIL is the advisory-governing board for the eight sororities on campus. This year the Council's main concern was expanding and strengthening of the sorority system as well as the whole Greek system. Specific areas of action include the evaluating and revising of the rush system, fostering interfraternity relationships through workshops for the new officers, arranging cultural programs on hobbies for women, and generally striving for greater cooperation and understanding among sororities. The Council also sponsored a community project, a Christmas benefit project, an all-women's activity with the Carolina Women's Council, and aided in a campus-wide Christmas project.

The Panhellenic Council is composed of the Panhellenic Advisor, Mrs. Larry McDevitt, sorority presidents, sorority rush chairmen, replaced after rush by pledge representatives, two representatives from the Stray Greek Organization, and an executive committee made up of members from each sorority.

Interfraternity Council

In addition to serving as the governing body of Carolina's social fraternities, the INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL has worked to promote a greater degree of cooperation and communication among its members. Being composed of the president and the elected representative of each of the twenty-four houses on this campus, the Council functions as the legislative body for all fraternities. Adjudication and discipline are carried out by the IFC Court which is composed of eleven members.

The Executive Committee, made up of the major officers, formulates and directs policy as well as coordinating the efforts of the various standing committees. The Activities Committee has already completed several successful projects including the IFC Blood Bank, a clothes drive for the Umstead Home, and two workdays for the Christmas House. An IFC Rush Booklet was published and distributed to all freshmen under the auspices of the Publicity Committee.

The Andrew Bershack Interfraternity Council Scholarship valued at $2400 was again awarded to a deserving freshman. Competition is encouraged among fraternities by several IFC sponsored trophies. These include the Sturm Trophy for the year's best pledge class, the Scholarship Trophy for the most improved scholarship, and the R. B. House Trophy for the best fraternity.

To encourage a better understanding of the fraternity system and to compensate for the small decrease in pledges as a result of deferred rush, the Rush Committee sponsored six freshman receptions. These proved to be very successful as did the series of seminars covering various common problems of all fraternities. The latter project, while leading to a conference to be held next fall, was valuable not only for its practical usage but also for its fostering of the ideals of cooperation and communication which have been the paramount goals of the IFC this year.

Publications

The University of North Carolina has an excellent tradition of publications. The Daily Tar Heel is the oldest college or university daily in the South and one of the oldest in the nation. The Yackety Yack is one of the largest and oldest yearbooks in the country, while the Carolina Quarterly has often been the birthplace of future literary talents. The campus has, for the last several years, been without a humor-satire publication; but the Yack and the Tar Heel seem to make up for that — at least the humor part. All three authorized publications are under the supervision of the PUBLICATIONS BOARD.

The composition of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina is as follows: (a) two members elected by and from the Student Legislature, (b) three presidential appointees, (c) two faculty advisors, (d) one member of the Finance Committee of the Student Legislature, (e) the Treasurer of the Student Body, (f) the Secretary of the Board, and (g) the Auditor of the Student Activities Fund Office.

The Publications Board main responsibility is that of overall financing and administering of the Daily Tar Heel, the Yackety Yack, Carolina Quarterly, the Course Evaluation Booklet, and the Carolina Handbook. The primary task of the Board each year is the interviewing and the selecting of editors, business managers, and advertising managers of all student publications. However, the Board doesn't elect the editor of the DTH; but candidates for the editorship of the DTH must be interviewed by the Board in order to have their names appear on the official ballot.

This past year has been a very active one for the Board and its members. Besides having to negotiate contracts for all the student publications, the Board has found itself selecting a DTH editor in the middle of the year, punishing one certain business manager to perform his duties properly, counting disastrous coupons, and performing its regular duties.

The CAROLINA QUARTERLY, the literary magazine of the University of North Carolina, has continued to publish poems and short stories by many of the South's leading writers. Published three times annually, the Quarterly is on sale at almost every convenient spot in Chapel Hill. Under the editorship of Michael Paull, Caryll Powell, Douglas Collins, Peter Cummings, and George Moore the Quarterly has sold this year in record numbers; and, at the same time, it has maintained the high quality of past issues.

One of the first publications a Carolina student is acquainted with is the HANDBOOK. Designed to familiarize the new student with Carolina life, Student Government, extra-curricular activities, and sports, the Carolina Handbook is a source of information and insight into the student life of the University. Used predominantly during Fall Orientation, the Handbook continues to serve as a sourcebook for all students, in addition to freshmen. The 1966-1967 Handbook was one of the finest ever printed, well designed, and packed with more information than ever before.

The Daily Tar Heel, oldest college daily in the South, celebrated its 74th birthday on February 23rd, with the largest circulation and greatest number of issues ever. Under the editorship of Fred Thomas, the DTH piloted its way through such embroiled campus controversies as the Michael Paull-WRAL fight in November. Scott Goodfellow, a second-semester sophomore, filled the Managing Editor position most of the year, and became acting editor on the departure of Thomas from school in late January. He was assisted by such able cohorts as Bill Amlong, Don Campbell, Lytt Stamps and Ernest Robl. John Greenbacker retained the honor of most controversial person on the staff until a car accident removed him from the bidding in late January. Sports Editor Sandy Treadwell kept the office in suspense as the rest of the staff anticipated each new fantastic lead for game stories. The spirit of the staff could not have been better represented by the continuous bubbling enthusiasm of photographer Jock Lauterer. This spirit even extended to Tom Clark's business staff, with whom the editorial staff enjoyed remarkably good relations.

Graham Memorial

The Graham Memorial Student Union, now in its thirty-fifth year, provides entertainment, recreation, and services for the entire student body. As the programming arm of Student Government, it is composed of the G. M. Board of Directors and the G. M. Activities Board. The Board of Directors is made up of both students and faculty, and it determines policy of the Union and the allocation of Union funds. The G. M. Activities Board is made up of nine students: the President, Secretary, and the Chairmen of the Film, Drama, Social, Tournaments, Publicity, Music, and Current Affairs Committees. G. M. A. B. programs for the students not only through these seven committees but also through the "G. M. Series" which brings performers and shows of the highest quality and popularity to Carmichael and Memorial Hall. Graham Memorial itself serves as a building for the students' use — housing the varied student organizations and facilities. From the first concert which ends orientation to Jubilee which climaxes the year, Graham Memorial tries to encompass the entire student body with a diversified program of entertainment and recreation; it strives to provide the student with a rich and fruitful college life outside of the classroom.

Performing Arts

Students at the University are fortunate to have such a dedicated group of their colleagues in the area of performing arts. Working long hours, usually for no other reward than the satisfaction of a job well done, and the knowledge that they have advanced themselves in at least one small way, the members of the bands, of the various choral groups, and of Playmakers constantly stage entertaining and worthwhile exhibitions and performances. Though many go through Carolina without having participated in one of the many groups, there is no one who can say he has not been touched by them in one way or another — from the marching band at football games to the drama series throughout the year.

And away we go

The horn section blows hard and strong.

Bands

The University of North Carolina band program has a place for every instrumentalist who wants to continue his enjoyment and training in music. The program has three organizations: the Marching Tar Heels, the Concert Band, and the Pep Band.

THE MARCHING TAR HEELS presents an elaborate program of sideline music and marching maneuvers at every home football game. The band supports the student cheering section with traditional marches, fight songs, and arrangements of jazz and popular music. Before the game and at halftime, the band takes to the field in its new Carolina blue-and-white uniforms to present a modified precision drill.

Between 1964 and 1966, the Marching Tar Heels more than doubled in size — to more than 130 members — and the group is expected to keep growing from year to year. Not only is the marching band one of the largest student organizations on campus; it is also one of the most spirited. Its activities offer a chance for fellowship and recreation as well as music-making. Besides its appearances at home football games, the band goes to away games in the state and to one out-of-state game each season. It also marches in the Beat Dook Parade, plays for University Day and other ceremonies, and has a banquet after the football season.

At the end of the football season, about eighty musicians are chosen and the CONCERT BAND starts rehearsing twice a week. The concert band performs in the Tuesday Evening Series of the Music Department and plays for Parents' Day and other occasions. Each spring there is a tour of concerts in various cities in North Carolina. Wide-ranging instrumentation makes the concert band a versatile group. The repertory includes everything from Sousa marches and Broadway show tunes to band "classics" and the most modern band music.

This smaller group of instrumentalists plays at football pep rallies and other informal occasions. The PEP BAND also plays at all home basketball games and several away games. Last year it represented the university at one out-of-state football game, too. The group plays school songs, jazz Dixieland, and arrangements of popular music. For basketball season, the uniform is striped blazers and straw hats.

Tar Heel Marching Band in action.

Major John F. Yesulaitis, Director of Bands, is more than just a director of musical activities, but an instigator of spirit, a good teacher, a dedicated musician, and a friend to all who know him. In his willing and unselfish effort, combined with hard work and desire, the bands have been greatly aided in the achievement of a successful program here at the University. It will be mainly his leadership that will be remembered by each of us long after we have departed from this campus.

Our band organizations represent a wide sample of students from the various aspects of campus life. Ninety percent of the more than two hundred individuals that took part in the UNC Band program this year were non-music majors. Many departments are represented within its ranks. The opportunity of friendship and fellowship with individuals from a wide variety of backgrounds is unexcelled here at Carolina. Most bandsmen distinguish themselves in other fields of activities, from $\phi\beta\kappa$ to campus sports. More than one third of the Band's membership is composed of out-of-state students.

Among the activities of our three band organizations was a trip during the fall by the entire Tar Heel Marching Band to Clemson. The Pep Band followed the football team to Athens, Georgia, where support was given in the contest there between UNC and the University of Georgia. Last spring, the Concert Band took a tour of Eastern North Carolina and spent an entire day in a clinic type arrangement with the Rocky Mount High Band and concluded with a joint concert.

Playmakers

"Finian's Rainbow" Finale.

Opening Scene, "Antigone."

The 1966-1967 academic year marked the Carolina Playmakers 49th season as a producing organization on campus.

Serving as a community theatre as well as the laboratory division of the Department of Dramatic Art, the Playmakers presented five major productions, including "Finian's Rainbow" by E. Y. Harburg and Burton Lane, Anouilh's adaptation of Sophocles' "Antigone," "You Can't Take It With You," the Pulitzer prize-winning comedy by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, Chekov's classic "Three Sisters" and a new play by Playmakers staff-member Russell Graves, "The Battle of the Carnival and Lent," presented in conjunction with the 1967 Fine Arts Festival. In addition to the five standard works, the Playmakers also presented three original one-act plays, written, directed, and produced by students, and also a Workshop Program which included six experimental productions.

Aside from offering area theatregoers the best in popular and classic drama, the Playmakers also sponsors the Carolina Dramatic Association Festival held each spring on campus. The activities, which include workshops, demonstrations, and dramatic contests, this year attracted over four hundred participants from high schools and colleges across the state.

Renowned as one of the oldest university theatre groups in the country, the Playmakers enjoyed one of their most successful and well-received seasons in its 49-year history. An extra performance was added to each production in order to accommodate the tremendous student response to the season, a response that is indicative of a growing interest among students for the theatre as an enriching educational experience and as an integral part of university life.

Tipton.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA MEN'S GLEE CLUB has served well not only its university, in the past year, but also its state and nation. During the early summer of 1966, under the direction of Dr. Joel Carter, the Glee Club carried the sound of Tar Heel voices first to our nation, on the nationally televised Ed Sullivan Show in New York, and then abroad during a five week European tour. The Glee Club visited London, Paris, Amsterdam, Copenhagen, Cologne, Lucern, Munich and many other places of note, singing along the way. The Club even ventured into Communist East Germany, stopping at Lupzig and entering West Berlin through East Berlin and Checkpoint Charlie.

At the end of the tour the Glee Club competed in the World Competition at Llangollen, Wales — a severe test for singers and dancers throughout the world. The University should be proud to know the Club received international recognition upon winning third place in the stiff competitive event.

During the fall semester the Glee Club continued its commendable service to its school and state. Under the capable leadership of its interim director, Robert Porco, the Club sang on such programs as the Community Concert series in Southern Pines and the Vardell Hall College concert series. At every event, the club was warmly received and urged to "come again." The Club presented a campus concert in Hill Hall, November 22, befitting the university and its high standards.

Well attended and applauded, the group seems to strive higher each year, attaining every goal it attempts.

"An organized body of college men . . . dedicated to and actively involved in the enjoyment and the performance of good choral music" — so reads the constitution of the UNIVERSITY GLEEMEN.

Under the capable leadership of its new director Dr. Gene Strasser, this group composed of sixty members from all classes has well represented the University by presenting choral programs at various school, hospital, and church activities throughout the area. The Gleemen perform from a varied repertoire of music. Club officers include Vernon Mitchell, President; Andrew Mackie, Vice-President; and David Chrisco, Business Manager.

Aside from the enjoyment the members receive from singing, the group also has various social activities including visits to other campuses. Among the activities of year were a Christmas party, a special program at Butner Rehabilitation Center, and a tour to the Western part of the State, similar to the Virginia trip last year.

The Gleemen are a separate organization within the Varsity Men's Glee Club at the University.

Under the direction of a new coach, Dr. J. W. Pence, the UNC DEBATE program has undergone a major revamping. Hampered by a shortage of experienced personnel, the defending ACC champions have nevertheless carried off honors from tournaments at Boston U., Wake Forest and Duke, and placed high at many others including top national tournaments at Georgetown and Miami. The debaters not only participate in true intercollegiate debate, but also present demonstrations for high schools and civic organizations around the state, and run the state high school championships.

This year's ACC tournament saw Carolina rated as underdogs to much more experienced teams from Wake Forest, Duke and Virginia. However, led by Captain Craig Bradley, the team's only senior, the Tarheels rallied to second place finish losing only to U. of Va. On the basis of the fine showing of the freshman and sophomore debaters, prospects for next year appear bright indeed.

Misfits

When in the course of putting together a Yackety Yack one finds organizations that do not fit in logically with any other group, it becomes necessary to lump them together in a section entitled Misfits. This does not mean, however, that these organizations are not invaluable in their contribution to Carolina life, far from it. The Di-Phi Senate, for example, is one of the oldest and most revered organizations on the UNC campus, while the Campus Chest is one of the most worthy. It is, in fact, more an honor that such groups as the Carolina Political Union are unique in their structure and achievement.

CAROLINA POLITICAL UNION

Anxious to do more than merely observe the turmoil that was Europe in 1936, and concerned with the changes being injected into American society by the New Deal, students in the Political Science Classes of the late Professor E. J. Woodhouse formed the Carolina Political Union.

This Union, designed to promote sponsorship for speakers prominent in public affairs and to promote debate among the selected membership, thrived from 1946-54. During this period the Union brought to the campus such figures as President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Speaker Sam Rayburn, Senators Claude Pepper and Gerald Nye, and Congressman John F. Kennedy.

The C.P.U. was re-organized in the Spring of 1964 by student leaders who felt that such a non-partisan discussion group has a definite place in the University Community. In the past two years the Union has met with such noted public figures as Governors Averill Harriman and Ross Barnett, Senators Jacob Javits and Strom Thurmond, Congressmen Charles Welter, Morris K. Udall, and Charles Mathia, John Kenneth Galbraith, Louis Harris, and James Reston, among others.

The Union meets each Sunday night in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial. Members are selected each semester by interviews before the Union, which is limited to thirty members from both the graduate and undergraduate Student Body.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

The club's highlight of the last year was again the International Dinner, in May, when dishes from Near and Far East were served to friends in town and on campus, and excellent entertainment was presented by Campbell Read (Scotland). Awards for "good international citizenship" were made to Emily (Vickers) Barrett, and John Shelburne (U.S.A.), Chris Muyangana (Zambia), and Richard Hill Brown (England).

In the weekly meetings Sherdenia Thompson (U.S.A.) has directed a pleasing variety of programs. The Club helped organize visits to a tobacco auction and to Wilmington in the Fall. In December an excellent Christmas Party was held at the Olympic Club, Durham, despite brown-bag confusion.

Paolo Motta (Brazil) is a warm, welcoming Social Chairman, and the Club has statistician Jim Kitchen (Canada) as Treasurer — to cope with Requisitions!

Has Club activity aroused greater interest from Europeans, and rather less from the Orient this year? The Club is open to everyone for every occasion.

The heart of the School of Journalism is the UNC PRESS CLUB. Its purpose is to stimulate fellowship among students of journalism and parties with similar interests: to provide forums, speakers, meetings and projects and other activities that will supplement the study of journalism in the classroom and exist as a means for students of journalism to extend their interests. Membership is open to all students of the UNC School of Journalism and to other University students who express an interest in the club's activities. Highlights of the year are the Christmas party and the annual awards banquet held in the spring. Monthly meetings of the club feature noted speakers from all over the nation. Officers for the 1966-67 school year are:

The purpose of the CAMPUS CHEST is to sponsor a mass drive for five organizations, The O'Berry Center at Goldsboro, The Murdoch Center at Butner, the World University Service, the North Carolina Heart Fund, and the North Carolina Cancer Association. The drive was focused on the week of April 10th through 15th. It began with a continuous march through the fraternities, sororities, and men's and women's residence halls. It was boosted by an auction on April 10th, and culminated by the Campus Chest Carnival. All of the functions connected with the drive were advertised by the publicity committee, whose work helped make the drive, auction and carnival a worthwhile venture.

The organization is divided into four parts. These include the faculty, students, and married students in the Chapel Hill area; the Auction Committee and the Carnival Committee.

More than one hundred cadets filled the ranks of the Air Force ROTC this year. With the implementation of the new two-year program, the cadet corps was smaller than in previous years, but the cadet program maintained its level of accomplishment.

An integrated training program on the drill field, lectures during leadership laboratory, and cadet activities such as picnics and a Dining In aided in the development of the future Air Force officers, who were led this year by Thomas H. Clark in fall semester and by James E. Gordon in spring semester.

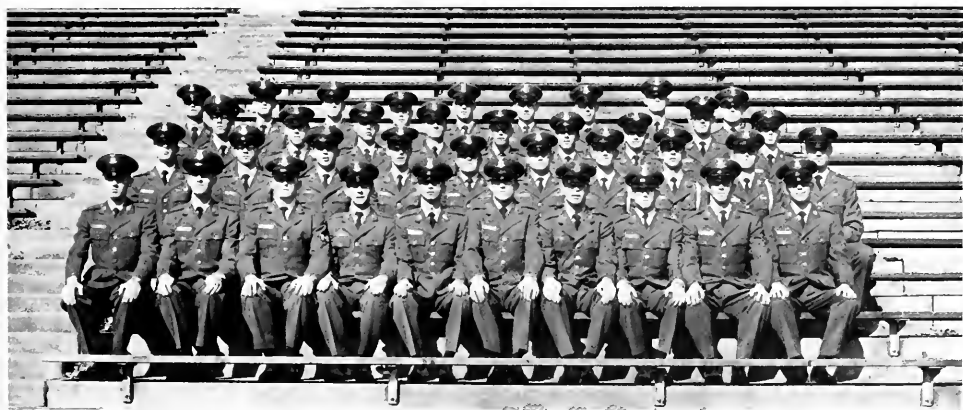

The Cadet Special Projects Officers helped to make the Air Force Academy weekend, corps picnics, recruiting program, base visitations, Parents' Day, and other activities successful. The Cadet Information Staff helped to give the events publicity. Other cadet sections, such as personnel, administration, operations, also assisted in the successful completion of the program. The Cadet Evaluation Board was revitalized, and the cadet lounge was redecorated.

After returning from summer camp, the seniors looked forward to the completion of their final ROTC year and being commissioned as second lieutenants in the U.S. Air Force. This year more than thirty cadets will take the oath of office as officers in the Air Force.

The Arnold Air Society, a national honorary service organization of selected AFROTC cadets, was founded in 1947 in honor of the late General H. H. "Hap" Arnold.

The Bob Hope Show was the biggest project this year for the Jesse J. Moorhead Squadron at UNC. The squadron, commanded by Paul W. McDonald, also sponsored a Christmas party for orphans, a Christmas dance, and several cabin parties. It assisted in the recruitment program for the Detachment and held Dining Ins for its members.

The UNC squadron, which is Area B-2 headquarters for the third consecutive year, supervises the activities of a six-school program in North Carolina and Virginia.

The Angel Flight, sponsored by the Arnold Air Society, is a group of University coeds who serve as hostesses for AFROTC cadets. A national organization with one hundred twenty flights in the United States, the Angels assist the Arnold Air Society in its projects, promote interest in AFROTC, and help to increase the morale of cadets.

Angels at UNC sponsor teas after drills and spaghetti suppers. They assist cadets in service projects such as a Christmas party for orphans and bringing the Bob Hope Show to the campus, as well as participating in social activities.

The Flight also accompanies cadets on Air Force Base visitations and several Angels attend the Angel Flight National Conclave, which was held in Miami, Florida, this year.

The Naval Officers Training Corps, commanded by Captain Rex W. Warner, USN, was established at UNC in 1940, the first ROTC unit on this campus. The UNC unit was chosen again this summer to conduct the six week training camp, a requirement for the new NROTC two year program. The unit is the largest in the United States and has commissioned over eleven hundred officers. Over fifty midshipmen will be commissioned as ensigns in the United States Navy this year.

The NROTC midshipman battalion is commanded by midshipman Captain James W. Sturges and is composed of approximately four hundred university students. Within the battalion are several groups, such as, the drill team, rifle team, and the drum and bugle corps. For the past two years Carolina's NROTC unit has received the highest rating possible in both administrative and military aspects.

Alpha Chapter of the SEMPER FIDELIS SOCIETY was established at the University of North Carolina on October 9, 1952. It was founded by students to prepare themselves as officers in the United States Marine Corps. They set forth objectives of receiving and disseminating policies and vital information pertinent to better understanding of their future responsibilities as officers in the United States Marine Corps; stimulation and protection of the high traditions and ideals of the Corps; and promotion of good fellowship and cultivation of the social virtues of its members.

ATHLETICS

IS AN IN- PART

of Carolina life. The student takes pride, along with the participants, in their victories, and anguishes with them in their defeats.

Student Athletic Council

The Student Athletic Council was established by the Student Legislature in 1959, to serve as a co-ordinating body for athletic matters. The chairman of the council is the president of the Carolina Athletic Association, and the other twelve members represent various athletic oriented student organizations, as well as representatives from the legislature and executive branches of student government.

The council's main project is the planning of Homecoming weekend. Following the usual tradition, the council sponsored the Homecoming Queen Contest and the Homecoming Display Contest. Also a big pep rally was held Friday night prior to Saturday's game in conjunction with the festivities.

Again this year the council sponsored the Carolina Sweethearts, a group of twenty-three coed representatives from all women's dormitories and sororities. The girls met visiting teams, introducing the opposing players to true "Carolina Hospitality".

The council's main purpose this year was to improve school spirit and to promote the non-scholarship sports. Through the help of the Athletic Department and the cheerleaders, we feel it has been a successful year.

Carolina leads the field.

A strong cross country team this year took the state collegiate championship and placed second only to perennial champion Maryland in the A.C.C. A relatively young team has a great deal of potential. Junior star Mike Williams upset the field in the A.C.C. Cross Country Championships, beating out contenders from Duke and Maryland who had previously defeated him. Truett Goodwin also did well for the Heels. The freshman team had an excellent season and likewise took the state championships. There are several bright prospects on the frosh squad for next year's varsity team.

Football

"In those days we used to fill these universities for football, and now we do it for academic events, and I'm not sure that this doesn't represent a rather dangerous trend for the future of our country."

— JOHN F. KENNEDY

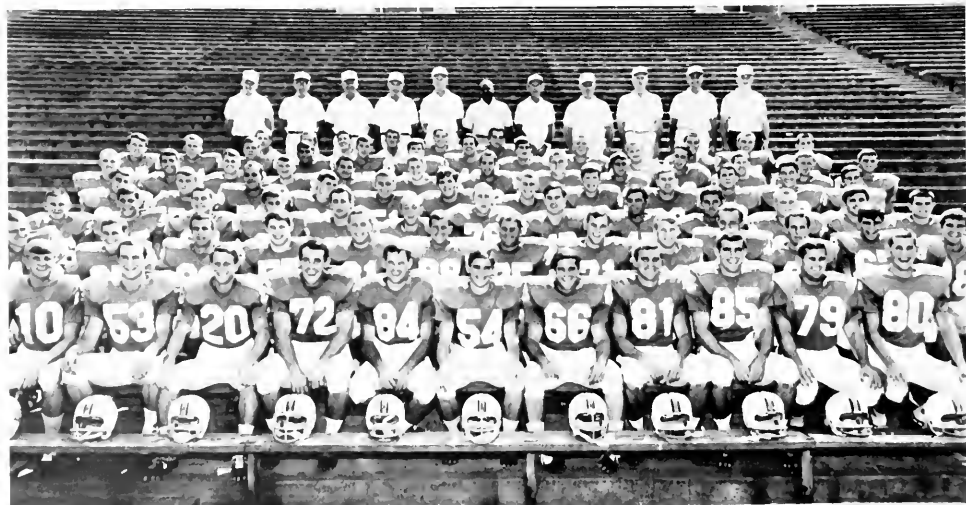

This statement was made by President Kennedy at Berkeley in October of 1962, but it pretty well describes the nature of what occurred in Kenan Stadium during the 1966 football season. Indeed, one might say that Carolina's best showing was in the Commencement ceremonies of 1967. All humor aside, the Tar Heels, rated by pre-season forecasters as one of the favorites for the ACC title, had a most disappointing year. It is tempting to lay the blame to injuries, as the team suffered more injuries to key personnel than should be expected from even the most adverse Fates. UNC's misfortune this year makes putting the responsibility on injuries for a poor season more than the usual hollow cliché; nevertheless, it is too easy to stop at this point without searching for a further answer.

Another facile cliché heard at the end of a less than rewarding football season is that everything is the coach's fault. At Carolina this has been true in a sense, but not in the sense usually meant. Coach Hickey's philosophy of football can be classified as that of gentleman's or "de-emphasized" ball, perhaps best formulated by former quarterback Ray Farris in a statement on athletics at North Carolina: "At Chapel Hill an athlete is first a student — one who is free to grow academically and individually but under the standards that govern all students. While it is a strength of the University and of the athlete, it is often a weakness of the athletic program because it pits Carolina players against teams of some schools which either have dual athletic standards or little standards at all — against teams whose players attend the school for the sole purpose of intercollegiate athletics." In other words, UNC has been playing Ivy League style football against opponents like Michigan, Notre Dame, Georgia, Kentucky, and the Air Force Academy. This is an impossible situation — impossible, at least, for a team that wishes to have better than a losing season. Farris felt that "Carolina . . . will not buy a winning football team at a price costly to the students and to its primary goal." If this is the case, and it should be, then there are only two alternatives: 1) To quit playing "hard-boiled" teams and confine the schedule to ACC opponents and other de-emphasized schools, or 2) To hire a coach who will convince players who meet the University's standards that football is not a game for gentlemen. The latter course has been chosen. Jim Hickey has departed to a league that plays his brand of ball, and Carolina has picked Bill Dooley as his successor, in hopes of returning to the Snavely-Tatum era. It is the hope of the Yackety Yack, and certainly of students, alumni, and others connected with UNC, that Coach Dooley will produce teams rivalling the best in the nation (as the University does now in many other sports) in athletic competence and excelling all others in academic standards.

So much for editorializing. Many feel that it is not the yearbook's place to make subjective judgments on the material it contains; it is difficult, however, to cover a season as embarrassing as the past one without expressing hope for the future. Even objectively, last fall hardly looked anything but bleak. From the great hopes after the Michigan game, even of knocking off the nation's #1 team — Notre Dame, to the final sigh with the end of the season, Carolina fans had little to cheer about. The brilliant scheduling of the Virginia game was not too sharp either. But, disastrous as it was, there was a season.

Bo Wood (81), defensive standout all season, sets sights on nailing Wake Forest quarterback.

Ability to move the ball on the ground, coupled with a bruising defense enabled the University of Kentucky to spoil North Carolina's 1966 debut, 10-0. Carolina missed three tries at field goals despite drives near the goal throughout the game. In the second game against N. C. State, a lone touchdown was sufficient to defeat the Wolfpack, as a late rally gave the Tar Heels a 10-7 victory. The writer for the Alumni Review must have been a prophet as he commented that week: "Indications are that touchdowns will be a rarity rather than the common thing." But his prophecy would not come true for a few weeks yet, as the Michigan game the next week was Carolina's bright star of the season. The Wolverines were soundly defeated by UNC, 21-7. But all hopes were lost as Notre Dame routed the Tar Heel warriors and injured quarterbacks Danny Talbott and Jeff Beaver. These injuries, in addition to the previous losses of Tom Ingle, Bill Spain, and Tommy Dempsey darkened the outlook for the rest of the season. The dark skies turned black as Carolina went down to defeat week after week against the next six opponents. It was three more weeks after the Notre Dame game before the Heels could even cross the goal line. They finally managed it as Air Force won 20-14, in spite of a third quarter Carolina drive. Duke looked like a possible victory, but a hectic final minute resulted in a 41-25 defeat. And as an anti-climax Virginia whipped a dead horse, 21-14.

Carolina Coach Bill Dooley: hope for the future

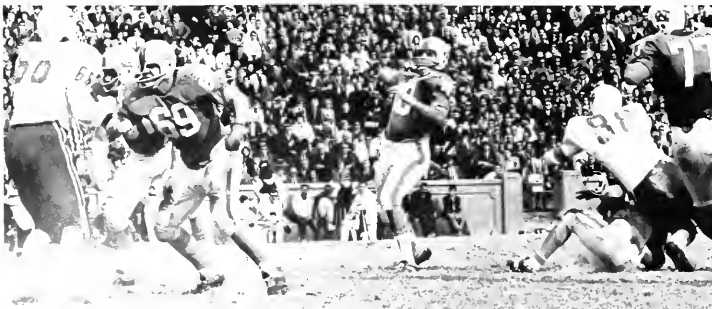

Charlie Carr (80) evades Falcon defenders to snag a pass from Beaver.

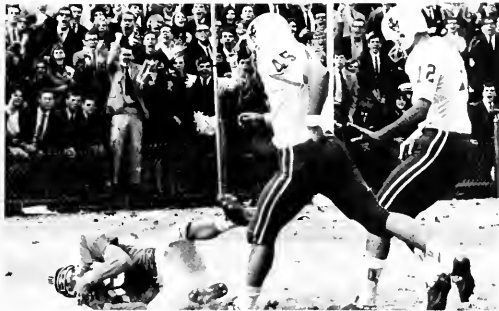

One of the best Carolina performances of the year occurred at San Francisco on December 31, and there was only one Tar Heel on the field. But that was enough. UNC quarterback Danny Talbott was awarded the William M. Coffman trophy as the outstanding offensive player in the annual East-West Shrine All-Star Game. Although Talbott played little more than half the game, he gained 211 yards in three touchdown drives, connecting for his first eleven passes in a row.

Dave Riggs edges across the line for a touchdown against Duke.

This was a frustrating year for the team, and much credit must be given them for continually being up for Saturday's game, in the face of mounting injuries and an increasing number of defeats behind them. After the heartbreaking loss against Duke it is a wonder that a player took the field at all against Virginia. There were several oddities about the '66 season, some of which soften the blow of a disheartening season. Despite eight losing games, Quarterbacks Talbott, Beaver, and Tim Karrs enjoyed a combined passing proficiency of 53 per cent for one of the best team marks in the entire nation. The trio completed 157 of 295 passes for a total of 1,583 yards and yet managed to score only three times through the air. In the matter of first downs the Tar Heels had a season's total of 169 or an average of almost 17 per game while the ten opponents wound up with 163. Halfback Dave Riggs, the Morganton speedster, led the Tar Heels in three departments during the season. He was the team's leading ground gainer — 399 yards in 110 efforts for a 3.6 average, the top performer in kickoff returns with 480 yards in 23 runbacks, and ranked first in punt returns with 229 yards in 20 carries. Although he missed the Virginia game following a mid-week operation, End Charlie Carr was far ahead of all pass receivers with 52 catches for a total of 490 yards. He probably would have a new all-time Carolina record for catches in a single season had he been able to play against the Cavaliers. Talbott led the passers with 69 completions in 122 attempts for 691 yards and two touchdowns, and led the punters with a 37.8 average for 16 boots. He played perhaps his best game of the season in the East-West All Star game, where he led the East to a victory and won the offensive MVP award.

In the last two games of the season with Duke and Virginia the Tar Heels took to the air almost 100 times in a determined effort to win. They threw 50 passes against Duke and tried 48 against Virginia. They succeeded in completing 22 in the Duke game and 26 in the Virginia contest. Their combined passing yardage total for the two games was 520 yards but despite this they could score but once through the air, and that came on Bob Hume's end zone catch in the Duke game.

It was not a good year; the Class of '67 toasts the new one.

Soccer

Bob Johnson, Co-captain

For the first time in soccer history at UNC, soccer coach Marvin Allen has produced an Atlantic Coast Conference co-champion (with Maryland). With a 7-2-1 overall record and a 3-1 conference mark, the Tar Heels outscored their opponents by 42 to 9, a convincing margin.

At the beginning of the season, Allen was optimistic about his team's performance, but had doubts about the team's strength at certain positions. During the season he experimented with different combinations on the line and at halfback. Co-captains (G) Bob Johnson and (CH) Jim Hammer, (FB) Terry Henry, (HB) Danny Calves, (RW) Jackie Writer, and (FB) Jim Johnston were some of the outstanding individuals who calmed Allen's doubts.

Writer and Hammer were chosen after the '65 season to compete in the Olympic trials in which they made all but the last cut: they were still being considered as possible alternates during the past season. Henry, one of nine seniors on the team, was selected by college coaches across the country to an honorable-mention berth on their All-American team.

When a pre-season basketball magazine rated this year's edition of the Tar Heels as number two in the nation, skeptics across the country laughed. Even a few Carolina fans chuckled as it was revealed that Coach Smith was a friend of the editor.

But the team from Chapel Hill soon forced the sports world to sit up and open its eyes. Ranked number nine at the start of the season, the Heels never left the national polls, hovering around third place. The ticket lines got longer and longer, and wherever they went, the U.N.C. team packed the house. All nine home games in brand new Carmichael Auditorium were advance sell-outs. When the hardwood men were on the road, avid Tar Heel fans all over the Hill sat on the edges of their seats, tuned to the determined but somewhat confused voice of Bill Currie, as the drama of the typical Tar Heel squeakers unfolded.

In their debut against Clemson, the Heels were not great, but in spurts gave some indication of what was to come. The first game of the season ended with an eleven-point victory and a first place position in the A.C.C. for Carolina — a slot they never relinquished. Two weeks and two victories later, the team travelled to the home court of last year's runner-up for the N.C.A.A. Title, Kentucky, and achieved a convincing 64-55 victory, knocking Rupp's Wildcats out of the national ratings. In the next five games, the Heels outscored their opponents by 23 points or more each time, and soon sat at number two with an unblemished 9-0 record.

Returning from Christmas vacation, Carolina was handed a crushing ten-point defeat by Princeton University in Chapel Hill. The red-hot Tigers shot 65.5% from the floor in a game which saw Bob Lewis take a fourth foul in the first half, a rare occurrence. Princeton stretched the margin at the end as U.N.C. was forced to foul, an ironic circumstance which Van Breda Kolff's boys would later find themselves in.

Carolina Coach Dean Smith is a 1953 graduate of the famed school of basketball, the University of Kansas. (The first coach there, Dr. James Naacsmith, invented the sport.) A mathematics major, he played on the 1952 national championship team and 1953 runner-up squad. Appointed coach in 1961 under difficult circumstances, Smith has gradually improved his teams' showings until this year's climax, when he was named ACC Coach of the Year. An excellent strategist and recruiter, he is the proud owner of a 92-55 record.

Tom Gauntlett grabs a rebound from Maryland. Sign in the background on Carmichael wall reads, "Our Heels are Red Hot!"

Jubilant Tar Heels hoist Coach Smith above the crowd and carry him off the court after THE victory, a 92-79 trouncing of DOOK University.

Guard Gerald Tuttle gets off a shot against Virginia Tech. Tuttle played an important role as a reserve guard this year.

Carolina rebounded from defeat to take Wake Forest and Duke on their home courts, no easy task by any means. For the Blue Devils, it was their first home defeat in twenty games (The last one was by Billy Cunningham and Co.). A change in momentum there prompted Coach Smith to employ his four-corner offense to maintain a lead, which the Heels calmly executed while 9,000 hostile fans chanted unpleasantly. In both the Wake and Duke matches, it was Larry Miller with the ball at the crucial time that brought victory. The State game before exam break was anything but well-played; the Heels must have been thinking of other things as they barely edged past last-place State, 79-78.

Upon return at the end of January, the team was back in form to stomp Virginia, 103-76. Then followed a fair game against Maryland and two poor ones against Virginia and Wake Forest, both of which were won by close margins. Against Georgia Tech in Atlanta, Carolina suffered another narrow loss, despite a valiant comeback attempt. Top reserves Mark Mirken and Tom Gauntlett were out for that one.

The rematch game against State in Raleigh was executed far better than the first one. Bob Lewis led the Heels through the zone to win, 77-60. At the Charlotte Doubleheader, U.N.C. blasted South Carolina by 25 points, and was even able to take out Lewis and Miller with nine minutes to go. But the next night a hot Clemson club caught Carolina off-guard, as the Heels came out on the short end, 92-88. However, it was not the fault of Dick Grubar, who pulled off several clever steals and scored a season-high of 25 points.

Following another squeaker victory at Maryland, the Tar Heels played one of their finest games against Virginia Tech, roasting the Gobblers, 110-78. V.P.I. had earlier defeated Duke by 14 points. Then followed the low point of the regular season, an apparently impossible 13-point loss to South Carolina. U.N.C. was unable to score a field goal before the wild Columbia crowd for almost ten minutes.

"All right!"

Freshman Coach Larry Brown. A former Tar Heel hardwood man and Olympic basketball star, Brown has led two freshman teams for a combined record of 28-4. This year's squad fielded a 13-3 record despite its relative lack of height. Only losses were to Wake, State, and Duke, teams which the Tar Babies also defeated.

From that point on, it was victory all the way. The Heels again dealt the Devils from Durham a crushing blow, by 92-79, in one of Rusty Clark's finest games. This earned Carolina the A.C.C. regular-season title and top seeding in the tournament.

The first game of the tourney shook the Heels badly as they barely defeated State in a night plagued by ice-cold shooting. In the second game, against Wake Forest, only Bill Bunting's great play helped to keep Carolina in the game during the first half. The Heels were eight points behind in the second half when All-American Larry Miller decided to "dominate" the game and exploded for 29 points in the final period as the Baptists gasped in horror. The Tar Heels again fittingly faced Duke in the finals, and again showed their superiority, taking the Title, 82-73, for the first time in ten years. A long season's effort had come into fruition.

After a hurried celebration, it was on to bigger and better things. A banner on Old West Dorm that week advised, "Put a Tiger in Your Tank and Head for Louisville," referring of course to the N.C.A.A. Regional opener against Princeton, a team which had already dealt the Heels a defeat. The squad, however, was again up for the occasion. Leading during most of the game, Carolina blew its cool at the end to send the game into overtime. There Dean Smith's four-corner offense worked to perfection; Bob Lewis pumped in seven as U.N.C. outscored Princeton 15 to 7 in the overtime period, eliminating the Tigers and avenging defeat, 78-70. The following evening, the Tar Heels had another slow start against Bob Cousy's Boston College team, but came on strong in a beautiful second half to take the Regional Title, 96-80, and head for Louisville.

We wish we could stop here, but good journalism, for which the Yack is famous, binds us to continue. At the nationals nothing seemed to go right. The Heels showed little of the great talent on the court that has made Carolina fans so proud of them. Dean Smith summed up defeat: "I don't want to take anything away from Dayton," he said, "but I would have to say that it was not one of our better games." Yes, we would have to say so. The anticlimactic consolation match against Houston was even worse. Yet, the finale only slightly tarnished a brilliant season for which the players and coaches deserve a great deal of credit. The thrill of winning 26 games and taking the conference championship will not soon be forgotten in Chapel Hill. And we still have something to look forward to again next winter.

Doug Behrman holds the U.N.C. record for the 400-yard individual medley at 4:31.9.

All-American Olympic swimmer Phil Riker won the N.C.A.A. title in the 100-yard butterfly last season.

Swimming

North Carolina's dolphins this year had one of their most successful seasons in recent history. They made good on a drive to place in the top ten in the nation, coming in at the ninth slot at the N.C.A.A. Championships at Michigan State, and taking seven All-American honors. This avenged defeat from N. C. State, which placed eleventh. Posting a 9-3 record in dual-meet competition, the team came on strong at the end and was only narrowly edged by State for the A.C.C. Title. The Tar Heels surprised the swimming world on March 11 by placing second in the Eastern Intercollegiate Championships at Yale University, beaten out only by the Elis themselves. A half-dozen university records were shattered as U.N.C. topped the likes of swimming powers Army and Princeton. The 400-yard medley relay team was clocked at 3:33.6, but could not repeat the feat at the nationals. All-American Pete Worthen's time at Yale in the 50-yard freestyle was :21.0, the fastest time in the nation this year. Phil Riker set two A.C.C. records in the 100 and 200-yard butterfly; conference records were also broken by the 800-yard and 100-yard freestyle relay teams.

Coach Pat Earey was justifiably proud of the team's performance this season. He felt that his men were swimming fully up to their capabilities, indicating the success of the program here. A great deal of that success should, of course, be attributed to Earey himself. Although the Heels will miss graduating seniors, freshmen Frank McElroy and Brad Langdon, among others, should fit in nicely in the right places, adding to the sophomore strength. Prospects, then, appear to be bright again next season.

Sophomore Fred Dannemann, in addition to being part of the winning relay team at Yale, also took the 100 and 200 yard backstrokes.

Joe Sanders holds the U.N.C. record for the 100-yard freestyle at :47.6 seconds.

Lane Verlenden (152), Captain

The U.N.C. grapplers posted a winning season this year, although Coach Sam Barnes was somewhat disappointed by their showing. The team had a 6-5 season and won third place in the A.C.C. Three boys were runners-up for conference titles: junior Fred Priester (177), and sophomores Phil Wanzer (167) and Keith Lyons (145). All of these, of course, will return next year. Six sophomores from last year's strong freshman team won varsity letters this season and the squad will lose only three seniors. As the sophomores gain experience, the team will undoubtedly improve next season.

Wanzer and Priester were the top scorers. John Stacy (137), a junior, lost only one dual meet, as did Priester. The team placed ten out of eleven men in the A.C.C. tournament.

The freshman squad was a little unbalanced, being especially strong in the lightweights. Outstanding frosh included Paul Ogburn (167), Carver Rudolph (160), Craig Miller (123), and Pat Reighard (137).

Last year the U.N.C. Fencing Team placed eighth in the nation in the N.C.A.A. Tournament. This season they started out with a new and inexperienced squad. Victories were harder to come by and the fencers ended up in fifth place in the final conference standings. However, Coach Caldwell looks forward to next year with the return of many varsity fencers, and feels that the more experienced squad should perform better. There are three classes of fencers: sabre, epee and foil. This season's sabre team was undefeated. The epee and foil teams will probably show improvement next season. Captain Bill Teague is the Southeastern Division Conference Champion. He placed in the N.C.A.A. Tournament at Los Angeles. Freshman Richard Betts obviously has a promising future, as he was the team's leading scorer with seventeen wins and only two setbacks.

Golf

Prospects for this year's golf team appear very promising. A strong, deep squad includes seven returning varsity lettermen: Dave Robbins, Steve Robbins, Stan Thompson, David Owen, Brook Carter, Dick VanLeuvan and Brooks Carey. Last year's team placed third in the A.C.C., but this season's squad looks to better that record. Coach Kenney feels that all positions are solid and there are several bright prospects. Optimistic expectations seemed to be borne out as Carolina easily took its first two matches against Davidson (16½ to 4½), and Clemson (19 to 2). The schedule includes ten matches plus two tournaments: the Cape Coral Collegiate Invitational in Florida and the annual A.C.C. Tournament at Pinehurst.

Track

Carolina's indoor track season was successful again this year. The young team had more depth than last season's squad. Most of the team was already in shape from cross country, and the field events men had been working out through the fall. The Tar Heels were undefeated in dual competition and took the Big Six Meet, which includes Duke, Wake, State, Davidson, and North Carolina College. In the field events, outstanding performers were Gary Iverson in the broad jump, Dave Lassiter in the high jump, Rick Davila in the pole vault, and Jon Levin in the sprints. Mike Williams and Bill Bassett were the big men in the running events. Bassett beat out Stenburg of Duke, who had previously defeated him, with a 4:14 mile, and has shown steady improvement. Williams copped the Weil Mile in the A.C.C. Indoor Games here in Chapel Hill with a final spurt that brought the crowd to its feet in cheers. Gary Iverson came in second in the broad jump with a 22'7" mark while Bill Bassett narrowly lost the 1000 yard run in a photo finish. Mike Williams placed in the N.C.A.A. Meet at Detroit and ran the mile against competition the likes of Jim Ryun in a 4:07.6 time, the finest of his young career. The freshman team gave Maryland a scare with a close second place finish in the A.C.C. Meet.

Freshmen Bob Frederick and Kenny Helms are good prospects for next season.

Mike Williams took the A.C.C. Indoor Mile at 4:13.5, and later ran it at 4:07.6 in the nationals.

Bill Bassett has shown steady improvement in the mile and half-mile.

Truett Goodwin will be an important asset in the two-mile event.

Mike Williams (center), and Trip McPherson, (right), will be important men this season.

Gary Iverson looks to be a good man in the broad jump.

The Varsity Track Team did fairly well last season in outdoor competition, placing third in the A.C.C. with a 5-2 record in dual meet competition. Strong sophomore prospects from last year's, good freshman team are expected to improve the varsity this year. Mike Williams has Tar Heel fans excited with his drive to break the four-minute mile. Bill Bassett is also developing strongly in that event. Jon Levin should do well in the 100-yard run and the 220, in addition to the 440 relay. Dave Lassiter is a good performer in the high jump, and sophomore Rick Davila has a good shot at fifteen feet in the pole vault. Ron Short is the man in the discus, while Gary Iverson and Sonny Kornegay are expected to perform well in the broad jump and triple jump. The last two are also high hurdlers. The Carolina freshman team looks forward to an even more successful season outdoors than they had indoors this year.

Last year's lacrosse team was ranked nineteenth in the nation at the start of the season and ended up with a 2-6 record. However, they suffered some tough breaks, including the loss of the brilliant Jeff Parker, who was injured in the first game and never returned. Gone from this year's squad under the direction of the new coach, Jim Bischoff, will also be All-American goalie Harvey Stanley.

This is the fourth season for lacrosse as a varsity sport here at Carolina. The fast game has drawn increasing interest on campus and has become popular among Tar Heel fans. Leadership this season will be provided by co-captains Bob Morrison of Wellesley, Mass., and Tim Balch of Palo Alto, California. In addition to Balch, the attack will be led by George Brown and Jim Callan, assisted by Dick Frank, Doug Holladay and John MacNaughton. The Heels have considerable depth in the midfield with Morrison, Sandy Reider, Temple Grassi, Bill Bicksler and Loring Swasey. Junior goalies Jim Kenan and Bob Wood will be protected by varsity lettermen Rick Inderfurth and John Ward, along with sophomore John Gussenhoven.

A tough schedule this season includes an opener with lacrosse power Washington College, as well as A.C.C. tilts with Maryland, Virginia and Duke (The other conference schools do not play lacrosse). Coach Bischoff looks forward to further improvements in his first season with the stickmen here. Strong freshmen are expected to aid the varsity squad next year.

Tennis

Junior Gene Hamilton, from Asheville, was North Carolina State Men's Champion last year. He will fill the number two spot this season.

This year's seasoned, well-experienced tennis squad has great ambitions. Coach Don Skakle feels that this is one of the strongest teams he has ever coached, and his coaching record already includes the A.C.C. Title in seven out of the past eight seasons. Five men in the top eight are veteran seniors, who own part of the team's phenomenal 39-1 record during the past two years. Spirit and morale have blossomed on the squad this year and should help overall performance. The coach feels that his men are playing like a real team, with concern for the other fellow — an all-important factor. Seniors Bitsy Harrison and Bronson VanWyck will lead the attack, along with juniors Gene Hamilton and Bob Davis, in another season with a demanding schedule. Because of experience and ability on the squad this year, Skakle believes that "there is really no telling how far we can go."

A strong freshman team is expected to continue the Carolina tennis tradition next season. The top eight frosh are varsity contenders and all have great potential.

Baseball

Last season the Carolina Baseball Team was fourth in the nation. The strong club, under the direction of Coach Walter Rabb, went all the way up the ladder to the College World Series at Omaha, Nebraska. There they suffered defeat, but overall performance was still one of the best in years. The Heels took the A.C.C. Title with a 12-2 conference record to earn the N.C.A.A. berth.

This year's prospects are also good. Strong sophomores include reserve outfielder Clem Medley and leftfielder Ronnie Lemonds; Skip Hull should fill in well behind the plate. The pitching will also depend on sophomore performance. Tom Buskie and John Yancey are bright prospects, not to mention the phenomenal righthander Gary Hill, who has tremendous potential. Junior veterans Johnny Richards and Mike Flanagan will also be important on the mound. A strong infield this season contains two juniors at first and second, and two seniors at third and short. A tough offense is again expected to be led by centerfielder Charlie Carr and shortstop Danny Talbott, who gave A.C.C. pitchers a rough time last season. Conference coaches and sports experts agree that the Heels are the favorites to capture the first division again this year.

First String All-American Danny Talbott was second in batting in the conference last season, at a .395 clip. At first base last year, he will spend this one at shortstop. Talbott may well enter professional baseball.

Intramural activities at Carolina are designed to provide a spirit of competition between dorms and fraternities, as well as to give an opportunity for participation in the many phases of athletics for those without outstanding athletic ability. Organized through the intramural office under the direction of Mr. Ronald Hyatt, the intramural program consists of paid managers selected by the participating organizations who form an intramural council, and committee system which directs the activities. Competition is divided into three main divisions: the residence halls, the fraternities and the graduate schools. This university is proud to have one of the most successful intramural programs anywhere, with a very wide range of participation. Intramural sports include tag football, volleyball, table tennis, handball, badminton, wrestling, softball, tennis, track, basketball and horse-shoes. Many other sports and special events are also organized through the intramural program.

BEAUTY

CAROLINA
OF COURSE

is not composed of males alone; the campus would be somewhat dull if it were. The coed is superior, first, for being what she is — a woman; some excel in appearance, some in personality, some in intellect, some in Wit. The true Beauty is all of these.

HOMECOMING
QUEEN

PEACH PEARCE

And as he watched these marvels
In one long fascinated stare of wonder,
Dido, the queen, drew near; she came to the temple
With a great train, all majesty, all beauty,
As on Eurotas' riverside, or where Mount Cynthus towers high, Diana leads
Her bands of dancers, and the Oreads follow
In thousands, right and left, the taller goddess,
The quiver-bearing maiden, and Latona
Is filled with secret happiness, so Dido
Moved in her company, a queen, rejoicing,
Ordering on her kingdom's rising glory,
At Juno's portal, under the arch of the temple,
She took her throne, a giver of law and justice,
A fair partitioner of toil and duty.

Virgil
— Aeneid

HONORARIES

EVERY SO-CIETY HAS

some means of honoring its superlatives; the university is no exception. There are those who excel in academics, and those who excel in extra-curriculars, and those who excel at both. The honoraries at Carolina are dedicated to these students.

Alpha Epsilon Delta

αεδ is an international honor society for pre-medical and pre-dental students. It was founded at the University of Alabama in 1926. The University of North Carolina Beta Chapter was founded in 1936. The object of the society is to stimulate and recognize excellence in pre-medical and pre-dental scholarship.

Sigma Theta Tau

Sigma Theta Tau, Inc., is the only national honor society of nursing in the United States and is a member of the Association of College Honor Societies. Constituent chapters are established in collegiate schools of nursing whose programs are accredited by the National League of Nursing. The Society was first organized at Indiana Training School for Nurses in 1922. Alpha Alpha Chapter was established at the University of North Carolina on October 5, 1962.

Sigma Theta Tau, Inc. is a professional society whose purposes are to promote high professional and individual development and to advance the profession of nursing. Its members are honored for their superior scholarship, qualities of leadership, and capacity for personal growth. Not more than twenty percent of each class may be selected for membership after completion of one-half of the required curriculum.

Gamma Beta Phi

$\gamma\beta\phi$ on this campus is a young organization. It is an honor and a service society formed to aid the university, its students, and the community. Membership is open to men and women students who have above a 2.5 quality point average with preferably no course flunked. This year in the work of the membership will continue the ideals of $\gamma\beta\phi$ — scholarship, citizenship, and service.

S.N.E.A.

The Student National Education Association is the professional organization for college and university students preparing to teach. The function of S.N.E.A. is to provide opportunities for professional growth; development of leadership; understanding of the history ethics, and programs at state and national levels; and participation in professional activities at local, state, and national levels, especially integrating programs of local associations and student education associations. The Carolina chapter is the Frank Porter Graham Chapter of

S.N.E.A. and is affiliated with the North Carolina Education Association and the National Education Association. The officers are (seated in picture) Linda Lauder, President, Mayada Kiser, Vice-President, Stella Alexander, Secretary, Peggy Morgan, Treasurer, Judy Sutton, Publicity Chairman.

SENIORS

THREE YEARS

at Carolina, the Student reaches the optimum of his college career — he is a Senior. After this last obstacle comes the rich reward of graduation. The Yack is primarily a Senior's book, for it is his last remembrance of UNC. And part of that memory is the outstanding faculty that has helped lead them through the University.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

LEFT TO RIGHT:
Alice Dcemer, Secretary;
Martha Menefee, Social Chairman; Jody

LEFT TO RIGHT:
Nelson Schwab, Vice President; Jim Brame,
President.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Isaac Reynolds

Clifton H. Kreps, Jr.

As a past student at Carolina who deserted to join the enemy (i.e., the faculty), Isaac Reynolds, Professor of Accounting, is in, perhaps, a rather unique position to pass judgment on both the UNC student, the UNC professor, and the relationship between the two. On the student and student life, he states: "Since I am a recent Carolina student, I know that most of them are hard-working, dedicated individuals and proud of their school. The beatnik is a typical — not representative of the 'true' Carolina gentleman." As to the professor's role in the student's life, Dr. Reynolds feels that his "role is to do the best to be a good teacher — this means to publish articles and books as well as to do a good job" in the classroom. Other than this main job, his role is to be a good citizen of the University, town, and state, and to do those things which a good citizen should do. Furthermore, "the faculty members of the University should make themselves accessible to groups outside the University — to show a willingness to serve; thus, there would be less hostility from outsiders. The outsider would see that the Carolina faculty (and students) are only human and groping for an understanding of life."

Dr. Clifton H. Kreps holds the unique distinction of being Wachovia Professor of Banking in the School of Business. His background certainly justifies this honor, having received his Ph.D. from Duke and served for six years as monetary economist and chief statistician for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York before coming to North Carolina. With experience in both the academic and the non-academic worlds, Dr. Kreps is perhaps more competent than most to comment on the relationship between the two: "The academic world is very relevant, I think, to the everyday (outside) world in that students carry into it viewpoints and intellectual skills acquired in school. The everyday world is very relevant to the academic, of course, a fact we do not want to lose sight of." Professor Kreps himself takes an interest in contemporary questions, particularly those which affect his field: "I think I can be said to be interested in current issues of all sorts, but especially those bearing on the condition of the economy — the financial aspects of which I try to keep continuously under review."

Richard P. Calhoun

One of the perennial problems faced by schools of business administration is the negative attitude held by many businesses and businessmen toward their BBA and MBA graduates. "They expect to be vice-presidents immediately," and "All they know comes out of a book," are complaints frequently heard. Dr. Richard P. Calhoun, Professor of Personnel Administration in the School of Business, has quite different ideas on the value of academic business training to the future industrialist or financier: "The academic world prepares students in rather odd ways for the 'world of work' in helping them develop self-reliance, some discipline, and a habit of learning. In other ways, campus life aids many students in realizing the importance of accommodating to a wide variety of people — including instructors." At the same time, however, Dr. Calhoun agrees with the critics, in that he feels "even students of business administration are left with too little appreciation of the expectations of 'organizational behavior,' especially ambiguities on the one hand and standards on the other." It is in this type of preparation that "on-the-job training" supplements academic knowledge, however; both are necessary — they are not opposed.

The professor in a professional school is perhaps closer than any other to the conflict between the academic world and that of "real life." Does the one have any meaning or message for the other, or are the two mutually exclusive. Rollie Tillman, Professor of Marketing, sees two sides to the issue: "In one sense the whole of the academic world is supremely relevant to the 'outside, everyday world' because the goal of the one — to bring successive generations of students to a fuller awareness, deeper personal values, and clearer understanding and to higher levels of competence in diagnosing, evaluating, and reaching independent judgment about the universe, culture, and society — that goal finds its fruition in the outside world as educated generations of men and women seek solutions to the problems of their world. In yet another sense, however, the outside world is wholly irrelevant to the academic world because the university is uniquely positioned as an institution dedicated to the search for truth in its many dimensions. Thus it stands apart, unfettered by the values, myths, mores, and conventional wisdoms of the everyday world, subjecting these to ceaseless examination and appraisal."

Rollie Tillman

The position of an administrator at a university is always a difficult one, particularly for faculty members who take on administrative tasks. Many feel that work in the "bureaucracy" interferes with research and with close faculty-student relationships, while others simply do not want the problems that would come with additional work. Not so with Professor Claude S. George, Associate Dean of the School of Business Administration: "My role in general university life is half academic in nature, and half administrative in nature. Both provide satisfaction." Furthermore, he enjoys the aspects of his work which bring him into contact with students: "I have a tremendous respect for and confidence in the typical Carolina student. In my opinion, he shows great promise for the future. I find that working with students provides me with a great challenge as well as a source of real satisfaction. I wouldn't swap it for any other career." Indeed, Dr. George has always devoted much of his spare time to students, and is currently serving as faculty advisor (corresponding secretary) for Phi Beta Kappa.

EDUCATION

Annie Lee Jones

Donald G. Tarbet

R. Sterling Hennis

Associate Professor of Education Annie Lee Jones has spent nine years on the faculty of the School of Education, working with both graduates and undergraduates. Her chief responsibility with the latter has been teaching and advising juniors and seniors in elementary education—most of whom are women. Her particular task is senior methods courses and supervising practice teaching. In the educating of future educators she attempts to get to know each student personally as soon as possible, and to be available for individual conferences to discuss problems and offer words of encouragement. In her own courses, students help to plan and to evaluate; assignments vary to some degree and choice of assignments is permitted. Student participation is encouraged in class discussions, reporting on the literature and research findings, and in planning, demonstrating, and evaluating methods and materials of instruction. Dr. Jones feels most strongly that "there must be a high degree of relevance between life on and off the campus. This gives meaning and purpose to the student (and the instructor) in academe and provides opportunity for the people in the world outside to tap the resources of the University. Living in a narrow campus world would limit dramatically the growth and development of students (and faculty) as well as the opportunity for the University to serve the state, the region, and the nation."

"In the field of education we stress that our academic program should reflect and be based upon the everyday world." Thus says Dr. Donald G. Tarbet, Professor of Education, in commenting on the relevance of the academic world to the everyday world for future educators. He states further, "Scholarship is stressed in order that the future teacher will know the area of his specialization. New methods and materials of instruction, including the latest developments in the field of instructional technology, are emphasized in order that the teacher may be an effective agent in the total learning situation of boys and girls." As to the role of the professor in this academic preparation, Professor Tarbet feels "that a professor has the responsibility of providing the best learning situation possible for the students in his classes. As an advisor he must assist the student in making career choices and yet realize that the student must make the final decision with regard to his future." By fulfilling this responsibility well, the professor discharges his duties to the student, to the University, to the state, and to the nation.

One of the problems of the instructor in the professional schools at the University of North Carolina is a general isolation from most of the students and from the mainstream of campus life as a whole. To this unhappy rule, Dr. R. Sterling Hennis, Associate Professor in the School of Education, is a welcome exception. His own feelings on this matter are that every member of the University community has a responsibility to that community: "In addition to regular duties and assignments in my own particular school, I feel a responsibility to the total university. Interdepartmental committee work and planning by the faculty are important for the most meaningful educational experience for the student. Student activities and organizations, I believe, are extremely valuable and should have the support and encouragement of the faculty and administration. As a fraternity advisor I have the opportunity of working with students outside the pure academic area. In so doing I feel that I am able to understand more clearly many of the current problems related to campus life."

William M. Hardy

John M. Schnorrenberg

William S. Newman

A realism that comes from being a professor in the department of Radio, Television, and Motion Pictures, and an idealism that could only come from a love affair with Carolina, characterize Dr. William H. Hardy. He feels that the UNC student should not be categorized, and that his own role in the student's academic career is to teach, talk, and listen — whatever good, or bad, may come of that. Furthermore, he senses very strongly his position as a citizen of the University — to be concerned and to contribute; it is his belief that academic life should have total relevance to the non-academic world, but, alas, it often has very little." Perhaps if there were more Dr. Hardy's, this would not be the case.

"The best students at UNC are as good as any in the country and they profit by the lively climate of learning that does exist here," says Dr. John M. Schnorrenberg, Associate Professor of Art History. His experience certainly qualifies him to speak on the quality of the Carolina student in comparison with others, having studied at Princeton and taught at Columbia before coming to North Carolina in 1959. Professor Schnorrenberg does not seem to be as enthusiastic over the average student as over the better ones: "The average student is probably not less able than his counterpart in many other institutions, but I am not sure that his opportunities for learning are as great as they are at some other institutions. There is a certain drabness in the circumstances of his life and a certain routinized to much of his instruction which do not encourage him to make the effort to think for himself." It is his feeling, however, that the main task in the learning process belongs to the student, with the implication that if the student does not think for himself, he has only himself to blame: "The facts of a subject exist and they must be mastered by the student's self-disciplined acquisition of them. The libraries and laboratories are here, and if the faculty gives its best effort to making sure that each is supplied with all the books and equipment it ought to have, then the student must find the way and the time to use them."

How does one of the most-published and often-requested guest lecturers on the faculty feel about his role in the student's academic career, in University life, and in society in general. William S. Newman, Professor of Music, is outspoken in his devotion to UNC and the UNC student: "In my nineteen years the Carolina student has never seemed so fine as right now, and the same goes for "Carolina" life. I hope my own role in his career is a major one, and that what he can get from the faculty is a major reason for his coming to Carolina." Dr. Newman believes the Music Department in particular has much to offer the University community: "The general music classes we give for the layman, the choral and instrumental organizations that are open to him, the concerts that we offer at little or no cost, should, I believe, make a substantial university contribution." Professor Newman is concerned further with the place of the University in the "civilian world": "I am interested and try to keep in touch with everything that affects the University, which includes both the educational goals and the world scene. The more contact with the outer world the better. The academic world must keep in touch with the everyday or we've lost the battle not only for education but for the 'good life.'"

Kimball King

Assistant Professor of English J. Kimball King has had experience with students on a number of campuses before coming to North Carolina. The UNC student compares favorably with other students in his opinion, while all modern students have his respect for their industry. "Carolina students are like students I have known at other universities — Wisconsin, Yale, Johns Hopkins. College students today generally work harder than my friends and I did ten years ago." Dr. King does not feel, however, that this increased effort stems entirely from a greater desire on the part of the students: "This appears to be the result of increased competition in the professions and the pressures of the draft. Today's harder-working students do not necessarily have a greater love of learning or a wider range of interests." He would welcome some changes in the Carolina student body, which he believes would improve it significantly: "I would like to see a more heterogeneous undergraduate population. A larger quota of well-qualified out-of-state students would be good for the University's national reputation and would prepare students more realistically for life in the world 'outside.'"

Werner P. Friederich

Kenan Professor of German and Comparative Literature Werner P. Friederich is one of the most honored and distinguished men on the UNC faculty. Trained in Switzerland, at the Sorbonne, and at Harvard, Dr. Friederich has served as a visiting professor at Duke, Colorado, Berkley, Bern, and Zurich, and his publications range from Dante to Australian Literature. With all his cosmopolitan experience, however, he maintains a deep interest in his adopted state, North Carolina; he sees his task as mentor and as a member of the University "to impress upon students the big challenges ahead of them — for North Carolina is still far below the national average economically and educationally — and to never compromise with mediocrity and lowering of standards." Mainly, Professor Friederich would like to contribute toward making UNC students the elite of the state, if not the nation.

Alfred G. Engstrom

"As a Carolina alumnus I find the changes in certain aspects of student life most striking. The greater intimacy of the good old days seems gone but perhaps the residential college idea may do something to bring it back. Generally the caliber of students is impressively improved with better academic preparation and more serious attitudes." These are the feelings of Lawrence A. Sharpe, Associate Professor of Romance Languages on the Carolina student. Though his field of interest — Portuguese language and literature (particularly Brazilian literature) — brings him into contact with perhaps too few members of the University community, he is very certain of the language professor's position in that community: "I feel that my function is to stimulate interest in the culture of other countries and an appreciation for other than American solutions to general human problems. We Americans all too often tend to think that we know all the answers, when very clearly we do not." This philosophy pervades Dr. Sharpe's view of current issues: "The Vietnam War is of course of great concern to all Americans, but it reflects among other things a certain ineptitude on the part of us Americans in dealing with other peoples, a certain inflexibility of approach, and a lack of understanding of other peoples."

Lawrence A. Sharpe

Alumni Distinguished Professor of French Alfred G. Engstrom is a most unusual man in many respects. First, of course, there are the numerous honors and awards Dr. Engstrom has received during his career, including a baccalaureate degree with honors, Phi Beta Kappa, the Tanner Award for Excellence in Undergraduate Teaching, and service on several honorary committees and editorial boards. Second, there is his long association with the University of North Carolina, having received his AB, MA, and PhD here, and taught in various capacities since the reception of his Masters degree (1935). There is also Professor Engstrom's great interest in relatively unexplored fields of literature — folklore, the occult, synaesthesia, and unorthodox symbolism the voices of plants and flowers, the changing cry of the mandrake, the symbol of the bird in flight, the Tarot cards in Gerard de Nerval, etc.). And finally, there is his devotion to students and teaching, as demonstrated by the popularity of his Intermediate Survey of French Literature with undergraduates, and his Nineteenth Century Survey and Modern Literary Criticism courses with seniors and graduates.

HUMANITIES

Dougald MacMillan

Dr. Alfred G. Engstrom (another honored Humanities Professor) has many times advanced the query as to what type of man specializes in the Eighteenth Century. The answer that seems most obvious is that it takes a man of Wit to study that period of Wit. Dr. Dougald MacMillan, Kenan Professor of English, is such a man, for he ably fits Pope's description: "True Wit is Nature to advantage dressed, What oft was thought, but ne'er so well expressed..." Professor MacMillan has concentrated his studies in the prose and poetry of the Restoration and early Classical period, and in the drama of the Restoration and Eighteenth Century. In the latter area he has co-edited an excellent volume containing a representative selection of plays from the period, as well as having authored numerous other publications on both non-dramatic and dramatic literature. Undergraduates who are able to enroll in Dr. MacMillan's drama class are fortunate, indeed, for they are working under a knowledgeable man.

O. B. Hardison, Jr.

It is not often that the University of North Carolina has one of its professors gain such popular prestige as being featured in Time magazine as one of the nation's outstanding professors. Yet, for O. B. Hardison, Jr., Professor of English, this recognition is only one of many, having held Fulbright and Guggenheim Fellowships, taught at Princeton University, become a full Professor at UNC in only six years, received the Salgo Award for Undergraduate Teaching, and chaired the Southeastern Institute of Medieval and Renaissance Studies. A past student of the University himself, Dr. Hardison waxes enthusiastic over his current successors: "I feel a deep sense of gratitude to this university for the kind of education and social experience that it provides. It is an open, not a closed university, and it combines emphasis on excellence with the realization that excellence is achieved by different people in different ways. We value outstanding academic performance, but we do not believe that a student is to be measured solely by his quality-point average. The active student government that we have is a vital factor in college life for both students and faculty. Fortunately, the UNC student government is independent and highly productive of ideas that benefit the entire community. The same thing is true of the Daily Tar Heel, which is one of the best college newspapers in the country, if not the best, and of such student-faculty enterprises as Graham Memorial.... Two outstanding products of the University atmosphere are the Honor System... and the mature, responsible, attractive quality of most of the students with whom I come in contact."

JOURNALISM

Professor of Journalism Walter Spearman is well-known on the UNC campus for two reasons: first, he is the instructor of Book Reviewing and Dramatic Criticism for Newspapers (Journalism 60), one of the most popular courses in any department (and mainly due to Dr. Spearman's knowledge and personality); and second, he is the father of former Student Body President and Rhodes Scholar, Robert Spearman. In this dual position he is perhaps better qualified than most in understanding the student at the University: "How does one generalize about 'the Carolina student and Carolina life? One of the most exciting aspects of teaching at UNC is to see the maturing, intellectual growth and widening of horizons for a student between his freshman entrance and his senior departure—particularly in those students who come here honestly in search of an education rather than looking for four years of postponing a career decision or avoiding the draft. Regular college courses are the basic reason for being here. Some students realize this, others do not. But I have also seen a lot of growth and development through student government activities, the Symposium and Fine Arts Festival, the Tar Heel, Playmakers, and other extra-curricular interests. What gives me concern is the large number of students who drift aimlessly through their four- or five-years, with little focus either on academic work or in extra-curricular activities. As the University grows larger, the students to become lost in the mass or adrift in an eight-story dormitory. I am particularly pleased with the development of the residence college system, particularly worried over the lack of sufficient counseling and advice for freshman and sophomores. I think fraternities and sororities on the campus need to shift their focus from the purely social aspects of life to some genuine encouragement of academic excellence and member participation in campus activities, while dormitories need to provide greater sense of belonging to a small unit and also better social activities for those not in fraternities.

Walter Spearman

Occasionally the University of North Carolina is fortunate in having as lecturers men who have enjoyed distinguished careers in the non-academic world. Such a man is Mark Etheridge, nationally distinguished journalist—a man decorated with numerous honors, including honorary degrees. He sees his role here at the University to "primarily give students the benefit of what experience I have had in newspaper work." Since that experience is quite extensive, students who take his course can certainly profit from it. They can also learn much from Mr. Etheridge's long association with public life, and his application of this association to current issues: "I am interested in all public questions, including Vietnam, civil rights, and the silly brown-bagging law. Also, it seems stupid to me that there should be talk of a tax reduction as long as North Carolina is so far down the scale of states in education."

Mark Etheridge

Professor of Journalism Kenneth R. Byerly is unusually well-informed on all phases of University life, having taught geography (and served as an assistant to the late Dr. Collier Cobb) before moving into the department of journalism. It is his belief that the professor plays an essential part in the University; his role "in the career of students is to stimulate them to learn and understand, give them the information and ideas they seek, and be demanding in a way that will better prepare them in mind and mores for the outside life ahead." Dr. Byerly discharges his own professorial duties by fulfilling this obligation and by pursuing research in his field, keeping up with new thinking and developments, and serving the journalism and other fields in the outside world as well as the University. His own personal concern is with people—"their thoughts, troubles, satisfactions and joys," and he exhibits this concern for the "people" of UNC in both his academic position and his position as advisor to the Publications Board.

Kenneth Byerly

In no area is the relevance of the academic world to the non-academic more crucial or contested than in journalism; for years professors and professional journalists have argued whether collegiate preparation or on-the-job training provides the formula for a successful career. "The academic world must have relevance to the outside world," states Alumni Distinguished Professor of Journalism Norval Neil Luxon, "because we in the field of professional education for journalism are engaged in preparing young men and young women to enter the area of communications." Responsibility to one's public, according to Dr. Luxon, is the essence of a good journalist and the aim of undergraduate journalism training: "The individual... should be qualified to interpret the events to his readers or listeners. Thus, in courses in journalism, I personally feel a responsibility to arouse or awaken in the student a sense of his responsibility to the public which he will serve." But how is this responsibility to be awakened, what exactly is the role of the journalism professor in preparing his students? For Professor Luxon his task is "to keep pace with the rapidly changing developments in my area, to transmit to the students in my classes an awareness of these changes and their significance, and to do what I can personally to see that... scholars are granted complete freedom to pursue truth." In light of this last statement, Dr. Luxon has a great concern about the free press—a fair trial controversy between newspapermen and lawyers, and in general about freedom of the press.

H. E. Lehman

Donald C. Jicha

Richard C. Jarnigan

Vinton A. Hoyle

The question of whether the academic world sets the standards for the everyday world or merely follows those set by the latter is always one of great interest, especially in the sciences where there is often the conflict between pure research and research for consumer items. Dr. H. E. Lehman, Professor of Zoology and chairman of the department, believes that the "academic world never is, and most certainly never should try to be in step with its own times. It should be both far in advance of the outside world in the recognition of creativity and in giving refuge to the ideas that will mold the future. It should provide a damper to excesses of political and social innovation that are in the long test of history ill-advised. The Academic world is most relevant to the outside world, therefore, in being entrusted with the responsibilities for intuition and wisdom on the major problems facing the future of mankind."

The conflict between research and teaching is one that perennially raises its head, and is of special importance in the natural sciences. For Associate Professor of Chemistry Donald C. Jicha, however, there is no conflict; the two, rather, are complementary: "Through my search for knowledge, my creative use of academic findings and my respect for academic ideals, I can inspire other students to draw from the university those elements which will enable them, in turn, to contribute to the university via their contributions to themselves and to society." Moreover, he interprets his position in a student's life not as one of meeting his needs, but "of making him aware of needs not yet realized and of preparing him to function effectively without the crutch of the instructor." All this is not to say that Dr. Jicha is removed from students—far from it; for him the raison d'être of the academic world is the basic education of the student by exposing him to generative courses. In this way, "his exposure to basic elements of reasoning will enable him to meet new situations and to draw conclusions from matters academic and nonacademic."

Yale trained physical chemist Richard C. Jarnigan takes his work very seriously, as a respectable scholar should. He sees his role in the academic career of future scholars as one who demonstrates and points the way, not as one who makes others learn: "I can present a subject as it appears to me; only the individual can teach himself. I can give guidance and state my opinion as counselor; only the individual can make his decisions." On the nature of the individuals who make up the student body here, Dr. Jarnigan feels that "students appear to me to be much the same everywhere; some are aggressive, some are compliant, some are eager, some are not 'students'." Professor Jarnigan believes that for those who have made it through the gauntlet of student ordeals and become professionals in the sciences, "there is little difference between the everyday world and the academic world. Small differences in distribution of responsibilities exist but the basic goals are the same."

It is often felt by many that the sciences are dehumanizing—causing the men who work in them to lose their aesthetic appreciation, their religion, and their sensitivity for human relationships. If this characterization is correct, Dr. Vinton A. Hoyle certainly does not fit the mold: "The technological advances in the sciences have come almost exclusively from the academic world. In large part the research is done in the universities, the remaining by university trained people who have forsaken the academic world, drawn by more money. Many of these later return to the academic field. Our lives are so tied up in and controlled by machines that it is needless to dwell on it. Sadly to say, advances in our relations with our fellow-man has not kept in this direction." In light of this feeling, Professor Hoyle believes "that the Church has a large job to do, in addition to the much it has done in the past."

Thomas W. Noonan

Assistant Professor of Physics (specializing in astronomy) Thomas W. Noonan is rather outspoken on the subject of students and student life at Carolina. He feels that the average student finds little academic satisfaction, needing only beer parties and sex, most amusing to Professor Noonan is the students' attitudes toward exams, which he has reduced to a four point formula: "The purpose of any exam is to produce a prolonged state of tension and anxiety, therefore, 1) Do not study any material for the course until the night before the exam. The desired state of shock results from looking at material never before seen. It helps for the student to get behind in all his courses; 2) Stay up all night before the exam, in order to achieve the proper state of physical fatigue. In the case of a final, stay up the two previous nights; 3) During the necessary breaks in your pre-exam study (latrine, water, pills, etc.) let your mind be weighted heavily with the importance of the exam in determining your grade and the importance of the grade in determining your future. In no case should you allow your mind to wander; and 4) During the exam, go through the questions in order. Finish one before going to the next. Avoid any wandering of the mind as this may permit mental relaxation. Do not leave your seat, as you want to maintain physical fatigue. If there is any uncertainty about the meaning of a question, figure it out yourself; do not ask the instructor." Needless to say, Dr. Noonan interprets his task as persuading students to follow the opposite of this strategy.

Margaret L. Moore

Sarah A. Miller

Margaret L. Moore makes the following comments:
 "We, in Physical Therapy, have the opportunity and, I believe, privilege of working more closely with our students than is possible in many other programs on this campus. The thirty freshmen who are accepted onto this campus for study are known to us prior to their admission and we have the opportunity of working with them informally during the two years that they are in the general college. We then get to know sixteen students in our junior and senior classes in the School of Medicine very well and feel that the closeness with which we deal with the students is helpful to them and to us in our teaching efforts. We are one program which has not gotten too large for close and cordial student and faculty exchange, and we hope to maintain this type of liaison with our student body. This phase of our activity is most gratifying and has appeared to our students, both at the freshman level and the junior-senior level, as well as to our graduate, as one of the hall marks of our program."

Mary Clyde Singleton

"My contacts are largely with small classes — mostly girls — of Carolina students. I find them attractive, intelligent and delightful to teach. I have always been impressed with the loyalty of the majority of Carolina students and alumni." These are the feelings of Mary Clyde Singleton, Professor of Physical Therapy; certainly this respect for her students is reflected in her devotion to teaching, in which her aim is to prepare physical therapists as well as possible for their careers. "My teaching responsibilities for the most part lie in the field of anatomy as related to physical therapy students. Particular courses are gross anatomy, histology, and neuro-anatomy. The objective is to present these subjects with a specific emphasis on those areas of essential importance to the physical therapist."

PHYSICAL THERAPY

SCHOOL OF PHARMACY

Someone has said: "... each man has his own potential in terms of achievement and service." George Philip Hager was elected to be the sixty-fifth president of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy because his colleagues were aware of his potential and impressed by his rectitude. In Dean Hager the Association recognized a man who, cognizant of the currents and undercurrents of professional opinion, could express the purposes and the problems of the Association in clear, nonemotional terms. On this relationship between the academic pharmaceutical institution and the professional pharmacist, Dr. Hager believes that "there is no question about the great importance of a high level of sensitivity and responsiveness on the part of the academic community to the dynamic needs of modern society. Perhaps this fact is particularly pertinent to the roles of health professional schools. I believe that our attitude can be epitomized by a statement published recently by Dr. James L. Dennis in the American Journal of Public Health: 'A medical center can assume a meaningful role in the community only if it complements the triad of 'education, research and service' with a fourth charge — that of medical social responsibility.' In my opinion, where 'medical' appears in this statement, it should be interpreted generically as 'health professional.' Alternatively, I would substitute 'pharmaceutical' to express the particular aspirations of the School of Pharmacy.

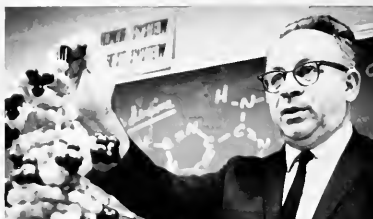

George P. Hager, Dean

"In the area of civil liberties, the South has now accepted equal rights for all citizens. Unfortunately, we have accepted this slowly and reluctantly. Throughout this period and still today we are acting defensively. If we could take the initiative we could make rapid progress without serious interference and do it in the manner best suited to our circumstances. We need good leadership in the South and from the South in this movement." Dr. A. M. Mattocks of the School of Pharmacy understands his task to be an instrument in providing such leaders, not just for civil rights but for all facets of Southern life: "My role is primarily that of a stimulant — stimulate the interest of the student, encourage him to develop his talents, make him aware of the opportunities. I feel that the individual attains maximum satisfaction through maximum contribution to society. The student's greatest obstacle today is the lack of courage to endure the hardships, face the sacrifices necessary to reach his peak. The outside world still looks to the University for leadership in thought. We must make greater effort to give them the leadership they seek."

A. M. Mattocks

Dr. Claude Piantadosi, Professor of Medicinal Chemistry and Biochemistry, interprets his task in the preparation of future pharmacists and others as threefold: "To provide students with a general, scientific and professional education necessary for a fruitful and satisfying career in the health sciences relating to the discovery, production, custody, and use of drugs and to help them to realize their role in society; to develop in the students an inquiring and critical mind, a sense of personal and professional responsibility and charitable attitude toward mankind; and to provide the student with the necessary educational equipment to function competently not only for the present but also to meet the demands of the future."

Claude Piantadosi

Father of a growing family of eight, Dr. James L. Brannon, Jr., has an intense interest in life around him. This interest extends, of course, to his students at the Pharmacy School, whose senior class this year he describes as "red-hot." Students in general, Dr. Brannon believes, are "a little artificial around the edges, but on the whole — solid"; his own role in the preparation of these individual he hopes is "a real live one." He would like to see the University as a whole become more relevant to the everyday world by being more down to earth.

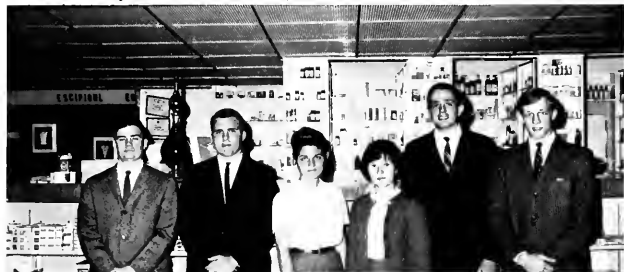

James L. Brannon, Jr.

Founded in 1897 and offering a complete five year pharmaceutical program, the School of Pharmacy provides the finest pharmaceutical education and is recognized as one of the top schools of pharmacy in the nation under the leadership of Dean George P. Hager. The past year has found tremendous strides taken in building a graduate program and a faculty second to none. Today's students will be tomorrow's pharmacists ready to adapt to their rapidly changing profession.

Many fine student organizations provide the student with a well rounded education and social program as exemplified by $\phi\delta\chi$, $\alpha\psi$, $\kappa\epsilon$, $\rho\chi$, and the Student Branches of the North Carolina and American Pharmaceutical Associations.

In addition to the standard instruction of the pharmacy students other programs have been undertaken such as guest lecturers, seminars held by prominent men in the pharmaceutical field, and undergraduate research programs.

During this year the School of Pharmacy has vastly broadened its already extensive research program including the new field of biopharmaceutics. The school has extended its research program with adjunct professors at the Research Triangle Center and Oak Ridge Research Center and with the School of Medicine and Public Health. This school is a fine example of the progress being made in the pharmaceutical profession.

SOCIAL SCIENCES

David T. Lapkin

John W. Thibaut

There is often a conflict between the scholarly and brilliant faculty member and the popular teacher. On the one hand he has distinguished his department, his university, and himself by his research and publications, but is a poor and aloof professor; or, on the other, he is an interested and enlightening instructor but has not completed successful research. This, however, is not the case with Professor of Economics David T. Lapkin: he is an accomplished scholar, having been trained at Harvard and Columbia, served as an economic advisor for the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, and prepared for publication an exhaustive study of the central and commercial banking system in the United States; he is also, however, popular in the classroom with both undergraduates and graduates, as exhibited by the frequent "closing-out" of his courses. Professor Lapkin, in fact, blends the two seemingly opposed areas by imparting to others through the classroom the benefits of his research and knowledge. Moreover, he takes a deep interest in Carolina students, particularly the honors students that he advises. It is a mark of his concern for his department and his field that he is ever excited at the increasing number of those honors candidates who decide to major in economics.

Asked about his feeling on the relevance of the academic world to the everyday world outside, Dr. John Thibaut, Chairman of the Psychology Department, replied rather strongly in favor of the academic: "It's the relevance of the everyday world that I worry about." Indeed, he is rather pleased with the University today, and the contemporary Carolina student: "Both are bigger, better, and brighter than they were 30 years ago." Yet, even as a psychologist, he has an identity problem: "No student has ever been able to give me a clear-cut answer to the question of my role in their academic career. My role in general university life is equally mysterious."

Dr. Carl S. Blyth has had a long career at the University of North Carolina, having received his MA and PhD here before joining the faculty. At the same time, however, he has also enjoyed a distinguished career in areas outside the University, having served as chairman of the NCAA committee on Competitive Safeguards, chairman of the American Football Coaches Association committee on Athletic Injuries, and a member of the Research Task Force of the President's Council on Physical Fitness. Though his main concern is physiology and anatomy as they apply to athletics, Professor Blyth's extra-scholastic interests also apply to national issues: "I believe all aspects of our national life are influenced by the "limited" war in Vietnam. This issue is focused more forcefully on our campus where the war and draft play such a dominant role in the career planning of the Carolina student. The emphasis on grades and the urgency with which too many students attack their academic work is a result of the Vietnam war in particular and the political unrest in the world in general. I am hopeful that the proposal of allowing a student to take certain courses bearing only a pass or fail grade will remove some of the emphasis on grades and thus reduce unnecessary pressures on the student.

Carl S. Blyth

One of the first items encountered by students in Political Science 41 is a not-so-little collection of readings in American Political Theory and Practice; in fact, this book becomes a Bible that all learn to know and love. One of the authors, Dr. Andrew M. Scott, would surprise most of the fans of his text by his tremendous sense of humor. He sees his role in university life as an agitator, while with the students themselves he says, "I try not to do any harm." At the time of his interview, he stated that the current event of most interest to him was Christmas vacation. On the serious side, however, Professor Scott's academic credentials are impressive, having received his AB from Dartmouth, his MA, MPA, and Ph.D. from Harvard, and having taught at Dartmouth and Haverford before he came to UNC. Besides the text, Politics: USA, mentioned above that he wrote with UNC Professor Earle Wallace, Dr. Scott has published seven other books ranging from Communism to Congress and Lobbies, in addition to numerous articles. He has contributed greatly to the strength of the Political Science Department, particularly in the field of U. S. Foreign Relations; but what many do not know is his contribution to the James Bond gang as a past member of the CIA and the Mutual Security Agency.

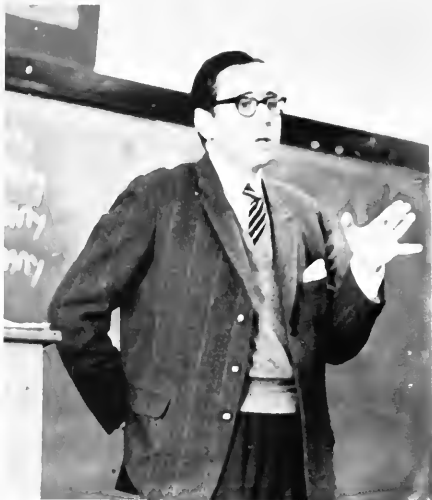

Andrew M. Scott

"All kinds of students are found at Chapel Hill. The life they live is by turns colorful, dull, gay, tragic, joyous, hopeless, and always disordered." These words express the view held by Dr. G. V. Taylor on Carolina students and Carolina life. One of those rare birds specializing in European History (rare for a university almost totally oriented to American Studies), Professor Taylor is one of the most popular instructors in the History Department. He has received the Tanner Award for Excellence in Teaching, and has been made an honorary member of the Order of the Golden Fleece; he sees his role as "indicating some ways in which knowledge can be developed, formulated and organized; convincing students that no idea may ever be granted sanctuary from criticism; and communicating the excitement of scholarship."

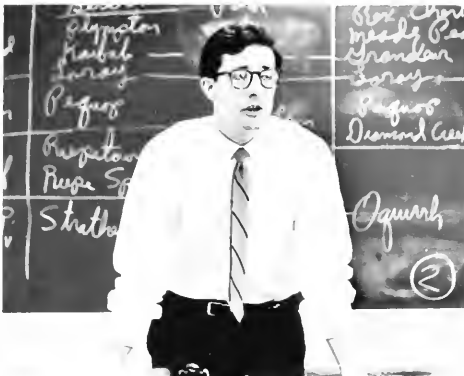

The past few years have been ones of controversy over the place of the University in society. "The mission of the academic world is to provide the non-academic world a great variety of discoveries and services," says Dr. Taylor, "one of which is to study the non-academic world, criticize it, and interpret it to itself." In order that the academic society fulfill these responsibilities, he believes that it "must remain intellectually and politically autonomous and, to that extent, separate from the society in which it exists." Yet, he is not advocating an ivory tower University, for he himself is vitally interested in the problems of the twentieth-century. "Behind all the great twentieth-century issues lies the question of whether a full, dignified, and meaningful life is or is not to be made possible for every man, no matter where or in what condition he has been born, to choose or reject." Indeed, G. V. Taylor is a man vitally concerned with all facets of life and living.

George V. Taylor

Stephen B. Baxter

Lewis Lipsitz

H. Douglas Sessoms

To Professor of History Stephen B. Baxter, present individual liberties and Early Modern English History are closely related. The struggle of the English people to gain personal freedom through three dynasties (Tudor, Stuart, and Hanoverian) closely parallels the struggle of all people to be free from the whim of tyranny. An interest in administrative efficiency (i.e., the growth of English governmental administration) also characterizes Dr. Baxter's research and teaching specialization. A graduate of Harvard College and Ph.D. recipient from Trinity College, Cambridge, Professor Baxter has recently completed a major biography of William III, in addition to his Development of the Treasury, 1660-1702, and numerous articles and reviews. Although his scholarly attitude appeals particularly to graduate students, his courses in Medieval England, Tudor and Stuart England, and Eighteenth Century England attract a great number of undergraduates. Dr. Baxter's popularity is further indicated by his membership in Gimghoul, and his position as Chawbacon in the Mutton and Shoats Society. And while many of his students wonder why he spends so much time locked in the solitude of his office, those who know him are sure that it is actually a haven from his six children.

Lewis Lipsitz, Assistant Professor in the UNC Political Science Department and "child prodigy" in his field (having received his A.B. at the age of eighteen), represents a growing but still small number of American professors making a deep commitment to intellectual activism off campus as well as on campus. Professor Lipsitz integrates his extracurricular and his teaching interests by pursuing research into the political orientations of the poor now in progress, into democratic theory and attitudes toward authority, and into political sociology and psychology. He is a member and quasi-advisor of the UNC chapter of the Americans for Democratic Action. Although he teaches two undergraduate courses, Political Science 165 and 166 (Eighteenth Century and Contemporary Political Theory), Dr. Lipsitz is probably better known to the greater part of the Chapel Hill campus for his views on pacifism and civil rights. Nevertheless his credentials as a scholar are fully as impressive as his record of action on timely moral issues: he received his Baccalaureate from Chicago and his Ph.D. from Yale, and has authored numerous articles ranging from "Working-Class Authoritarianism" to a study of due process during the aftermath of the Kennedy Assassination. Furthermore, he is devoted to poetry, with contributions to Lil-labulero and a volume of poetry, — Cold Water — to be published in 1967.

It is most interesting to obtain the views of a sociologist of life among the Carolina natives. Associate Professor of Sociology H. Douglas Sessoms, Chairman of the Curriculum in Recreation Administration and Director of the OEO Multi-purpose Training Center, is a man very qualified to make such observations. He sees a healthy student atmosphere: "To me, Carolina student life does not differ greatly from the student cultures on most large university campuses. We are a heterogeneous student body, and this is healthy, in fact necessary, for the complete education of the Carolina student. This is one of the attractions of the UNC campus, and from it I derive a great deal of pleasure since it brings me in contact with students from diverse backgrounds and opinions." Dr. Sessoms is also pleased with the state of the University in general, and enjoys its opportunities: "The University is a world unto its own, having its own processes and normative patterns. It shares the values of the larger culture but gives greater emphasis and meaning to certain ones of these. For example, I think we find more idealism and optimism on the student campus than we do in other communities. This is directly related to the search for understanding, truth, and the tremendous energy of young people caught up in this process."

PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS

AFTER COM

MANY

paths a new Graduate can follow. One of these is the broad road of Graduate and Professional education. Many students will leave Carolina to pursue their goals elsewhere; many more will come here for the first time. The men and women who will be the doctors and the lawyers of the next few decades are here, as are those who dedicate their lives to the humanitarian vocations of Public Health and Social Work.

SCHOOL OF DENTISTRY

Dean James W. Bawden

For 16 years, from the time the School of Dentistry opened its doors until the summer of 1966, the School of Dentistry has prospered under the most able leadership of Dr. John C. Brauer. This remarkable gentleman guided the School from its beginnings to a position of nationally recognized excellence. After a most distinguished career in dental education, Dr. Brauer retired from the Deanship on July 1, 1966. He left the School in a most dynamic stage of development with the Dental Education Wing scheduled to go to contract in the Spring of 1967. The University of North Carolina — its faculty, students, and alumni — pays tribute to "this fine teacher and administrator and we accept his standard of excellence as the challenge of the future.

The impending completion of the Dental Research Building indicates the vigorously developing programs in the School of Dentistry. This year saw the initiation of a comprehensive curriculum study, the beginning of two new graduate specialty programs, continued improvement of the undergraduate curriculum through such efforts as increased emphasis on preventive dentistry, and a steady building of faculty in terms of quantity and quality.

The students, faculty, and staff of the School continue to work enthusiastically in an environment of deep mutual respect and cooperation. The student body can be proud of its accomplishments in study, practice, and research. The faculty is pleased and proud to have the opportunity of working with this fine group of students.

LAW SCHOOL

The University's first "law school" seems to have been in the home of Judge William H. Battle, who operated a private school here as early as 1843. In 1845, Judge Battle was appointed the University's first professor of law, and it was provided that the degree of bachelor of law should be conferred upon those completing the prescribed two-year curriculum. For some time the law school maintained only a loose alliance with the University; the professor received no salary from the University and the students were not entirely subject to the rules and discipline of the University.

During the tenure of Professor John Manning, the Law School became more closely associated with the University. In the Year of his death, 1899, the School was completely incorporated into the University.

With the construction of its new home in 1923, the law school entered its "modern" era of rapid growth and quality legal education. Serving successively as deans were: Merton Leroy Ferguson, 1924-26; Abner Leon Green, 1926-27; Charles T. McCormick, 1927-31; Maurice T. Van Hecke, 1931-41; Robert H. Wettach, 1941-49; Henry P. Brandis, Jr., 1949-64; and J. Dickson Phillips, 1964 to date.

The post-war years brought unprecedented growth to the Law School and in 1951 a new addition to the building was first used. The fifties and sixties saw even greater growth in student body and faculty size, necessitating a plea to the General Assembly for an entirely new and modern building to house the School. These plans have been approved and the new facilities will be occupied in 1968.

The School of Social Work at the University of North Carolina is derived from the School of Public Welfare (1920), the School of Public Administration (1932), and since 1950 has been the graduate School of Social Work, one of sixty-four such schools in the United States, Canada, and Puerto Rico.

The program is based upon two years of interrelated course instruction and supervised field experience in social welfare agencies, and culminates in the Master of Social Work degree. Opportunities are offered for professional training in social casework in such areas as family service, public welfare, child welfare, corrections, medical social service, psychiatric social work, and school services. There is also provision for preparation for careers in community organization and agency administration. Graduates are qualified to offer services in public and private welfare agencies in city, county, state, federal, national, and international settings.

SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

Students come into the School of Public Health with a sense of purpose — that of preparing themselves, usually in one academic year, for a new profession. Beginning as physicians, engineers, teachers, mathematicians, nurses, they have become imbued with the realization of the importance of health in economic and social development at home and abroad.

Students go out from the School of Public Health to the four corners of the earth. Problems of water and air pollution, of infant mortality and family planning, of nutrition, and of pestilence are universal in scope, and the public health student, whether he serves in a local community or in a far away land, employs the tools he has forged in his intensive training at our School.

One of fourteen such accredited Schools of Public Health in North America, students engage in study and research in ten academic departments of the school: Biostatistics, Environmental Sciences and Engineering, Epidemiology, Maternal and Child Health, Parasitology, Public Health Education, Public Health Nursing, Public Health Nutrition and Mental Health. All instruction is on the graduate level, with increasing numbers of students pursuing doctoral studies.

THE UNIVERSITY AND THE STATE

The title of this section is "Viewpoint," and it is rather obviously taken from a local show that is known throughout the region for its intellectual commentary. This editorial, in one sense, is directly inspired by Uncle Jesse, for it is a direct attack on him and his philosophy; but it is more than that, it is a general critique of the place of the University in the State, and its relationship with the people of North Carolina. The situation of the University has been rather precarious as an institution of North Carolina; it has been under fire since the Speaker Ban Law passed in 1963. The following is an attempt to discover what effects the controversy has had on Carolina, and to set forth some outline of what its role in the community should be.

In the fall of 1965, the Legislature of the State of North Carolina met in special session to consider repeal or amendment of the Speaker Ban, which prohibited Communist speakers from lecturing at state-owned campuses, buildings, etc. Under pressure from the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges and other organizations, the law was amended to put the control of speakers in the hands of the Trustees, who subsequently turned the authority over to the Chancellor. This move was hailed as a complete destruction of the law and victory for academic freedom. When American Communist theorist Herbert Aptheker was invited to speak on campus, however, Acting Chancellor Sitterson denied him the right to speak, following the advice of Governor Moore whose reason was that the invitation was extended solely to cause controversy. Why was this decision made?

In the fall of 1966, Jesse Helms announced on his television program that a UNC freshman English instructor, Michael Paull, was indoctrinating the virgin minds of good little North Carolina girls with prurient tripe. Shameful, sexually stimulating literature was assigned as the model for a composition; this horrid material was Andrew Marvell's "To His Coy Mistress" — a poem which this author read, studied, and analyzed in depth in the tenth grade. Mr. Helms issued a challenge in his broadcast, demanding to know what the University would do to purge itself. Chancellor Sitterson (no longer Acting) took what certainly was not a very courageous or carefully considered action in dismissing the instructor from his teaching duties with very little, if any, investigation. Upon subsequent study by a departmental committee, Paull was reinstated; but why was the almost direct interference into the academic realm by a television announcer tolerated?

Part of the problem lies, perhaps, in the nature of the majority of the population of the state. It is not heavily industrialized, much of the state is still rural. Some of the newer, more progressive concepts of education have not yet reached these areas. Naturally, these people are heavily biased toward those concepts with which they are most familiar, toward the status quo. UNC has always attempted to stimulate thought, to challenge old ideas, to set the standards, not follow them. This sits about as well with the state's citizens as Darwin did with the citizens of Dayton, Tennessee. North Carolinians will strike out through Speaker Bans, through Jesse Helms, and somewhat perversely, through Leo Jenkins. If Carolina is not wary, it will either be bent to their level, or destroyed; it must tread the thin line between complete effrontery and complete subservience.

The essence of the attack on the University is based on most citizen's feelings, whether they be rural or urban, that they own the University — own it tangibly as one would a car or a house. This, however, is not quite accurate. A North Carolinian pays education taxes just as he does for highways and for police; he enjoys the services of the educational facilities as he does the use of the highways and police protection. Yet, he cannot tell the state when, where, or how to put a highway down, nor can he tell a policeman not to arrest him for speeding. Similarly, it is not his prerogative to run the University, only to profit from its existence.

What then is the solution to the problem? Chancellor Sitterson's method seems to be to placate the state by compromising the standards of UNC. The State Affairs Committee under the Executive Branch of Student Government has attempted to "improve the University's image in the state" by means of speeches and meetings with civic groups in North Carolina. Neither of these strategies is very effective; both are assuming that the people of the state are correct in their assumptions, and that Carolina must in some way apologize for its existence. The opposite tact should be followed. If there is propagandizing to be done, it should be toward the end of educating the people of North Carolina to the extent of power that their tax dollar buys them at the University. Moreover, UNC should assert itself strongly — not offensively, but strongly — as the explorer of new ideas and the leader in constantly setting new and higher standards of achievement — intellectual and social. This University has the potential of being equally as strong as Michigan, Wisconsin, or Berkeley; what it needs is the freedom to strike ahead, unfettered — on its own. One can now look dispassionately at the harsh results of state interference at Berkeley and the rest of the University of California; he can only hope that the same does not happen here.

SPORTS

At one of the basketball games this past season, new Head Football Coach, Bill Dooley, was introduced to the student body and was applauded wildly. When Athletic Director Chuck Erickson was brought out onto the floor, however, he was roundly booed. Apparently the Bronx cheers stemmed from the football team's poor showing last fall; but it is an amazing thing to see an athletic director jeered for one team's disgrace, when his school has won the conference title for the "winningest" athletic program two years in succession. It is the contention of the Yackety Yack that Erickson, the athletic department, the members of the various intercollegiate teams (yes, even football), and everyone connected with sports at the University should be commended for a job well done.

It is true enough that the football season this year left much to be desired. This subject has been covered more fully in the football coverage (See the Athletics Section); but suffice it to say here that a 2-8 won lost record is, if nothing else, an incentive to improve next season. UNC now has a new coach, and one who believes in the hard-nosed game practiced by colleagues in the Southeastern Conference and the Big Ten. It seems as though Carolina can play them on an equal basis under Dooley — something that could not be done while under former Head Coach Jim Hickey. Hickey was a gentleman and played gentleman's ball; but this brand of football today is good only for intramurals and the Atlantic Coast Conference. There is no doubt that the Tar Heels will win the title from here on in (that is, if Clemson will allow us to compete for the championship). About all that can be said is that Tom Harp had better return to Cornell.

Basketball needs no apologies whatsoever. Asking why, oh why couldn't Carolina have defeated Dayton is like being born a duke and crying for not having been king. The team had already accomplished so much, who could really think of more. For the first time in eight years UNC finished the regular season ahead of the pack and first-seeded in the Conference Tourney. For the first time in ten years a Tar Heel team won the ACC Tournament and Conference Championship. For the first time in ten years Carolina went to the Eastern Regionals, and again for the first time in ten years, won. The performance of the 1957 team was not completely repeated, unfortunately, as Friday night in Louisville was the occasion of a disappointing loss to underdog Dayton and the end of all dreams of beating Alcindor's mob. Ah well, Duke was beaten in its first game at the NIT. Seriously, though, the whole team deserves congratulations. Of course much praise goes to Bob Lewis and Larry Miller for great performances all season — Lewis in a new, and somewhat awkward, position. But a lot of credit should also be given to the sophomores who made up the bulk of the team. This was the year of the sophomore throughout the nation (particularly at UCLA), and Carolina was no exception. Bob Lewis may be irreplaceable; but, if he is not, it will be because of the fine effort of the returning players, and specifically next year's juniors.

From basketball we turn to baseball, the All-American game. We have to return to the spring of 1966, however, for at presstime the '67 squad is only getting warmed up (though it is off to a good start with a 6-3 record so far). Last spring was an even more satisfying season than when the Heels won the Conference with a 12-2 record. Wonder of wonders UNC won the Atlantic Coast Conference Pennant, defeated strong East Carolina College for regional honors, and went off to the Collegiate World Series. Coach Walter Rabb's boys deserve as much commendation as the basketball team, for their achievements are equally as impressive. College baseball may not be as popular with the spectators as the two "big-time" sports, but where is the star of next summer's Detroit Tigers going to come from but the UNC baseball nine.

It must be emphasized here that the order of presentation is not at all an order of descending importance. Coach Skakle's tennis team, for example, is the most consistent winning team on campus. Year after year he never fails to turn out fine netters. If the University of Miami did not con the stars at the Orange Bowl Junior Tennis Tournament, UNC would have the best team in the country. One cannot overlook either the fine swimmers under the direction of Coach Pat Earey; he has excellent talent in boys like Pete Worthen and Olympian Phil Riker, and has done a fine job with them. There is also the track (including cross country) team, which has finished second only to Maryland for two years in indoor track competition.

What is most encouraging is the enthusiasm of the participants in the less noted and less followed activities—the so-called minor sports. Lacrosse is getting to be a big thing at UNC, and has a new young coach this year to give it direction. Soccer has certainly done very well, just missing the NCAA playoffs. Coach Marvin Allen can look for even more interest and attention as soccer becomes a national sport with the new professional leagues. Wrestling and Sam Barnes are wonders to behold, worth anyone's trip to the gym. Fencing, too, is a sport one should feel privileged to watch; it is intriguing for its ceremony and tradition.

To return to the original statement, it is difficult to understand why an athletic director in charge of a program like that outlined above, would be booed. There is more to athletics than football, and there is more to life than a brown bag in Kenan Stadium.

WOMEN'S RULES

Women's Rules, even on the surface, are a contradiction in terms, for who has ever ruled a woman? Seriously, though, the tin god of women's rules is an absurdity which makes the Index of Prohibited Books seem progressive by comparison. The University admits young ladies of age eighteen and older, calls them women, but treats them as though they were girls of thirteen or fourteen. These are supposed to be the cream of the U. S. female crop; just by the standards they have had to meet to enter UNC, they are among the brightest, the most mature, and the most sophisticated girls of their age in the state and country. Why then are they treated as too young to make any decisions on their own, while their less fortunate sisters who do not go to a college or university are considered adults by the entire community? Does it make sense that an eighteen year old hairdresser can choose where she wants to live and with whom she wants to sleep, when the intelligent college co-ed is apparently too stupid to make this choice.

It would seem that part of a college education is to learn freedom — what it is and how to cope with it. The answer from the Dean of Women's Office would be that the girl is given freedom in limited, supervised doses, so that she will be taught how she should use her freedom. Well and good; but what assurance is there that what Katherine Kennedy Carmichael believes should be done with her own freedom is what every co-ed believes should be done with hers. In other words it is a confusing and frustrating situation when the woman student is taught to think independently, not to believe exactly what she is told, and yet her social life is directed in an exactly opposite manner. If a person is taught to make their own decisions regarding the appropriateness of America's stand in Vietnam, or the advantages and disadvantages of socialism in the United States, she should be capable of making her own moral decisions.

The University of North Carolina, however, apparently sees its duty to maintain virginity as a matter of policy. It is somewhat incredulous that an institution of higher learning — supposedly one of the leading universities in the nation — would sink to the level of acting like a super chastity belt, but it is unfortunately true. Again, it must be emphasized that college is where the individual assumes responsibility, and that is a subject one must learn on his own. But what has a girl learned except punctuality and/or deceit under a system such as the one here? It is an entirely unsatisfactory one.

This medieval remnant can be traced to two things. The first is the University's feeling that it should act in loco parentis, in the place of parents, in its relations with the students. This is the case with all students, but in greater degree with the female ones. In loco parentis was understandable in the day when freshmen did not know the difference between a liquor bottle and a mug of moo. Today's collegians, however, are about as world-wise when they come to UNC as their predecessors were when they left. When their own parents have given them enough rope to hang themselves for some time, they are not aided in their maturity to suddenly return to the womb at the University's command. Ah ha, one says. But what of those whose parents did not believe in allowing them a little slack in gaining experience, what of those whose parents still feel their offspring should be tethered tightly by the umbilical cord? This is the second part of the problem — the provincial attitude of many of the state's inhabitants. Yet, the same applies in the University's relations with North Carolina in moral and social matters as does in academic ones. Moreover, parents for whom UNC is too liberal may send their "children" elsewhere. Academe should be the training ground for the state's future; the treatment of adult women as though they were pre-teen agers does not set much of an example.

Why then is nothing done about women's rules? It is no idle statement that if there were a genuine feeling of antagonism toward the status quo, the administration might look to change. But the co-eds here do not want liberalization. They feel safe and warm and secure within the womb and protected by the super chastity belt. Those who do feel some mild dissatisfaction with the system are too apathetic to make any active show. Berkeley-style demonstrations and rebellion is not called for; but one would think the leading women students would be so affronted by the treatment they receive that they would make some legitimate protest — and see it through until reform was initiated. Alas no, Carolina is not so blessed with enlightened spirits. And so, to close this diatribe, one can only say it was a waste: until the Carolina Co-ed graduates from the Karolina Kindergarten and demands what she deserves as an adult, intelligent being, she will remain unemancipated. Women's rules are an unnecessary burden, but she has chosen to bear them.

THE YACK

The 1966 Yackety Yack closed with the words, "And so, if one should criticize the yearbook, let him think what he can do for the Yack, not what it can do for him. It is in your hands, fellow students, more than anyone else's that the final success of the book depends, for without your assistance and support, all our industry is futile." Yet, very few students hearkened to these words: there were books ripped over cars, others torn in half, and still others left in the Yack office for posterity. Why was this done? Why was the Yack not accepted? Why was (and perhaps is) it a failure — or, indeed, was it a failure? Is it the student's fault for lack of aesthetic appreciation; is it the student's fault for lack of assistance and advice until it is hindsight; is it the fault of past Pub Boards for tying the Yack to a printer and engraver whose methods were archaic, if not antique; or is it the fault of the Yack staff, whose attempt at artistry sometimes places the book too "far out" for the average student and his interest?

The answer lies in a combination of these things. The students, first, are culpable for not desiring or accepting anything beyond the good, cleancut yearbook they knew at Podunk High School. It is rather difficult for a book to present copy, pictures or layout in an artistic manner when the recipient of the book cares for nothing but his own picture and the funny caption under the frat candid. Moreover, not only is an artistic annual off limits, but a truthful one is also. Even if the football team is not the best or Jubilee was not up to par, it seems to be the feeling of most that the obligation of the Yack is to praise them. This atmosphere, where any new idea is automatically a bad one, is not conducive to a successful Yackety Yack from any point of view. The yearbook is a pictorial and literary record, and a record is comment as well as fact.

The blame can also be placed on the student body for being, as it were, Monday morning quarterbacks. Though pleas have been made constantly for assistance, advice, and criticism during the preparation of the book, these go unheard by the majority, while the Yack is almost forgotten. In May, however, far and wide is heard the cry that this is the worst yet; only when it is too late do most students voice their objections. This year the number of staff and secretarial volunteers from the student body has been excellent; yet, those who are most vituperative in their condemnation never seem to come down to the office to offer their services. If there was a genuine interest in improving the book according to their own standards, why have these students not come forth from the woodwork?

Another very tangible area which has contributed in the past to the detriment of the Yackety Yack and to its failure with the University community was the poor contracting by the Publications Board three years ago, which burdened the yearbook with obsolete, expensive, and uncooperative printers, engravers, and photographers. Since they were North Carolina companies, they believed that the UNC book would never look elsewhere; consequently they priced themselves far above the competitive market, did poor work, and were generally unwilling to help in any way. No changes for aesthetic reasons or otherwise could be made with these people; the engraver even had the audacity to come to Chapel Hill year after year with the same layouts, telling the staff here was the book — just fill in the names and pictures (what is even more shocking is that many editors went along). This sort of arrangement does not help create good Yacks.

One cannot, however, point the finger at others without a certain degree of introspection. The Yack staff too often suffers from an acute superiority complex which is carried into the book; though sometimes, perhaps, not entirely unwarranted, it is not wise for the authors of a work representing the whole community to make that work the product only of their own tastes and preferences. It is true that one feels insulted by some of the things which must be included in the yearbook either from tradition or what the public wants, but there is no reason to conceive that book as a gross insult to the students. There is here the question of whether the artist should try and influence the taste of the community or whether he should cater to its present preferences; the answer, of course, is compromise.

One issue this year which perhaps typifies the enmity with which the book is held by the student body is the coupon controversy. Not even initiated by the Yackety Yack, the staff was immediately accused of a vast insidious conspiracy against the student body. If there were only some effective line of communication between the staff and the students, it would have been readily apparent that the coupons were only a means — albeit crude — to determine the number of individuals wanting yearbooks. No attempt was conceived to deprive anyone of what was rightfully theirs; but it is ridiculous to order fourteen thousand books when only ten or eleven thousand are desired. If this were done the result would be higher fees for all. The staff only wishes to serve the students in the best and most efficient way.

There are then, several areas of friction which have scarred the Yackety Yack and led it to be, if not a failure, unaccepted. Perhaps the solution is putting the book on a subscription basis; for then the Yack staff could publish what they felt was worthwhile, and the student who bought one would have only himself to blame if he disliked it. Yet, in this we again forget the average student — the one who would very much like to have a book, but would not be able to absorb the fivefold price increase. No, the solution does not lie here, but lies rather in an understanding between the Yack and the student body regardless of financial basis — an understanding that each year is a new and different year deserving a new and different book; an understanding that the challenge of the yearbook is originality; the understanding that both the University of North Carolina and its student body have matured and put away childish things, and that this maturity requires a record of equal worth; the understanding that there will be many changes — many trials and many errors — before the staff learns to present this new maturity; and the understanding that whatever is done is always with the best interest of the student in mind.

A HASTY DEPARTURE

We have attempted to chronicle the past year at Carolina and at the same time show the various facets of a four year stay at the university.

If we have offended anyone, we apologize; if we have brought enlightenment to anyone, then we are satisfied. Our main job, however, is to provide memories for alumni looking back somewhere ages and ages hence; our success in this will not be known for many years.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I would like to express my gratitude to the following people. Their aid was an invaluable asset to me:

The Carolina Inn for allowing the Yack to have its beauty contest there.

Thalhimer's of Durham for furnishing the fashions in which the Yack Court was photographed.

Jack Williams of the sports information office for his time and patience in providing me with tomes of sport pictures and information.

All the teachers featured in the Yack for taking the time to fill out the questionnaire on which their write ups were based.

Harold Moore and the Durham Sun for the picture of the Tar Heel team receiving the ACC Cup.

The Athletic coaches who provided us with their time and help in order that the sports section might be as excellent as possible.

Charles Scribners' sons for permission to quote from their translation of the Aeneid.

Archie Copeland and John Buie of the Graham Memorial Print Shop for their "speedy" deliveries.

Mary King for her invaluable assistance in selecting the Frank Porter Graham Recipients.

Murray Bartelstone of Rappoport Studios for his efficient, quick service.

Frank Longest, Chairman of the Pub Board, for his cooperation and understanding and without whose assistance our bills for additional funds would never have reached legislature. The spectacular color in this book is due mainly to his perseverance.

Fred Koger of Taylor Publishing Co., who provided me with absolutely everything an editor could ever want from a publishing company.

SPECIFICATIONS

The 1967 Yackety Yack was printed by the offset lithography process by the Taylor Publishing Company, Dallas, Texas. All but the color pages are printed on seventy pound sonata natural paper, provincial color, kidskin finish. The color portion is printed on eighty pound stippled enamel. The endsheets are made of eighty pound ivory teton stock. PMS 426 is used as the basic ink, except in the four color process portion, where the four standard colors are used. The cover is made of Arco Library Buckram. The cover as well as the binding was executed by Taylor. The type font is Times Roman except for the main divider pages, where a variety of fonts are employed. The portrait photography was done by Rappoport Studios, New York.
